'Can't let it happen'

Phase 4 economic controls to be 'tough'

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Nixon administration will make its Phase 4 system of wage-price controls tough enough to prevent another price explosion after the 60-day freeze expires, the President's chief economic adviser says.

"We're not going to go through another Phase 3," said Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers. "We just can't let that happen."

Stein referred to the tremendous increase in prices that occurred after President Nixon lifted most mandatory wage-price controls on Jan. 11.

He said the next controls program would be designed to prevent another surge in inflation such as occurred after the 90-day wage-price freeze expired in November, 1971.

In an interview, Stein said Phase 4 will be more mandatory and comprehensive than Phase 2. He left open the possibility that some price ceilings would remain after the new freeze expires.

"Maybe you move in small steps," the economist said.

By that, he apparently meant that the Nixon administration would go slow about decontrolling the economy once the freeze is over in August.

Asked why the stock market had failed to respond after Nixon put the freeze on Wednesday night, Stein noted there is a difference between the atmosphere of the first freeze and the latest one.

"They now realize that what counts is what is beyond the freeze," Stein said.

But he added that the stock market appeared to be "totally irrational and in a state of hydrophobia."

Asked why the dollar also appeared to be in trouble in foreign money markets after Nixon announced his latest move, he said, "one reason is that a lot of people do not understand the freeze."

He said that some have the notion that food prices are exempt because Nixon exempted raw agricultural products. There is the notion that this exemption goes all the way to the supermarket, which is not true, Stein said.

Because Nixon has frozen all retail prices, the prices that farmers get for their goods also have been, in effect, controlled, he said. Wages, dividends, interest rates and rents are not covered, however.

On Saturday afternoon, the Cost of Living Council re-emphasized that raw agricultural products are exempt only to the point of the first sale by the producer or grower.

College tuitions and fees, antiques, art items, rare coins and stamps and the prices charged by governments at all levels also are subject to the freeze, it added.

Stein said the nation will learn the shape of Phase 4 well before the price freeze expires. He said the experience of the first freeze should make the job of designing new controls easier.

Asked if it is possible that the freeze could be significantly shorter than 60 days, he said, "I don't think that is likely. If it is, it will be not much more than a few days shorter than 60."

He conceded that the President's decision to move toward controls on export of agricultural products, such as wheat and soy-

Mayors hit EPA plan to cut car use

Instead urge U.S.
mass transit aid

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Five big-city mayors said Saturday the way to clean up urban air is to provide federal support for mass transit rather than propose bans or reductions on auto use.

At a news conference, Mayor Henry Maier of Milwaukee, a Democrat, launched into a shouting attack on Transportation Secretary Claude Brinegar for failing to speak out for mass transit.

"When is a secretary of transportation going to really speak out?" Maier asked.

"When is he going to declare a moratorium on building freeways, and when is he going to muster enough clout in the oil industry to go to Congress and get this highway trust fund broken up to allow using highway trust funds for operating mass transit?"

The Nixon administration opposes using the highway trust fund, primarily generated by the three-cent-per-gallon federal gasoline tax to operate mass transit. It has, however, endorsed allowing some of the money to be used to buy mass transit equipment rather than restricting its use to building highways, as is the case now. The Senate has passed the Nixon proposal but the House defeated it. The two bodies of Congress are now trying to work out their differences.

"Unless these metropolitan areas can get operating funds we have no viable alternative to the automobile," Maier yelled. "You have a national emergency with an acute fuel shortage staring us in the face, and not a damn thing is being said by this administration."

The Environmental Protection Agency proposed traffic controls for 18 urban areas Friday that would ban or restrict auto use so that cities could meet 1975 federal air quality standards on six pollutants that come primarily from cars.

The agency said it felt many of these plans were unrealistic and had hoped to get Congress to give cities an extension of the deadline.

Mayor Richard J. Daley, Democrat of Chicago, said Chicago could meet the standards without an extension. He noted, however, that EPA had granted auto makers a one-year extension on their deadline to reduce polluting emissions.

ARRIVING IN America, Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev shakes hands at Andrews AFB, Md., Saturday with Soviet Ambassador sador Anatoly Dobrynin, partially hidden, as Secretary of State William Rogers watches.

Meets Nixon Monday Brezhnev arrives in U.S.

New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — Leonid I. Brezhnev arrived in a heavy downpour Saturday for the unofficial start of a nine-day visit intended to spur arms control talks and to promote cooperation and commerce between the U.S. and the Soviet Union.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers, who led a small American welcoming party at heavily-guarded Andrews Air Force Base just outside Washington, greeted the burly Communist Party leader by saying that "this is a great day for America."

He reminded Brezhnev that Leonid Brezhnev has little in common with his clowning, fun-loving, erratic predecessor, Nikita Khrushchev. Profile of the Soviet leader on Page A-8.

President Nixon had also arrived in the rain when his plane landed in Moscow last year, and that Russians had said that such "a mushroom rain" was a favorable sign.

After chatting with about 400 Soviet diplomats and their families from Washington and New York who waved red flags in his honor, Brezhnev boarded a Marine Corps helicopter for the short flight to Camp David, the presidential retreat near Thurmont, Md., where he will rest until the official welcome at the White House lawn on Monday morning.

Two other Marine helicopters carried the rest of Brezhnev's official party, including Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, and a third, their baggage.

Nixon, who will not see Brezhnev until the Monday ceremonies, was in Key Biscayne, Fla., this weekend, from where he telephoned Brezhnev about 6 p.m., a half hour after the Soviet leader arrived at Camp David. Nixon said he wanted to welcome him "on behalf of the American people," the White House said.

With Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin acting as interpreter at Brezhnev's end of the line, Brezhnev extended his greeting to Nixon and his wife. Nixon said he hoped that Brezhnev had a good rest after the long trip.

This was the first trans-Atlantic flight for the 66-year-old general secretary, whose powers as head of the Communist Party Politburo make him, in effect, the leader of the Soviet Union's 249-million people.

In deference to Soviet wishes, only a handful of reporters was allowed at Andrews Air Force Base to witness the arrival of the Ilyushin-62 four-engine jet which carried Brezhnev and his official party.

Police slay gunman; girl hostage, cop die

Combined News Services

BERKELEY — An ex-convict killed a police sergeant who tried to handcuff him as a suspected prowler Saturday, then fatally shot one of three hostages — a sleeping 4-year-old girl — before walking into a volley of bullets from a waiting police sharpshooter.

The gunman died several hours later in a hospital.

Dozens of police officers surrounded a two-story frame house while the suspect, identified as Ernest M. Silas, 34, held his captives. He emerged shortly after a single shot was fired inside, apparently killing the little girl, and was wounded in the head and shoulder.

Witnesses gave conflicting accounts of whether Silas was trying to escape or surrender. A neighbor who knew Silas said the whole episode "should never have happened."

The confusing chain of events in the quiet, residential neighborhood a mile from the University of California campus began about 5 a.m. when police received a report of a prowler. Sgt. Jimmie H. Rutledge, 49, a 22-year veteran of the

Nixon ordered L.A. burglary, Dean to claim

By SEYMOUR M. HERSH

WASHINGTON—John W. Dean has told government investigators that a high White House aide informed him early last January that the orders for the burglary of files belonging to Dr. Daniel Ellsberg's former psychiatrist came "from the Oval Office" of President Nixon, sources close to the Watergate case said Saturday.

The sources said that Dean had related that the information about Nixon's alleged involvement came from Egil Krogh Jr., one of directors of the so-called "plumbers group" assigned by the President to investigate Ellsberg after the publication of the Pentagon Papers in June, 1971. The burglary occurred in Beverly Hills in September of 1971.

EXCLUSIVE

Dean was reported ready to testify about the conversation in his televised appearance this week before the Senate Watergate Committee. The former White House counsel met Saturday with staff members and lawyers for the Senate Committee to prepare for his testimony, which begins Tuesday.

The White House, told of the new assertion by Dean, refused comment. A spokesman said in a statement "We are not going to comment on this type of 'John Dean source' story."

Krogh, who resigned early in May as under secretary of Transportation, was unavailable for comment. His attorney, Stephen H. Shulman, said, "I refuse to discuss issues that are subject of investigation in the newspapers."

In his May 22 statement on the related Watergate scandal, Nixon specifically denied any advance knowledge of the West Coast burglary.

"IT WAS not until the time of my own investigation," he said, "that I learned of the break-in at the office of Mr. Ellsberg's psychiatrist."

Later in the statement, Nixon said, "I told Mr. Krogh that as matter of first priority, the plumbers should find out all it could about Mr. Ellsberg's associates and his motives." He added, however, "I did not authorize and had no knowledge of any illegal means to be used to achieve this goal."

Dean is said to have told investigators that he discussed the California break-in and the authorization for it with Krogh while serving as Krogh's counsel shortly before Senate presidential nomination to be under secretary of Transportation.

$1.4 million U.S. aid for L.B. schools

The Long Beach and Compton unified school districts have been certified to receive tentative impact aid entitlements of $1,375,803 and $143,475, respectively, by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Long Beach, said Saturday.

Hosmer said that the Long Beach district will receive an immediate payment of $1,238,222 within a week or so. The balance will follow a final audit in a few months.

The Compton district will immediately receive $129,127.

The impact aid is paid to school districts in which large numbers of federal employees live and work. The aid is provided because federal installations pay no taxes to local school districts as industries do.

The impact aid, which will be distributed to some 4,650 school districts nationally, will drop from $415 million in 1973 to $41.5 million in fiscal 1974, budget figures show.

John Weil, budget control officer for the Long Beach Unified School District, said, "The payment is very close to what we had budgeted for this year. Although earlier this fall it looked pretty dismal as we thought we would only get about $638,000. But congressional constituents exerted pressure on the President and he had decided to release the monies he previously impounded."

A Long Beach School Board spokesman explained that the district has been receiving less and less each year from federal sources.

"There are still two unanswered questions that cloud the budget outlook for 1973-74," he said. One is how much will the district receive in federal aid under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

"The other question is will the California Legislature pass the trailer bills to SB 90, which was passed last year and decreased state financing to the Long Beach Unified School District. The trailer bills, yet to be voted on, could lessen this impact," he said.

Pecking jays win heady victory

MOUNT PROSPECT, Ill. (UPI) — Dive-bombing blue jays, intent on giving their young flying lessons, turned the front lawn of the Richter family's home into a virtual battle zone.

The battle was one of wits—or how to protect your head.

"The jays were apparently trying to teach their young to fly so they pushed them out of the nest," David Richter, 18, said Saturday. "Then the adult jays swooped down on anybody that got near."

"Two of the young birds were killed, apparently when they fell from the nest, and the third one came down somewhat less than gracefully. He broke his leg or something, I guess, and ended up in our garage. The parents wouldn't let anybody near."

Young Richter suggested maybe the family should have let its cat out Friday morning after the mailman began screaming and pounding on the door.

"He was really a basket case," Richter said. "They had really been swooping him. They land on your head and peck it. I guess it hurts."

Richter said the family found its mail on the porch Friday and it hadn't arrived Saturday. He said he didn't know if the mail man would return to the house or not.

He called the police after the attacks on the mailman and several passersby Friday and Patrolman Wayne Lipsey went to investigate.

After he was attacked, he and other officers put up barricades on the sidewalk with signs that said, "walk on street—swooping birds."

"We wanted the people and the birds to keep out of each other's way," he said. "We had a case like this with starlings last year but it was only a temporary thing."

The signs didn't help the Richter family, however. David said his father, Allan N. Richter, was attacked by the jays when he tried to get into the garage Friday night but David himself was able to outdistance them on a bicycle.

"It was incredible," he said of the swooping incident. "But the more I think about it the more I think it's not so incredible. You hear about guys getting attacked by birds on the golf course."

The behavior was perfectly natural for the blue jays. An official at Brookfield Zoo said jays will swoop at people, birds or other animals who get too near a young when they are pushed from the nest to be taught to feed and fly.

JFK killing linked to CIA plot

Combined News Services

The late President Lyndon Johnson believed that President Kennedy was slain in retaliation for a thwarted assassination attempt by a CIA-backed team in Havana, according to a former Johnson aide.

In an article published Sunday in the Atlantic Monthly, Leo Janos, now a Time magazine correspondent, said Johnson told him in a conversation at the LBJ Ranch a few months before he died, "I never believed Oswald acted alone, although I can accept that he pulled the trigger."

Janos quoted Johnson as saying that when he took office after the assassination he found "we had been operating a damned Murder Inc. in the Caribbean." Janos did not quote the late president as to the specifics of the alleged CIA assassination plot in Havana, nor the target of such a plot.

Janos said the reason Johnson did not run for re-election in 1968 was that he believed he would not live through his term, and in 1967 had launched a secret actuarial study on his life expectancy.

Added Janos: "The prediction handed to Johnson was that he would die at the age of 64. He did."

An Air Force captain claims to have published the first of what promises to be a number of books by former prisoners of war on their experiences in North Vietnam.

Capt. Larry Chesley of Burley, Idaho, who is getting married Tuesday to a woman he met shortly after returning in March, says he knows of several others among the 589 released POWs who are writing books on their experiences, but he believes his is the first to be published.

Chesley's 158-page book, "Seven Years in Hanoi — A POW Tells His Story," went on sale in Salt Lake City this weekend. It was published by Bookcraft, which prints primarily religious books concerning the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Chesley's story is laced with faith in the Mormon religion, patriotism and reminiscences of his life in Idaho farm country, contrasted with harsh descriptions of prison life. Its closing phrase is "God bless America," printed in capital letters.

In a handwritten will penned just five days before his mysterious death, the eldest son of one of the world's richest men, J. Paul Getty, left his father an inheritance of only $10,000. The elder Getty's wealth has been estimated at $2 billion.

Five days before the death of his 46-year-old son, George II, the younger Getty signed his "last will and testament," the contents of which were made public in Los Angeles Saturday by a family attorney.

A coroner's report showed Getty died of a combination of barbiturates and alcohol, but authorities have not yet concluded whether death was accidental or suicide.

Pillow fights

Five men and six women who are sailing a raft across the Atlantic as an experiment in human behavior work off their frustrations with nocturnal pillow fights, their anthropologist skipper said Saturday.

In a radio conversation with a ham operator in Las Palmas, Spain, Mexican anthropologist Santiago Genoves said he and his 10 volunteers were bearing up well under a continuous storm of recent days with high winds and 25-foot waves.

"Some nights when we turn out the small light in our cabin, we playfully throw cushions at each other," Genoves said. "I think I can say that each person directs his pillow blows at the person with whom he wants most contact, whether that be imaginary, sexual, verbal or anything else. That's just like any New Year's Eve party anywhere in the world."

Out of place

Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., has declared it is "clearly illegal" for two Army officers to serve on the White House staff.

The accusation by Moss came in a letter to Federal Comptroller General Elmer B. Staats in which the congressman called for a ruling on the officers' status.

The officers, Lt. Col. Frederick Brown and Maj. George Joulwan, are on the staff of Gen. Alexander Haig Jr., who is the chief of White House operations for President Nixon.

Moss earlier had complained that it is illegal for Haig to serve in the White House in a civilian post, asking Staats to rule on Haig's status, too. Haig now plans to resign his military commission on Aug. 1 and remain at the White House.

Appreciated

Dave Chasen, who moved through the vaudeville circuits to Broadway to owner of one of Hollywood's most famous restaurants, died of cancer Saturday at his Los Angeles home. He was 74.

The Russian-born entertainer's restaurant, Chasen's, was most appreciated by aficionados for a dish that never appeared on the menu. His chili, ladled out to such notables as Charles Lindbergh, Eleanor Roosevelt and actor James Stewart, was generally unknown to the thousands of tourists who came to the restaurant in recent years hoping to catch a glimpse of the exclusive show business and government clientele.

Elizabeth Taylor a decade ago ordered gallons of the chili flown to Rome where she was on location for a picture. The late FBI director J. Edgar Hoover reportedly once called Chasen's chili "the best in the world."

In a while

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy says he'll announce his intentions concerning the 1976 presidential race "after the 1974 congressional election."

The Massachusetts Democrat, whose current term in the Senate runs to 1974, was quoted in a copyright article in the Boston Sunday Herald Advertiser as saying, "Right now I have no plans for 1976. I will continue to serve in the Senate. However, I realize there is considerable speculation about my possible candidacy. After the 1974 congressional election I will have to make my intentions known."

Discussing Watergate, Kennedy said: "The final judgement will have to be made by the people... the voters. The Watergate mentality is an attitude that lies at the core of many other conflicts between Congress and the President. The same arrogance and blind judgment that led to Watergate is also that attitude that led to the bombing of Cambodia, the doctrines of impoundment and unlimited executive privilege, and harassment of the press."

Dilemma

Policemen responding to a neighbor's complaint of a noisy party in St. Paul, Minn., were asked by the host, "Who you going to arrest first?"

Gov. Wendell Anderson, Atty. Gen. Warren Spannaus and St. Paul Mayor Lawrence Cohen were among the 1,000 or so persons who jammed the St. Paul mansion of Roger Christianson. He was giving a party in honor of an administrative aide to Rep. Joseph Karth, D-Minn.

Christianson said he invited only 600 persons, but the turnout nearly doubled his guest list.

"Just give me a 7-Up," one patrolman told Christianson before leaving.

No gift

President Nixon formally designated Sunday as Father's Day and urged Americans to "pay a justly deserved tribute to the counselors, providers, arbiters and leaders who are our fathers."

The presidential proclamation, issued Saturday from Key Biscayne in accordance with a congressional resolution, said "it is the American father's glory that he works to make each day of the year his family's; it is our proper tribute to him that we should join to make this one day his."

Nixon will spend the day with his wife at their Florida home before flying back to Washington this evening for talks beginning Monday with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev.

A spokesman said the President's daughters, Tricia Cox and Julie Eisenhower, will telephone him today, but that the family has agreed "no gifts will be given this year."

Assurances

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said Saturday in Washington that President Nixon has given him personal assurances that the White House wants better relations with the Democratic-controlled Congress.

Mansfield disclosed that in talking with reporters about the President's speech in Pekin, Ill., Friday, Nixon had called for "a spirit of partnership," resting "on the foundation of mutual respect between the executive and the Legislature."

Mansfield said, as he has on a number of occasions this year, that "we're prepared to meet him half-way" in seeking to end disagreements over budget and other matters.

Economy birth

A Salt Lake city woman has given birth to a healthy 7-pound, 3-ounce girl after waiting more than a month in a camper in a hospital parking lot to avoid $75-per-day room charges.

Ruth Egan lived only 35 minutes away from Latter-day Saints Hospital. After keeping her in the hospital several days, administrators agreed to let the Egan family keep their truck and camper unit in the hospital parking lot, a few steps from the emergency entrance.

"Everyone was caught up in the romance of this unique case," said L. Brent Goates, chief administrator, adding that her doctor, nurses and other employees made daily visits to the camper.

Parachute

Robert Kirsch, 25, jumped from New York's Brooklyn Bridge Saturday, using a house painter's tarpaulin as a parachute. He was critically injured.

Police who fished Kirsch out of the East River after the 135-foot plunge said he was taken to Beekman Downtown Hospital with multiple injuries. No reason was given for why Kirsch jumped.

Leftists' protest in D.C. zeroes in on Watergate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than 1,000 protesters marched through the capital Saturday in what was intended to be the first major antiadministration demonstration by leftist groups since President Nixon's second inauguration.

Sponsored by the Peoples Coalition for Peace and Justice, the march was billed as a protest against cuts in domestic social spending and the bombing of Cambodia. But the title was "March from Watergate to Justice" and the speakers concentrated on the bug-ging scandal.

The march began directly across the street from the Watergate offices where the notorious break-in occurred a year ago today. It ended at the Justice Department building, about a mile away.

Anthony Russo, a former defendant in the Pentagon Papers case, told the crowd that recent disclosures indicate the President's re-election committee resorted to illegal activities because of pressure from antiwar activists.

"We now know how up-tight they were about us," Russo said. "We had no money, no guns, but we have soul power..."

Most of the marchers wore buttons saying "impeach Nixon" and many of their banners carried the same message.

At a stop near the White House, comedian Dick Gregory said the scandal "goes beyond Dick Nixon... to the sick, slimy CIA that won't be satisfied until they overthrow this country."

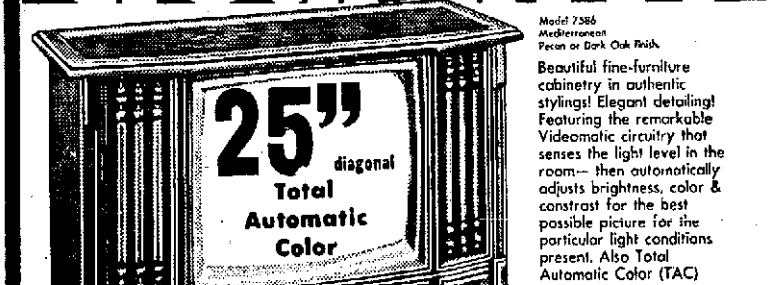

"A year ago," he said, "if I stood on this stage and said that in one year John Mitchell would be on his way to jail and Bobby Seale would be running for mayor of Oakland, you all would have thought I was crazy."

Inspector charges shoddy construction

Work on L.B. Navy Hospital rapped

By STAN LEPPARD
Staff Writer

A Navy construction inspector has told the Independent, Press-Telegram he quit his job because his complaints of "faulty and slipshod" construction underway on the 5-story, 220-bed addition to the Long Beach Naval Hospital were ignored.

Ernest Bowers, 48-year-old civilian surveillance representative for the Navy on the $12.6 million project for nine months prior to May 11, said he resigned on that date because repeated complaints had been brushed off—both by the contractor and by his Navy superiors.

Rep. Craig Hosmer, apprised in Washington of Bowers' allegations, considered them serious enough to warrant scrutiny. The Long Beach Republican congressman has asked the Navy Department for a "complete investigation and full report" on the charges.

Bowers' list of complaints include allegations of improper placement and driving of pilings, bad placement and tying of reinforcing steel, improper mixing and pouring of concrete, columns out of plumb, floor slabs not level, and others.

A spokesman for the contractor, Robert E. McKee General Contractors, Inc., "vehemently and categorically" denied the charges of covered-up construction faults in the project.

"There are errors being made, the same as there are on every construction job, but the errors are being corrected as they are discovered," said Henry Harbordt, vice president and Los Angeles division manager for McKee. "When this job is finished, it's going to be a well-constructed and fine-looking building, and no one has to worry about it."

Harbordt's denial was seconded by Cmdr. D.S. Bolinger, Navy resident officer in charge of construction, Long Beach area. He said he had no reason to doubt that deficiencies in the job "have been, are being, and will be corrected before they are finished over."

Bowers contends, however, that many of the faults were finished over and dismissed as "minor" by the contractor and or the contractor's quality control representative.

"They kept telling me 'wait until you see the finished product, Ernie, it's going to be a beautiful job,'" he said. "To me, it's not going to be a beautiful job just because the faults are hidden. That fact makes it all the more worse."

Harbordt said he "believed, or at least hoped, that when the Navy's response in writing is received by Congressman Hosmer, it will be the end of the matter."

'Dismissed as minor'

Two sets of engineers, not connected with the Naval Hospital project and desiring to remain anonymous, were shown Bowers' large collection of photographs depicting alleged construction faults and asked for their evaluation. Their responses, though guarded, corroborated most of Bowers' complaints of "sloppy and indifferent" workmanship.

The photographs purported to depict improper agitation—"puddling"—of concrete and the resultant honeycombing of wide areas; a workman patching over a honeycombed area to cover it up; wall studding that failed to fit in the overhead channel, and other discrepancies.

"It appears to be a poorly organized and poorly run job," one engineer said.

"Looks to be slipshod work," another stated.

"Where in the hell was the Navy's inspector on this project?" a third asked after studying the photographs.

Told that the Navy inspector had resigned because his complaints were getting nowhere, he shrugged. "Can't say that I blame him," he said.

Bowers, a construction superintendent with the Corps of Engineers and later construction inspector for Douglas Aircraft for three years before he was hired by the Navy on June 11, 1972, was assigned to the Naval Hospital project last September.

'Where was inspector?'

He has kept, as he was required, daily record of discrepancies and deviations from plans and specifications. They number 546 complaints since Sept. 11.

Bowers said he issued 25 non-compliances (written reports of non-contract non-compliance that go through the chain of Navy command up to the officer in charge of the Naval Facilities Engineering Command up to the officer in charge of the Naval Facilities Engineering Command at San Bruno, Calif.) before he was ordered by his superiors not to write any more.

"I was not told why, I was just told not to issue any more non-compliances," he said.

Bowers' letter of resignation submitted to Cmdr. Bolinger, dated May 4 and effective May 11, noted that he and vainly had brought to the attention of the commander and his representatives his charges of faulty construction on the job.

"My personal integrity will not allow me to be a party to these faults that have existed, are existing, and obviously will continue to exist," he wrote.

'Won't be party to faults'

Bowers said his resignation was precipitated by a stormy meeting on the previous day—May 3—attended by the contractor and his representatives, Cmdr. Bolinger and his representatives, and himself.

"During this meeting the president of the McKee construction company pointed his finger directly at me and stated 'you're the head who has cost me all this extra money,'" Bowers said.

At one point during March, Bowers stopped all work on the second, third and fourth floors for several days by calling in state safety inspectors who ordered the halt until certain conditions were corrected. Under normal conditions, state inspectors have no jurisdiction over federal work, but can be called in on safety problems.

"This, along with a lot of other things, caused great unhappiness to the contractor," Bowers pointed out.

A revealing example of the disparity in thinking between Bowers and the contractor's quality control representative (CQC) is contained in what is purported to be a taped conversation during a meeting between Bowers and CQC David Page several weeks before Bowers' resignation.

The voices identified by Bowers as his own and that of Page made the following statements:

Bowers: We owe it not only to ourselves, Dave, but also to the taxpayers, to do a first class job. And if that isn't what we are paying McKee construction company to give us—well, I don't know how else to put it.

Page: We differ there, Ernie. You see, the way I look at it, is the finished product. And I don't see that the Navy is getting anything other than a good job.

Bowers: You say these are only minor discrepancies. To me, a minor discrepancy is anything less than a bent nail.

Page: Now Ernie, I don't intend to have these crises, every day, in every room, on every level. Because you're going to have imperfections—

Bowers: This is our job, to eliminate them, Dave. We're paying for a first class job, and if we get anything less than a first class job, it's my responsibility to see that something is done.

Page: What's happening, Ernie, is that this job is not being built the way you want it built. You see, Ernie, we can't talk in terms of taxpayer versus cost, because we're dealing in a very competitive market...

Bowers denied Cmdr. Bolinger's contention that "to the best of his knowledge" deficiencies have been and are being corrected as discovered.

'Can't talk in terms of taxpayers'

"Many of the discrepancies in the reinforcing steel have been covered up now by concrete, but many bearing columns are still out of plumb, and many floor slabs still are not level," he said.

Bolinger's assurances to the I.P.T. that he was entirely satisfied with the contractor's procedures were not reflected in the tone of an official letter he sent on May 8—four days after receiving Bowers' letter of resignation—to the contractor's Los Angeles headquarters.

He said in the letter that the Navy expects the contractor to conform immediately to requirements as set forth in Naval Facility regulations, and that the CQC is to report deviations from plans and specifications on the contractor's daily quality control report.

"The Navy contends that these requirements mean that all deviations are to be reported, no matter how 'minor' or whether they could be corrected the same day," the letter continued. "...in other words, the Navy feels that it has paid for a complete detailed inspection of all work incorporated in the subject contract, not merely a surveillance of such work."

Bolinger's letter further stated: "...Your personnel seem to be concerned primarily with the finished product. Our personnel are also concerned with the finished product, but in addition, we have a vested interest to insure that the Government receives the contract-required day-to-day construction materials and workmanship which become a part of that finished product."

'Inspection, not surveillance'

It concluded with: "If the Navy representatives concur that a deficiency exists, has been brought to the attention of Mr. Page, and has not been indicated in the next subsequent daily report, a non-compliance will be issued. If no action is taken to satisfactorily correct such deficiency, that portion of the work involved will be stopped by the ROICC (Resident Officer in Charge of Construction) until the correction is accomplished. If it becomes necessary to issue an unusually high number of con-compliances, it would indicate to me that your CQC organization is not staffed sufficiently to perform the detailed inspection required. At that time you would be required to supplement your CQC staff to insure complete field inspection coverage."

New charter at issue

Demos split on reform

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON—A new battle like the one that tore the Democratic Party apart in 1972 appears to be developing, this time over the shape of a proposed party charter.

The battle threatens to wreck National Chairman Robert S. Strauss' strenuous unity efforts. It could erupt into a party-splitting fight between regulars and reformers at the special 1974 convention that will write the charter.

The current battleground is the 160-member Charter Commission, headed by former Gov. Terry Sanford of North Carolina, a 1972 presidential also-ran and the president of Duke University.

The commission, which holds its next meeting July 20 in Fort Collins, Colo., is charged with drafting a proposed party charter that will then be submitted to the 1974 convention for approval. It will determine the shape of the party organization between 1974 and 1976 and, perhaps, influence the next presidential nomination.

ONE FACTION, which includes some who developed the party's controversial 1972 McGovern delegate selection reforms, appears to favor creation of a highly structured party organization with increased emphasis on issues.

The other faction, which includes Strauss and his allies among elected Democratic officials and organized labor appears to favor something that would formalize the present structure.

"The real fight is between doing nothing and real substantive changes," said Anne Wexler of Connecticut, a commission member and a key figure in development of the 1972 reforms by the panel headed by Sen. George McGovern.

Mrs. Wexler confirmed that a number of commission members were holding an "educational" session in Boston this weekend with a group of professors.

WHILE STRAUSS declined to discuss the matter publicly, some of those close to him were known to feel

Plenty of room

There's room to spare, as these lovely models find out, on the modern bed, which is a far cry in size from the bed of yesteryear. Reason is that man has grown from an average of 5 feet 6 inches in the Middle Ages to nearly 6 feet tall today. As a result, the old-fashioned double bed of 53 by 75 inches has grown to the popular queen size of 60 by 80 inches. This mattress is on display at the Chicago National Home Furnishings Market opening today.

Overspending, juggling books charged to Navy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The General Accounting Office says its investigation of Navy overspending found several unsubstantiated adjustments that squared the books with authorized spending levels.

"In other words," Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said in releasing the report Saturday, "someone tried to adjust the books to hide this overspending."

He said convictions for willfully making false entries in the books would carry penalties ranging from five to 10 years in jail and fines of $5,000 to $10,000.

ASPIN said he has asked the Justice Department to investigate.

The Navy acknowledged to Congress that it spent $109.7 million more than Congress authorized between 1969 and 1972 but denied that the violation of the Antifraud Act was willful.

The report by the GAO on its investigation, made at Aspin's request, drew no conclusions on wrongdoing.

It said the basic cause of the overspending was that money for pay, allowances and travel was not authorized by the same men who were responsible for keeping spending within the amounts Congress authorized.

FURTHER, it said, the Bureau of Naval Personnel, which had that responsibility, under estimated in some cases how fast the money was being spent, and reports of actual spending were slow

Gas stations in Oregon now open parttime

The Associated Press

Drivers who run out of gas in Oregon on Sundays or after 8 p.m. may have to hike a bit to find more.

An Auto Club of Oregon survey released Saturday shows 90 per cent of the major brand stations checked were operating on shorter hours. Sunday closures were frequent.

The report said some stations are limiting gasoline purchases, but most will sell it in unlimited quantities as long as it lasts.

GM said there has been no determination why the airbag fired in the Lowell accident. They are set to go off and protect passengers from harm when impacted by the force of a 10-mile-per-hour collision.

GM said it was too early to speculate on what effect—if any—the accidental firing might have on the firm's plans to have airbags as optional equipment on some of its 1974 model Cadillacs, Buicks and Oldsmobiles.

Indian rakes Congress

KYLE, S.D. (UPI) — A Senate subcommittee studying the Indian takeover of Wounded Knee, S.D., was told Saturday Congress speaks of help for Indians, but has only passed legislation which takes away the sovereignty of the Indian people.

The comment came from Richard Wilson, Oglala Sioux tribal chairman, who appeared before the subcommittee headed by Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D. The hearing was to continue here and at Pine Ridge, S.D., through Sunday.

Militant American Indian Movement (AIM) leader Russell Means was also scheduled to testify.

"WE HAVE faced hostile congresses that speak of good plans for self-help and economic development for our people, but which constantly attempt to pass legislation designed to erode the sovereignty of tribal government," Wilson said.

"Tribal governments have had to fight year in and year out for basic treaty rights in United States courts. We have spent millions of dollars in doing so. That money might have been spent for land development and human resource development," he said.

"Now we have been faced fighting Indians and non-Indians from other parts of the country," he said, adding he felt AIM had failed to help Indians in the urban areas and now seeks to destroy tribal government on the reservations.

Wilson also criticized organized churches for their support of the occupiers of Wounded Knee. He was primarily critical of the National Council of Churches.

Talk about a factional struggle is 'Washington Paranoia. . . This commission is extremely well-balanced' —Terry Sanford that development of an ideological party would be "a political disaster" that would narrow its base.

They see particular significance in the presence of Rick Stearns, a key 1972 McGovern aide who has been working as a consultant to Sanford.

In the middle is Sanford who contends that talk about a factional struggle is "Washington paranoia."

"My guess is that this is an extremely well-balanced commission, representing all elements of the party and determined to work together in uniting the party," he said in a telephone interview.

Although the 55-year-old Duke president is doing extensive fieldwork, he denied he was using the commission to do groundwork for a 1976 presidential bid, declaring "there are a lot easier ways to do that."

SANFORD has already had his differences with Strauss, who wanted the commission chairman to dismiss his deputy staff director, Joseph Grandmaison.

Another dispute came when members of the commission's executive committee reacted angrily to Strauss' appointment of an Advisory Planning Committee on the 1974 conference, headed by Utah's Wayne Black.

The executive committee voted at a May 31 meeting in Chicago to seek a clarification of the Black committee's role and assurances it would deal with logistics, not the substance of the Charter Commission proposals.

Strauss, in a letter last week to Sanford and members of the National Committee, stressed the Black committee's role was primarily to work on logistics, particularly the selection of a site.

It will however review the Charter Commission's recommendations on the makeup of the conference.

The composition, to be considered at the Colorado meeting, is crucial since a mid-term convention shaped along the lines of the party's 1972 convention could have strong support for the kind of charter opposed by Strauss and the regulars.

THE SHAPE of the conference is restricted by a requirements that at least two-thirds of the delegates be elected from a unit no larger than a congressional district and that one-sixth be elected officials.

Sanford indicated he was leaning personally to electing two from each of the nation's 435 congressional districts, which would mean an over-all convention of about 1,300.

Some party officials say privately they fear that, whatever the make-up of the convention, those interested in reform may be able to capture a majority of the posts on what they think will likely be a small vote. Others say, however that a small vote will play into the hand of party regulars.

Auto safety test

Airbag device misfires

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp., which has been road testing airbags in 1,000 cars since last fall, Saturday confirmed reports one of the bags went off by mistake Wednesday. It caused minor injury to a woman passenger.

GM said the mishap occurred near Lowell, Mass., but declined to identify the passenger, who suffered a broken thumb.

GM said it was the first time over eight million miles of test driving that one of the safety-restraint airbags went off accidentally.

GM said there has been no determination why the airbag fired in the Lowell accident. They are set to go off and protect passengers from harm when impacted by the force of a 10-mile-per-hour collision.

GM said it was too early to speculate on what effect—if any—the accidental firing might have on the firm's plans to have airbags as optional equipment on some of its 1974 model Cadillacs, Buicks and Oldsmobiles.

Big Midwest storms kill 3

United Press International

Severe summertime storms dumped heavy rain and hail on the upper Midwest Saturday and winds caused heavy property damage in Northern Illinois.

Three deaths were blamed on the storms. Showers and thunderstorms spread from the Gulf Coast up the Mississippi River Valley. A tornado watch was posted for portions of Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Illinois and Wisconsin.

A lightning bolt that struck Pioneer Park in Arlington Heights, Ill., a suburb of Chicago, killed Dan Bruding, 14. In Chicago, Curtis Wallace, 30, was dead on arrival at a hospital after taking refuge under a tree that was struck by lightning during a thunderstorm.

A GOLFER was killed when he was hit by lightning on a fairway at Crestview Country Club at Wichita, Kan., during a sudden thunderstorm. A seiche in the southern end of Lake Michigan washed hundreds of dead fish into a parking lot near Chicago's Belmont Harbor. Water was curb deep an hour later and witnesses told of the interior of cars being flooded by the fish-fouled waves. No injuries were reported.

Uprooted trees and damaged roofs were reported in several communities in Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin after a squall line passed through the area.

Two light planes on the ground at Dacy Airport near Harvard, Ill., were demolished and several other planes were damaged when airport authorities said a tornado touched down on the runway at mid-afternoon.

Extensive property damage, blocked highways and downed power lines were reported in the city of Harvard, 45 miles northwest of Chicago. A man in a shed struck lightning was stunned but no seriously injured, police said.

An estimated 6,300 electric customers were without power for a time in Chicago's north and northwest suburbs and on the northwest side of the city. Lightning started a fire in the roof of a photographic supply plant in the suburb of Lincolnwood.

2 F111s collide; Viets still firing

HONOLULU (AP) — Two U.S. Air Force F111 aircraft collided over Cambodia on Saturday and one of the swing-wing jets crashed, the U.S. Pacific Military Command reported.

The two crewmen of the F111 which crashed ejected and were rescued uninjured. The other aircraft landed safely, the command said.

The crash occurred about 30 miles northwest of Phnom Penh. The plane was the seventh American aircraft lost over Cambodia since the Vietnam cease-fire, and the 10th F111 lost in Southeast Asia since 1968.

The command also reported that U.S. aircraft, including B52s, continued operations over Cambodia on Saturday at the request of the Cambodian government. It was the 102nd straight day that the heavy bombers have been operating over Cambodia.

U.S. bombers dropped 53,761 tons of bombs on Cambodia in May, a decrease of about 1,000 tons from April, according to new Pentagon figures.

The Air Force is sending out about 40 B52s a day from bases in Thailand and Guam instead of the previous 60 sorties a day. The goal is to save money. The level of BELFAST (UPI) — Police Saturday found the body of a 17-year-old Roman Catholic killed by Protestant gunmen and hunted for two more victims.

Protestants kill Ulster teen-ager

The Ulster Freedom Fighters (UFF), a Protestant extremist group, said they killed Daniel Rouse and two others in retaliation for the death of Protestant militant leader Tommy Herron's brother-in-law Friday.

Police found Rouse's body lying in a building site in West Belfast after the UFF telephoned local newspapers and told them they had killed Rouse and two others.

The death raised the toll to 826 persons killed in almost four years of violence among Protestants, Catholics and security forces in Northern Ireland.

In Downtown Belfast Saturday a car loaded with explosives exploded near an army outpost, seriously injuring a crippled man passing the area in his invalid car. Another bomb exploded outside a police station in Londonderry, but caused no casualties.

Meanwhile, in Dublin, police reported the arrest Friday of a 16-year-old youth as a suspect in the slaying of a seven-year-old boy found crucified on the rafters of a neighbor's attic.

Arabs predict Israeli attack

Beirut (UPI) — The Palestinian guerrilla news agency said Saturday that Israel is massing a large troop buildup in its history along the entire length of its border with Syria and Lebanon.

The agency WFA said the troop concentrations were larger than the buildup that preceded the Arab-Israeli war of June, 1967.

The agency said it expected a massive Israeli attack against both Syria and Lebanon within 48 hours.

(In Tel Aviv, the Israeli military command declined for the second consecutive day to comment on the Arab reports of a troop buildup. "We do not comment on reports from Arab capitals and we do not comment on troop movements," a military spokesman said.)

Beirut newspapers said Israeli patrols from the occupied Golan Heights made brief forays into Lebanon Friday.

The French language newspaper L'Orient-Le Jour said the incursions took place near Chebaa, at the foot of Mount Hermon, in southeast Lebanon. It said the patrols penetrated about 300 yards inside Lebanese territory.

Press reports from the border area said local residents noticed increased Israeli patrolling and signs of a military buildup on the southern borders of Lebanon and Syria Thursday and Friday.

The reports said the Lebanese army and guerrilla units were "on full alert" in the region. They feared an Israeli reprisal attack following a clash Wednesday between an Israeli patrol and guerrillas near the border of south Lebanon, the reports said.

Lebanese socialist leader Kamal Jumblatt had said Thursday the Soviet ambassador to Lebanon, Sarvar Azimov, told him he thought an Israeli attack on Lebanon was "imminent." Jumblatt said he had received reports that the Syrians also were expecting an attack.

However, newspaper commentators said Saturday an Israeli attack appeared unlikely at this stage because of the impending meeting between President Nixon and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev and because of the current United Nations debate on the Middle East.

U.S. envoy quits Egypt

CAIRO (AP) — Washington's top envoy in Egypt has resigned, leaving one of the United States' critical diplomatic posts vacant at a time when the U.N. Security Council is debating the Middle East at Egypt's request.

Joseph N. Greene Jr. leaves Egypt on Thursday to become the first director of the new Yale University Center for Scholarship and Creative Thinking.

He is departing after 31 years in the Foreign Service, including 16 months in a post where he was held at arm's length by President Anwar Sadat and his aides.

Greene has not had formal ambassadorial rank because the United States and Egypt have not had diplomatic relations since the 1967 war.

Captive Jew in Russia tells of plight

By JAMES R. PEIPERT

MOSCOW (AP) — Kiril Khenkin described himself as "just a plain, crushed Jew."

He shook his head wearily over the assertion by Leonid I. Brezhnev that there is no Jewish problem in Russia.

Khenkin, a 57-year-old former writer and translator for Radio Moscow, belongs to a group called "otkazniki." Derived from the Russian word for refuse, the term applies to Jews refused permission to emigrate to Israel.

BREZHNEV'S denial of any Jewish problem came at a news conference Thursday two days before the Soviet Communist party leader left for a Washington summit. It

"I was given a visa, and when I was ready ... it was taken away" tended to confirm the suspicions of otkazniki that talks between President Nixon and the general secretary are likely to do little to improve their lot.

Most of what Brezhnev said about Soviet Jews, Khenkin has heard before from lower-ranking officials and usually in less polite terms.

Khenkin said in a talk in his apartment that he can't speak for all the otkazniki, but that his case is "fairly typical" of Jews denied exit visas for what they consider arbitrary reasons.

Brezhnev told the newsmen that "I and my colleagues ... are tired of having to answer this question" on Jewish emigration, and asked: "What are we supposed to do in this problem?"

Khenkin commented "I can say what I want them to do personally."

"I was given a visa, and when I was ready to go it was taken away from me. I would like first of all to get my visa back. I would also like a reply to a letter I wrote to Brezhnev in January."

KHENKIN and his wife Irina applied for exit papers last Sept. 10 and got them Nov. 20 after he was blackballed from freelance translation work. On Dec. 2, two days before the couple was to leave, the visas were canceled.

"I have never received an explanation," Khenkin said. "I have never done any classified work. I've been a journalist and translator at Radio Moscow for 20 years. I've exhausted all possibilities of petitioning here."

Khenkin scoffed at Brezhnev's claim that only persons whose emigration would damage national security are kept here and that there is no law preventing a person's departure "if it is justified."

"We have the feeling that we are dealt with outside the boundaries of the law, and that is precisely what we are complaining about," he said.

Brezhnev told the U.S. newsmen that 41,180 Jews had left the Soviet Union from January 1972, the month of the first significant outflow, through May of this year.

The otkazniki, however, have captured most of the attention of the world public, and particularly of Jewish organizations in the United States.

WWII killings

MOSCOW (UPI) — A court in the Soviet Ukraine has sentenced two men, one of them a Soviet-born West German citizen, to death by firing squad for treason in World War II, the West German Embassy said Saturday.

The embassy said sentences were handed down Thursday at a trial in Alexandrovka against Alexander Dinkel, 65, and an unidentified Russian.

They were accused of killing 15 Soviet citizens during World War II when both were serving in the Soviet army.

"There are about 235 otkazniki families for the whole of the Soviet Union," estimated one knowledgeable Jewish source.

He said the list includes such remote cities as Irkutsk and Novosibirsk and totals anywhere from 700 to 1,000 individuals.

Among them are prominent scientists and figures in the arts, such as electrochemist Benjamin G. Levich and dancer Valery Panov, formerly a soloist with Leningrad's prestigious Kirov Ballet.

By requesting an invitation from Israel — the first step in the long, tedious exit process — a prospective Soviet emigrant from his job, harassed by the police, socially ostracized, or, in the case of Panov, publicly branded a traitor to his country.

One group of out-of-work scientists began a hunger strike last Sunday in a Moscow apartment to protest what they called "a new kind of serfdom."

The seven physicists and mathematicians all were fired from their jobs but were refused exit visas.

One of the hunger strikers, mathematician Anatoly Libgober, was told he will get a visa Monday, but his friends said he will continue the strike until he has the visa in hand.

The authorities "are giving a few permission to go, just to spark some hope and keep the others quiet because of this hope," said journalist Khenkin. "The others — they try to scare them out of their wits by dragging them off, the KGB and whatnot."

"You know, the usual stuff."

Brezhnev — tough, cautious, shrewd

Editor's note — Like Nikita Khrushchev, Leonid Brezhnev has business in mind. But to Americans who remember Khrushchev's style, Brezhnev will seem almost stolid. There's not a chance Brezhnev's visit to the United States will entertain, divert or shock his hosts like his predecessor's did in 1959.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special correspondent

Sure things are rare in the uncertain realm of world politics, but Americans can be dead sure of one thing. It will be a lot different this time playing host to the reigning Soviet leader.

There's not a chance that Leonid I. Brezhnev's visit will entertain, divert or shock his hosts in anything remotely approaching the manner of his mercurial predecessor, the late Nikita Khrushchev. There'll be none of the joyous mayhem that attended the 1959 Khrushchev coast-to-coast tour.

IN SOME respects the situation now resembles that of 14 years ago. De- tention was in the air then, too. The cold war seemed melting a bit and Khrush-rebellion against established Communist rule.

IN LOS ANGELES, annoyed by what he regarded as hostility, Khrushchev threatened to go home, though there wasn't a chance — he was having too good a time. Instead he lectured and lambasted his hosts at a glamor-splattered Hollywood lunch. He exploded with indignation because Disneyland was not on his itinerary, dismissing as nonsense the claim that security would have been hard to arrange there.

"They won't let me go to Disneyland," Khrushchev roared. "What do you have there — rocket-launching pads?"

Pursued by hordes of press of all nationalities, Khrushchev inspected a supermarket in a San Francisco suburb and it was a shambles of toppled shelves, scattered cans, smashed cases and panicky customers as the retinue struggled desperately to keep up with his stormy pace and record it in words and film.

In Iowa, the same horde tramped after Khrushchev through the prized corn on Farmer Roswell Garst's Coon Rapids farm.

"Turn the bulls on them!" Khrushchev gleefully advised an angered farmer Garst.

THE INDEFATIGABLE peasant from Kallovka wound up his tour at the presidential hideaway in Maryland, talking in private with President Dwight D. Eisenhower. From that talk emerged the "Spirit of Camp David." Eight months later the "Spirit" was shot down by the missile that downed a U2 spy plane over Russian soil. The event caused a livid Khrushchev, already in Paris for the meeting, to torpedo a four-power summit.

The thaw had ended. When Khrushchev next saw the United States in October, 1960, it was to attend a U.N. summit of world leaders. There he tried to arraign the United States as an "aggressor" because of the spy plane episode.

Khrushchev shouted, stormed, led satellite diplomats in a rhythmic banging of fists and once, to the astonishment of the assembly, removed his shoe and used it to pound the desk before him.

Brezhnev will be a far different sort of visitor — reserved, proper, looking more like a corporation president than a proletarian. Brezhnev can be earthy, too, when occasion demands, but he chooses the occasions carefully.

ing and he employs gadgets to cut down on his smoking, too, just like an American executive.

Like Khrushchev, Brezhnev seems convinced of the historic inevitability of world socialism. Like Khrushchev, he rose unexpectedly prominence through his Communist Party position.

Like Khrushchev, he found that dictatorship functions uncertainly without a dictator. Like Khrushchev, he made himself clearly the authoritative voice of both party and government. Brezhnev in title is only general secretary of the party. In name the chairmanship of the Council of Ministers belongs to Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, a pale and aging technician. It is not the titular head of government but Brezhnev who directs both foreign and domestic policy.

Khrushchev's one-man show began to develop slowly after the Soviet military action in Hungary; Brezhnev's after similar Soviet military action to crush a Czechoslovak reform, again on the Khrushchevian assumption that Moscow has a right to do that anywhere in its orbit. In each case it seemed there had been deep division in the Politburo, resolved at the height of the crisis by the man in charge of the party.

AS IN Khrushchev's case, Brezhnev's acquisition of power was accompanied by a buildup, the creation of a cult. A Communist dictator is undressed without a body of "works" to his credit, and in the cases of both Khrushchev and Brezhnev, "works" were assembled — actually a collection of speeches and pontifical pronouncements.

When Khrushchev was at the crest of his power, he began a movement to write a new constitution to replace the Stalin constitution of 1936. He ran out of time. Now there is talk of a new constitution again, this time the Brezhnev constitution. Brezhnev is 66 and likely to want to speed up the process.

Brezhnev's regime differs little from Khrushchev's in terms of personnel. If anything, the Politburo is more pronouncedly superannuated, its average age upped a bit to 69 with the latest shakeup. The chev was having difficulties with his economy, his agriculture and his generals.

Brezhnev faces some of the same problems and possible pitfalls that confronted his effervescent predecessor. He is aware that Khrushchev's handling of relations with Washington was among the important factors in the 1964 overthrow, an event in which Brezhnev participated.

Brezhnev's American visit may be more important for its long-range impact, but it cannot possibly be as memorable as Khrushchev's. Like Brezhnev, Khrushchev had business in mind. He arrived in America with a profession of "pure heart and good intentions," noting that Americans had things to sell and there were things Russians wanted to buy. But to Americans who remember the style of the bald, squat proletarian, Brezhnev will seem by comparison almost a stolid capitalist.

Khrushchev, given to loud and lusty vulgarity, had little patience with the niceties of polished diplomacy. It would seem, retrospectively, he probably believed much of what he said and was genuinely puzzled why his missionary zeal for spreading communism should be regarded by Americans as menacing. Stunned by a note of American rejection, Khrushchev reacted with all the subtlety and finesse of a piledriver.

In New York, reminded that he had told the West "We will bury you," he was furious. The capitalist press, he felt, deliberately distorted that remark (he had meant only that it was historically inevitable for "socialism" to bury capitalism.)

When questioners recalled the Soviet army's brutal strangulation of the 1956 Hungarian revolution, Khrushchev retorted inelegantly:

"The Hungarian question has stuck in some people's throats like a dead cat; they feel it unpleasant but can't spit it out." The implication was that Moscow had every right to stamp out any

This time Brezhnev is on top

MOSCOW (UPI)—Leonid I. Brezhnev goes to the Washington summit today as the stronger politically of the super-leaders. A year ago, over the green baize tables in the Kremlin, it was the other way around.

The 66-year-old general secretary of the Soviet Communist Party is at the apex of his political power. He is more than ever the "first among equals" in the collective leadership.

President Nixon, fighting the Watergate Whirlpool, is no longer the self-assured chief executive who mined Haiphong harbor on the eve of the Moscow summit and got away with it.

Then, Brezhnev needed Nixon more than Nixon needed Brezhnev. The Soviet Leader wanted—and won—a new deal with the U.S. that would cement the foundation of his ambitious, and politically dangerous, program of better relations with the West.

NOW IT is Nixon who needs Brezhnev to help him try to surge back into command of the pre-Watergate public confidence he enjoyed.

Against this topsy-turvy background, Brezhnev journeys to Washington today for the first time, his shopping list headed by American trade and technology.

He is expected to press for confirmation that the U.S. is keen on long-term economic agreements and that Nixon can deliver the promised "Most-favored-nation" trade status that is the lynchpin of future economic cooperation.

Consolidation of the gains made during the past year will be stressed rather than any new major agreements, sources familiar with Soviet-American planning said.

Brezhnev — shrewd, cautious

Ministers of government are getting on in years, too. This means many of those at the top were educated in the Stalin era, imbued with Stalinist philosophy as they climbed through the ranks.

THUS IF Brezhnev's regime reverts to aspects of Stalinism in domestic affairs, it is not surprising. Khrushchev tried liberalization in 1956 when he denounced Stalin's memory, but reverted to aspects of Stalinism when liberal experiments created ferment throughout the orbit.

At the same time, today's regime has no direct link any more to the era of revolutionary Bolshevism. Brezhnev was only 10 at the time of the 1917 Bolshevik takeover. Today's Soviet leaders in fact are protectors of the status quo, conservatives allied with other conservatives in guarding the privileges of the ruling party, the military and the scientific and economic leaderships.

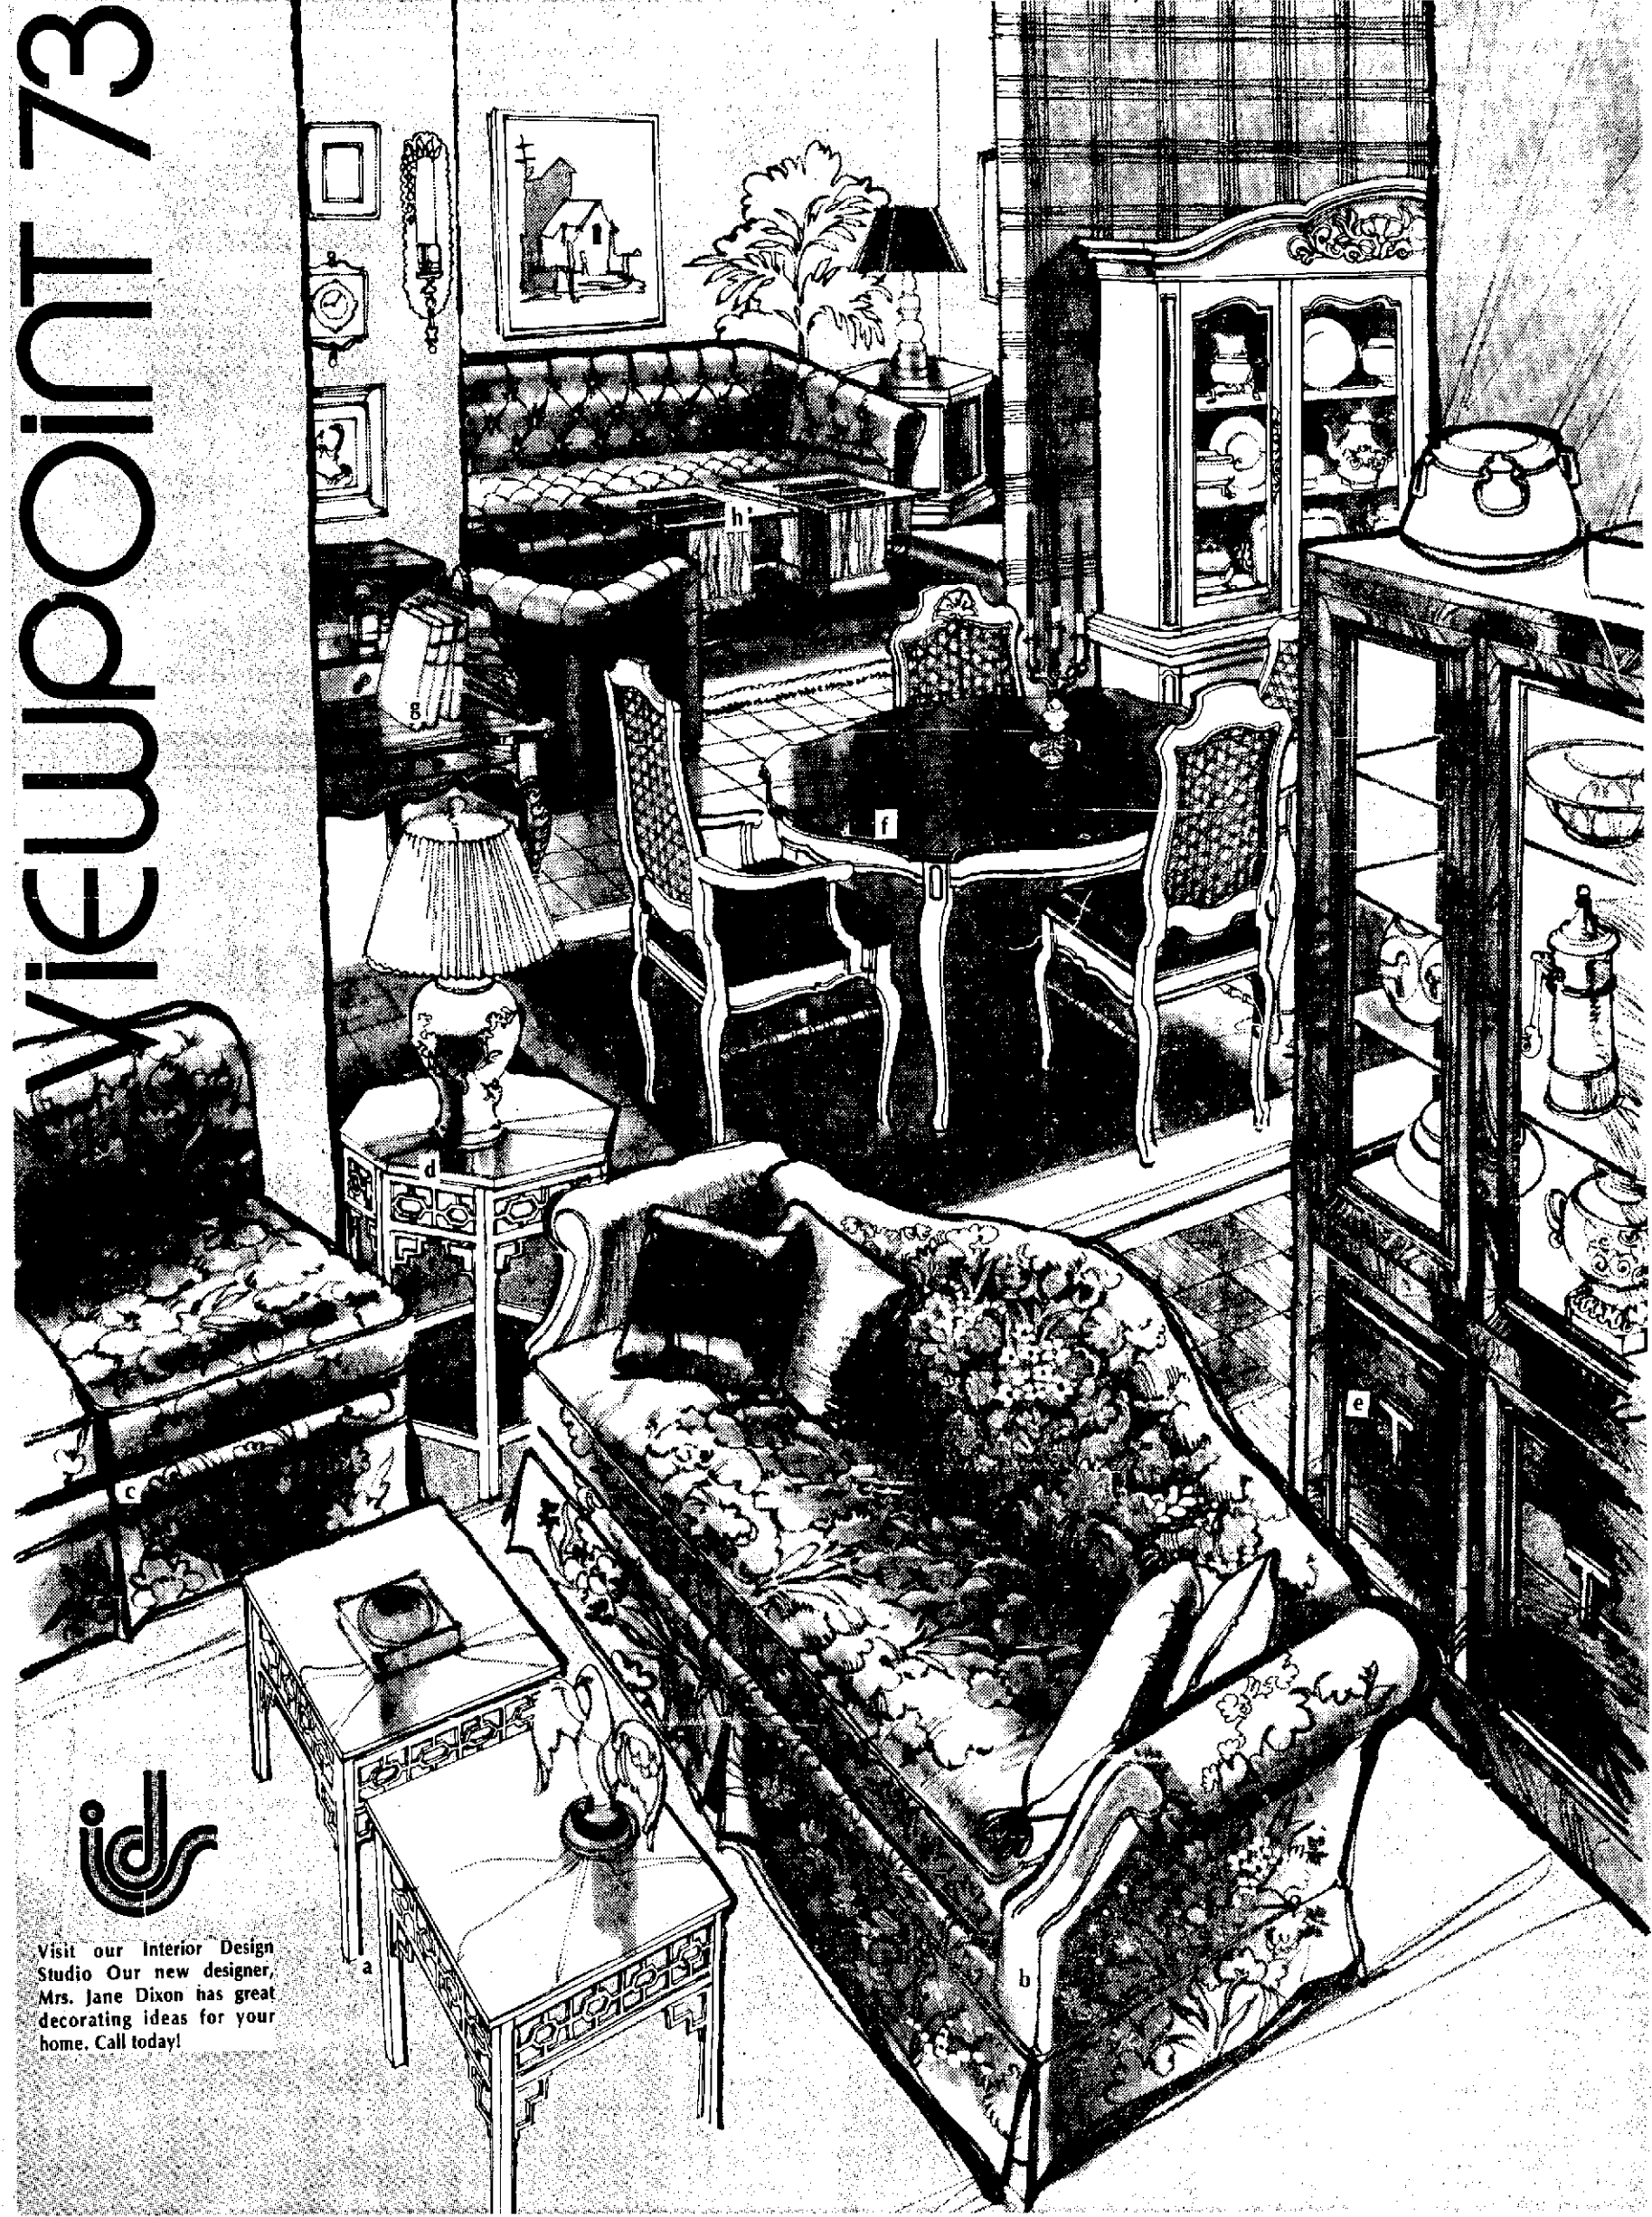

The military had much to do with settlement of the power crisis after Stalin's death, much to do with shielding Khrushchev from his powerful political enemies and a good deal to do with overthrowing him later.

Brezhnev, participating in the coup against Khrushchev, began his own regime, therefore, as a political conservative owing a debt to the military and the Communist Tories. They will be watching his activities in the United States closely, as they had watched Khrushchev's.

Like his host, President Nixon, Brezhnev is beset by monumental domestic difficulties. Like his host, he has staked his niche in history on his conduct of foreign affairs.

Hinders search for Reagan successor

Watergate frustrates state GOP

By BILL STALL
AP Political Writer

SACRAMENTO — Watergate is frustrating efforts of California Republicans to find a winning successor to Gov. Reagan in 1974.

One informed GOP source said "there's a chilling effect" on budding Republican campaigns for governor in the state.

An offshoot of this and related issues is increasing talk in top Republican circles of trying to persuade Reagan to reverse his flat no-third-term edict and run again. His reply so far has been a firm "nope."

Many blue-chip GOP leaders are intent on avoiding the sort of blood-letting primary for governor a year for now that would:

— Rip apart the party harmony that has existed the past 6½ years under Reagan and cripple chances of retaining the governorship.

— Draw heavily on campaign fund sources already depleted by the President's 1972 re-election drive. An estimated $9 million was raised in California for the Nixon campaign — most of it spent elsewhere.

— Until now, Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke has been considered the GOP frontrunner and heir apparent to Reagan's unofficial support and the backing of many of Reagan's big contributors.

But one key Reagan supporter was quoted recently as saying Reinecke's campaign was "falling flat." And the name of Reinecke's top under chairman Reagan.

Robert H. Finch, one of Nixon's oldest friends and political allies, apparently is still trying to decide whether to run for governor, U.S. senator or whether to run at all. Finch, a former Nixon cabinet officer, said earlier he planned to decide by this June.

While Finch has not been implicated in Watergate in any way, a political associate of his said "he obviously has to wait" to see what the Watergate fallout will be in California.

The other two potential candidates are state Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger and state Controller Houston I. Flournoy.

Younger has complained openly about the fundraising tactics of the Nixon campaign last year and said money would be a problem for Republicans in 1974.

"When the President's people came through last year, they were ruthless," he told a luncheon with newsmen recently. "They twisted arms and took all the loose change."

Flournoy is a moderate without close political ties to Nixon or Reagan. He is making speaking appearances around the state but generally is keeping a low profile as a candidate.

The GOP official who said Watergate has had "a chilling effect" on maneuvering for 1974 was state Assemblyman William T. Bagley of San Rafael, considering a try for controller, if Flournoy seeks another office.

"If I'm going to be a commodity in 1974, I just simply have to wait, take a deep breath and extend the antenna and calculate," Bagley said Friday.

He said Finch "obviously has to wait also — more than anyone else."

Bagley said a number of Republicans were hoping "with fingers crossed" that Watergate might trigger a reverse reaction — generating sympathy for Nixon and support for Republicans who had no involvement in it.

But fundraising remains

JFK memorial set in Lakewood

By BOB HOUSER

Torchbearers of Lakewood Democratic Club will meet at 2 p.m., June 24, in the Lakewood Country Club King's Room to coordinate plans for the club's statewide memorial to President John F. Kennedy, Nov. 23.

Beverly Brons, club president, announced that Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti has agreed to be an assistant coordinator for the event. U.S. Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., is a sponsor.

Antiloitering bill

State Sen. Joseph M. Kennick, D-Long Beach, said he would co-author a bill to crack down on loitering near public schools.

The measure, introduced by Assemblyman Bill Greene, D-Los Angeles, revises penal code language on vagrancy so that it also relates to outsiders who loiter, without valid reason, near school grounds.

Kennick, former head of the Long Beach Juvenile Bureau, expressed concern over violence triggered by outsiders in some California school yards.

Keith Howdyshell, vice president of Great Western Savings and Loan Assn., will speak at the Monday noon salad bar luncheon of North Long Beach Republican Women Federated in Houghton Park Club House, 6301 Myrtle Ave. It will be the club's last meeting until fall.

Howdyshell has extensive credits in amateur show business.

Rev. William L. Epperling, pastor of the Redeemer Baptist Church of Los Angeles, will speak on the pressures and problems of urbanization for the Long Beach Evening Division Republican Women Federated at 7:15 p.m., Thursday, in the O'Donnell Conference Room, 3350 Olive Ave. Refreshments will be served.

Democratic 'revival'

Five Democratic gubernatorial hopefuls will speak at a Democratic "old fashioned tent revival" at 6 p.m., Saturday, at Mission Viejo at Oso Parkway off the San Diego Freeway in Orange County.

Speakers will be San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto, Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, State Senate Floor Leader George Eoscone and Congressman Jerome R. Waldie, Antioch.

Bond to testify on redistricting

Assemblyman Bill Bond, R-Long Beach, will appear before the special masters of the California Supreme Court Monday in Los Angeles to offer testimony regarding reapportionment of state legislative districts.

The court has assumed responsibility for setting congressional, state Senate and Assembly district boundaries as the result of a three-year legislative impasse. The court's special hearings to hear reapportionment criteria began Tuesday in Sacramento. Additional hearings are scheduled for Los Angeles, San Diego and San Francisco.

Bond said Saturday that the court "has a unique opportunity to draft districts to achieve the goal of 'one-man, one-vote.' Whereas legislatures always give first priority to the preservation of incumbents, this factor can and should be the least of the court's considerations."

"For the past several months I have been developing a nonpartisan proposal to remove the authority for reapportionment from the Legislature and assign it to a commission that is independent of government."

"As a part of the project I will be developing guidelines and criteria for reapportionment that will rule out the possibility of gerrymandering so that the true will of the public will be reflected in election results. Ultimately I intend to place this package on the ballot via the initiative process."

Bond said that if the court does its job properly, the result will

The state party wound up with a $250,000 debt, which was wiped out two weeks ago with a successful fundraising dinner honoring Reagan.

A group of major Nixon backers tried to organize a drive earlier this year to narrow the GOP

CONSUMER NOTES

By DENISE KUSEL
Staff Writer

Variation on a theme

Your experience with the chain letter probably began when you were in high school and someone put your name at the bottom of a letter. The idea was that you would write to the first person on the list, send him a letter and add your name to the bottom of the list.

Soon, you would be having pen pals from all over the city — state — world. Big promises. Usually, too, somewhere along the line, it stopped and you never got a letter. But, then, it was only a letter and really not very important.

As we get older, we get more sophisticated, so does the chain letter scheme. Somewhere the fun changes to a "promised money-making proposition." If you ignore the basic law that you can't get something for nothing, you may have been taken in on such a scheme.

Consumer Notes received an inquiry from a reader who had a variation on the theme of chain or pyramid letters: this one is big money and the cash used is U.S. Savings Bonds.

The scheme goes something like this: you purchase a letter and a $25 U.S. Savings bond for $37.50. You then mail the savings bond to the first name on the list you have received with your initial purchase of a savings bond. You add your name to the bottom of the list and therefore are in line for a free savings bond, too.

Next, you purchase two additional savings bonds, type out two additional lists and try to sell them to two friends for $37.50 each.

You are promised great returns for your effort and initial investment.

If it sounds too simple. It is. It is also against the law. Chain letters and endless schemes constitutes a violation of Section 327 of the California State Penal Code. According to the Long Beach Police Department, there have been over 200 inquiries recently asking about the legality of this particular scheme.

The trouble with catching someone in a scheme such as a chain letter hoax is that people are usually too embarrassed to make a complaint when they find they've been out-smarted.

The safest thing to do is not to get involved in the first place.

Safety belt myths

In a booklet "Safety Belt Myths," The Transportation Department explodes misconceptions and tells why you should get into the habit of fastening your safety belt every time you enter your automobile.

If you feel safe without your belt, you should find out why.

For example, the booklet lists two common reasons for not using seat belts:

MYTH: "I don't need a safety belt when I'm traveling at a low speed or going on a short trip."

FACT: More than half of all accidents occur at speeds less than 40 miles an hour and within 25 miles of home.

MYTH: I might be saved if I'm thrown clear of the car."

FACT: The probability of death is five times greater for the motorist who is thrown from his car.

Other reasons on why you should buckle up are contained in the booklet, available for 10 cents from Consumer Produce Information, Pueblo, Colorado, 81009.

Bait and switch

Bait-and-switch schemes are picking up in the Long Beach area. Consumer Notes has reports of a sewing machine company using this method.

The salesman comes to your home. Tells you the advertised product is not really the one you're, claiming that it would probably fall apart after you've had it for awhile. The salesman also has in mind a similar product—it costs more. You, the consumer, have been baited with the offer of a good deal—and then the product was switched and you're actively being pressured into purchasing a higher priced product. This is in violation of Section 17500 of the California Business and Professions Code and also Section 1770 of the California Civil Code.

These statutes are a handy reference.

6 jailed, 1 shot after bank job

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The officer shouted "don't move" just as a hand holding a gun appeared from behind an upturned mattress in the dim recess of a private home garage.

A California Highway Patrolman fired a shotgun point blank into the mattress.

"IT'S A GOOD thing I did shoot him," said Patrolman Al Sisco later. "It turned out his gun had hollow point bullets. They make a big hole when they come out."

Wounded in the left arm and head was Floyd Calhoun, 26, of Sacramento, one of four men and two women ultimately rounded up and arrested for investigation in a $36,200 daylight bank robbery in Sacramento's suburban south area Friday.

A bank auditor was shot and three other employees were pistol-whipped during the holdup at the Florin Road branch of the Crocker National Bank, officers said.

Auditor Daniel Shank suffered a superficial gunshot wound. The other bank employees also were not seriously hurt.

SHERIFF'S deputies and patrolmen chased four bandits across a field and into an apartment complex. Three of the men were arrested in an apartment and two women were booked for investigation of harboring a fugitive.

Patrolman Sisco said he joined a deputy in searching a garage at a private home nearby.

As they neared the rear of the garage they saw slight movement behind the mattress tipped up against the back wall. Sisco said later.

"When he moved, I saw a hand and gun appear from the side of the mattress," he said.

AFTER he fired the shotgun into the mattress, Sisco said the man identified as Calhoun yelled, "Okay, okay. You got me. Don't shoot."

Calhoun was described as in satisfactory condition at Sacramento Medical Center.

Sheriff's Capt. Jerry Salter said two bags of money, two pistols and two shotguns were found in the apartment and a nearby auto.

Bomb-laden truck overturns

BAKERSFIELD (AP) — A tractor-trailer rig loaded with phosphorus bombs was rammed head-on by a car near here and overturned into a grape vineyard, the highway patrol said Saturday.

Kern County firemen were standing by, but no explosions were reported.

Investigators said the truck, driven by Bent L. Vaught, 39, of Inola, Okla., was enroute from Oklahoma City to Port Chicago, near Oakland, when the accident occurred.

The car, driven by Eliseo H. Lopez, 39, of Wasco, collided with a car waiting to make a turn on state route 46 west of highway 99, then bounced across the road and into the path of the oncoming bomb-laden truck, officers said. The impact tore the front off the car and jacked the trailer into the muddy vineyard. Lopez received major head injuries, investigators said, but Vaught was not injured.

Man killed, officer wounded

SACRAMENTO (AP) — One man was killed and a policeman wounded in a trailer court shooting Saturday after a dispute over unpaid rent, police reported.

The dead man was identified as Sidney S. Peterson, 61, who police said had a long record of minor threats and disturbances in the North Sacramento neighborhood.

anyone who comes in here to get me."

After unsuccessful appeals over a bullhorn for the man to come out, Riolo fired two teargas cartridges into the trailer, Foley said. Riolo was turning after firing a third teargas cartridge when hit in the back by a bullet fired from inside, he said.

Riolo was rushed to the hospital and officers made other attempts to persuade the man to come out, Foley said. At one point, the man's son went near the trailer and called for his father to surrender, but to no avail.

All of a sudden, the door to the trailer flew open and the man appeared holding a rifle, Foley said. He was killed by "a fusillade" of police bullets, he said.

Nixon data on cities rapped

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A big city Democratic mayor suggests, in light of the Watergate affair, that President Nixon re-examine the credibility of information from his staff on which he based proposals to cut federal spending on urban problems.

Mayor Norman Mineta of San Jose says that justification supplied by the federal Office of Management and Budget "for the termination, suspension or curtailment of many domestic programs are paper thin, highly subjective and totally unsupported by any backup data."

MINETA'S proposal was one of 56 resolutions presented to the U.S. Conference of Mayors 41st annual meeting, which began work here Saturday.

In addition to the Mineta proposal, another Watergate statement from San Francisco's Democratic Mayor Joseph Alioto also was to be considered by the resolutions committee. The committee's recommendations go to a vote by all 800 mayors and city officials present on the final day of the conference Wednesday.

At a news conference, Alioto said that his and Mineta's proposals "are trying to take Watergate as a political issue out of this conference. Let the Justice Department and the Senate committee do anything they want about Watergate. We're saying let's run the federal government, the state governments and the city governments, and let's not let Watergate distract us."

Mayor Moon Landrieu of New Orleans said, "particularly those of us who are Democrats feel that if the issue is handled at all it would best be handed in a very nonpartisan way."

"The mayors are more concerned with this 'Watergate budget,' said Milwaukee Mayor Henry Maier, a Democrat.

"That's the President's budget which is burglarizing housing environment, pollution problems, anything that might be of sustenance to the urban and poorer rural areas of this country."

This view was echoed by Richard J. Daley, Democratic Mayor of Chicago. "I don't think Watergate is as important to the people of the cities as their immediate need for things that will help people who can't help themselves."

There was disagreement over whether the Watergate affair has affected the mayors in their own jobs: "I can't say it has compounded my problems as mayor," Landrieu said. Ken Gibson, Democratic mayor of Newark, N.J., agreed.

But Lee Alexander, Democratic mayor of Syracuse, N.Y., said Watergate does affect the mayors. "It has demoralized the administration. It's no longer clear where the lines of authority are drawn," he said. "A domestic adviser John Ehrlichman as a result of Watergate it has been hard to find someone in the administration who could get things done."

John Gunther, executive director of the conference, said that since the departure of White House adviser John Ehrlichman as a result of Watergate it has been hard to find someone in the administration who could get things done.

Food stuff

A British nutritionist lecturing in Los Angeles recently commented that American breakfast foods are nutritionally worthless. Has the American public been misled about the food value of breakfast foods? Are Wheaties not food for champions? S.E.K., Long Beach.

Most vitamin-fortified dry breakfast cereals, when combined with milk, provide a nutritionally useful meal, most nutritionists feel. It is essential to read cereal box labels to see if the cereal has been fortified with important nutrients such as thiamin, niacin, riboflavin and iron, said a nutritionist for the Agricultural Extension Service of the University of California, Los Angeles, as when these cereals are processed for packaging, much of their natural food value is lost. Cooked, whole-grain cereals such as Cream of Wheat, grits and bran are not processed in such a way that their nutrients are lost, she said. For best nutrition she advised avoiding puffed cereals, which are mostly air, and pre-sweetened cereals which are too high in sugar.

Freeze?

I work for the Long Beach Convalescent Hospital. They won't give us a pay raise because they say wages are frozen. Is that correct? P.P., Long Beach.

Wages in your field are being regulated but are not frozen. Under Phase 3 of the federal government's wage-price stabilization, which went into effect Jan. 11, firms may not grant raises totaling more than 5.5 per cent per year, an Internal Revenue Service stabilization division spokesman said. In other industries voluntary "responsible wage behavior" is being used as the guideline for wage increases, he said. According to Fred Jackson, Long Beach Convalescent Hospital administrator, "We are giving raises based on merit. We've never at any time claimed the wage and price freeze is preventing us from granting raises. Some people just don't deserve raises."

Keep cool

There are about 45 people working in our air-conditioned accounting office. We have been debating about what temperature is best for top working efficiency. Can you tell us the answer? Mrs. G.C.C., Long Beach.

After checking several air conditioning authorities, the consensus we found was about 72 degrees with about 50 per cent relative humidity should produce the best working environment. However, with 45 people in one office, you may never find a temperature that suits everyone. The temperature one finds comfortable depends on many factors including age and activity.

Print it

We have an old book that has been in our family for many years. It was copyrighted in 1902 and we want to have it republished if it is no longer protected by copyright. How can we find out if it is protected and how can we go about having it republished if it isn't? B.H., Cypress.

You can legally republish the book. The copyright law says any book published in this country before 1906 is no longer protected by copyright and is in the public domain, according to W. H. Moore of the Copyright Office, Library of Congress, Washington, D.C. 20559. Originally, copyrights were protected for 28 years and could be renewed only once for an additional 28 years. However, in 1962 the law was changed to allow longer extensions. Upon request, the Copyright Office will check to see if a copyright on a book printed after 1906 but not within the past 28 years is still in effect. They charge a $5 per hour searching fee. For information on republishing your book, you can phone Edward Salatore of the California Information Almanac Co. in Lakewood at 421-3328, or other publishers listed in the yellow pages of the phone book.

Picnic weather will remain in Southland

The picnic weather that prevailed Saturday in the Long Beach area will continue today and Monday, according to the National Weather Service.

Forecasts call for a few night and morning low clouds but day-long sunshine, said a weather service spokesman. Highs today were expected to reach the mid-70s.

SHOOTING suspect Ernest Silas lies dying in Berkeley, shot by police outside a house where he held a group of hostages Saturday after killing a policeman. Below, Magic Wolff, 4, is carried from the house, where she was fatally shot.

Berkeley force, stopped Silas for questioning.

During an ensuing scuffle, while Rutledge tried to handcuff him, Silas got hold of Rutledge's gun and shot him fatally. He also wounded a neighbor, Stephen Levine, who tried to aid the officer by hitting Silas with an ax handle.

Police said Levine had seen Rutledge struggling with Silas.

Police said Silas was wearing black clothes, gloves and a black cap. But Insp. Earl Bergfeld also said the department was proceeding on the basis of information from witnesses and one of the hostages, Richard Priddy, who said they knew Silas and thought he was coming to visit.

PRIDDY said Silas, who has convictions for burglary, robbery and narcotics violations in the Midwest, told him later he had come to his door. Finding it locked, Priddy quoted Silas as saying, he left and was confronted by Rutledge on the sidewalk, and the scuffle and shooting followed.

Priddy said that after the shootings, Silas ran to his house, broke a window, and went in. Five adults and 4-year-old Magic Wolff, Priddy's daughter, were inside.

Nelson Inman and Ruth Gill, who were upstairs in the two-story frame house, managed to escape to the roof and Silas did not know they were there. Another man, John Hill, ran out of the house after Silas hit him with a gun butt.

Priddy said Silas repeatedly said, "you're trying to set me up,"

Deputy accidentally kills teen firebomb suspect

Daniel P. Garcia, 16, of 6722 Newell Ave., Huntington Park, suspected of fire-bombing an occupied mobile home, was accidentally shot to death early Saturday by a sheriff's deputy who was questioning him, a sheriff's spokesman reported.

Authorities said seven youths were arrested in the Florence area near 6358 Miramonte Blvd., where Louis Sergio Marquez reported that two firebombs were thrown at his trailer home.

They said that deputies lined the youths up for questioning and

Phase 4 price controls expected to be strong beans, could have an adverse impact on the U.S. balance of payments. He said he doesn't think the impact will be large, but added that the administration will not know for sure until it gets the information.

Wednesday, exporters of feed grains will have to make reports to the government on their new shipments. In the meantime, the administration is asking for new powers to limit exports of feed grains.

The Cost of Living Council was put in charge of developing the Phase 4 program. Director John T. Dunlop will head a special group of administration officials, who will begin immediately to work on alternate plans.

Meanwhile, the administration will soon begin a series of consultations with business, labor and the during the time he held Priddy, his daughter, and Diane Linkus hostage.

ABOUT 8:30 a.m., Silas' wife, Martha, who works as a private nurse in nearby Piedmont, was brought to the house. She talked to Silas through a window, then went inside.

Moments later, one shot was fired, and Priddy and Miss Linkus ran out, the woman screaming, "he shot the little girl!"

Shortly after, police said Silas came out carrying a gun, and he was immediately shot four times by an officer with a rifle stationed in the window of a neighboring house about 15 feet away.

An officer ran inside and found the child dead in her crib. The girl and Silas were taken by ambulances to a hospital. Police said Priddy and Miss Linkus were not harmed.

that Deputy Conrad Clark had taken Garcia aside to search him for evidence of gasoline odor when he noticed that his service revolver had slipped partially from his break-away holster. When he pulled out the gun to replace it he failed to notice that it had accidentally become cocked and it discharged, he said. The bullet struck Garcia in the side, piercing the liver.

Originally, Clark reported that he fired his gun after the youth lunged at him. However, late Saturday night the sheriff's office issued an amended account of the incident.

Meanwhile, the council said it expects that price rollbacks will be ordered in seven to nine industries as a result of intensive audits by the Internal Revenue Service of companies suspected of illegally boosting prices during Phase 3. The freeze applies also to rate increases granted by federal regulatory agencies. There were several that were caught, including a postal rate increase for second and third class mail, a railroad freight rate increase, and fare increases for foreign airlines' North Atlantic flights to the United States.

Nixon break-in role claimed

Krogh had served since 1969 as a White House aide to John D. Ehrlichman, now resigned as the President's domestic adviser, and Dean advised and counseled him on matters of executive privilege and national security before the hearings.

Sources said it was the information supplied to Dean by Krogh, coupled with what Dean earlier perceived to be "clues" about the extent of Nixon's knowledge about the cover-up of the Watergate bugging, that led the former White

House counsel to believe that the President's concern over executive privilege and national security during a series of more than 35 conversations in early 1973 was related to the cover-up.

The White House turned over to Dean on Thursday copies of his personal White House telephone logs and appointment books, the sources said, and those provide that, as reported earlier, he participated in 35 to 40 personal meetings or telephone conversations with the President between late January of this year and early April.

HOWEVER, the sources said, Dean will tell the Senate committee that the only explicit conversations he held with the President about the cover-up took place in late March, shortly before James W. McCord Jr., one of the convicted Watergate defendants, decided to break ranks with the other defendants and tell federal officials about his role in the break-in.

Throughout the previous months, the sources said, both McCord and E. Howard Hunt Jr., another Watergate participant, were putting pressure on the White House for more cash payments and guarantees of executive clemency in return for continued silence.

According to Dean, the sources said, the President asked him at one point how much the defendants would have to be paid to insure that silence, and Dean said an additional $1 million. The White House already had turned over $460,000 to the seven men and their attorneys, but Dean quoted the President as saying that there would be no problem in paying that amount, the sources continued.

SOURCES close to the case reported Dean as saying that some time soon after April 15, the day on which Nixon received a report from the federal prosecutors implicating a number of his top aides, the President brought up the remark about cash payments in another conversation with Dean and said, "Oh, by the way, I was kidding about that."

"The President was doing a little self-protection operation," the source, who has heard all of Dean's account, said.

Dean now has the view, a source said, and will express it before the Senate committee, that the President and his top advisers did not want him to testify "because they knew that Dean, under oath, wasn't going to lie; Dean had told the President that he couldn't lie under oath."

Skylab crew drills for return voyage

HOUSTON (UPI) — Skylab's astronauts Saturday successfully rehearsed their trip home but missed recording a new explosion on the sun because the earth blocked their view.

Charles "Pete" Conrad, Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz, aiming toward a Pacific Ocean splash-down Friday morning, noticed the dying end of the solar flare as they emerged from earth's shadow.

Ground observatories reported that the radiation outburst was brighter and larger in area than the major flare photographed a day earlier, but the new event was not quite as powerful in terms of X-ray output. Controllers decided not to have the astronauts aim Skylab's telescopes at it because it was nearly over when it came into the station's view.

Scientists praised the crew's photography of Friday's radiation outburst because it was the best and longest look at the spectacular explosions in the sun's atmosphere. They generate awesome amounts of energy.

During the checkout of the Apollo command ship, the astronauts pretended to leave the space station and head for earth. The Apollo, however, remained linked to Skylab throughout the dry run.

It was the first time during flight astronauts have simulated the precise rocket firings and exact navigation calculations required to send them safely back into earth's atmosphere. The pilots also practiced procedures to fly the Apollo around Skylab to give mission control a television look at the station's makeshift sunshade and repaired solar power wing.

The crewmen pushed buttons and flipped switches just as they will for the actual end of the record 28-day flight. They plan to land 800 miles southwest of San Diego at 6:50 a.m. PDT Friday.

What a scene — then and now!

THE OTHER evening I drove north of the border (the L.A.-L.B. border) to attend the premiere of "Grease," an ear-splitting playback of high school life during the 50s presented in awful wonderful detail.

Now that I've had time to evaluate the experience, I can't decide whether to write about the contrasts between then and now (the 50s and 70s) or here and there (Long Beach and Los Angeles).

For openers, though, I've got to say it's incredible how, in just 30 miles, the scene—also the cast of characters—can change so tremendously.

In fact, when a Long Beach habitue takes a night off from Kiwanis, cabin cruisers, the Garden Club and the Queen Mary to attend a play in Tinseltown, he gets a double bill.

First, there's the production on the stage and, then, there's the costume party staged by the audience.

WHEN WE arrived at the Shubert Theater in fountain-splashed, skyscraper-studded Century City, the show crowd was already milling around in the lobby.

There were women in jeweled pajamas, velvet pantsuits, frayed and or patched jeans, motorcycle jackets, caftans, miniskirts, flowered dresses with mink stoles, backless halters, barefoot thongs and see-through pants. I swear one lady was wearing a housecoat. Only the curlers were missing.

But it was the men who put on the big shooon. They get the Oscar.

There were aging males with ponytails, millionaires in expensive hippie "originals," Afro-coiffed black men in high heels and bell-bottoms, pseudo cowboys in studded denims, would-be actors in Edwardian suits.

One blonde male with elbow-length tresses had roots longer than mine. A young man who's probably never even seen a track field was wearing a lettered store-bought jersey—No. 52. His track shoes were shiny silver trimmed in gold.

Without a program it was impossible to tell the millionaires from the head waiters, the socialites from the secretaries, the character actors from the characters, the PHDs from the XYZs.

I titled the 70s production in the lobby "The Class Menagerie."

NOW ABOUT that new 50s musical comedy, "Grease." One reviewer describes it as "a trip back into the semi-recent, wonderfully obnoxious past."

It's a gross portrayal of the greasers of that day, depicted by a group of high school hoods, the Burger Palace Boys, and their equally hoody girlfriends, the Pink Ladies.

Greasy pompadours and duck-tails, the grease ball curl in front, tight skirts and leather jackets, aspirins in cokes, the finger gesture, hickies, rumble, stealing hubcaps and "does she make out"—all the explicit vulgarities are there, irresistibly tacky, embarrassingly true. If you're talking about greasers, that is.

For all youth of that era, probably the most universal reference is the music the kids in "Grease" dance to—"Rock around the Clock" and "We Go Together" and "Beauty School Drop-out."

This was the beginning of rock—the most vital turn music had taken since the swing era began. If the "Grease" kids seem raunchy, remember the music era as epitomized by Elvis the Pelvis, whose gyrations were so scandalous that Ed Sullivan wouldn't allow him to be photographed below the waist on his TV show.

WHEN I THINK of kids in the 50s, though, I think of poodle skirts and voluminous petticoats (remember how they created a traffic jam in school corridors?), cinched waists, bobby socks and ponytails and penny loafers.

This was the image of kids who made up the "Silent Generation," formed in relatively serene times: the Eisenhower years. Serenity was what the country needed. We'd been through a couple world wars and Korea and a depression. It was a time to disengage from crisis, to get ourselves together.

The end of the 50s came with John F. Kennedy who turned on the "Committed Generation" with his call for "a fire that could truly light the world." The natural idealism of youth was challenged to burn anew. The Peace Corps, vigor, style, "Ask not..."

And so went the 50s and the 60s and now we're into the 70s. And the way things are going, it looks like this decade will be the biggest show of all.

Closure peril halts Carmelitos fight

By CHARLES SUTTON
Staff Writer

The election of a new and enlarged Tenants Advisory Board at Carmelitos Housing Project appears to have ushered in an unaccustomed era of goodwill between the residents and the management of the strife-torn community in North Long Beach.

Ever since a sunny day in 1967, when a group of angry residents picketed the project manager's office over the persisting presence of cockroaches in their homes, Carmelitos has been a battleground between rebellious tenants and officials of the County Housing Authority.

Largely under the leadership of a forceful, heavy-set grandmother named Bea Bohenenkamp, the tenants fought for numerous improvements in the project and a voice in its management. But a recalcitrant housing authority, determined to hold on at all costs to its management prerogatives, resisted the attacks — and the result was two lengthy rent strikes, the first one lasting almost a year.

'After six years a curious peace...'

Today, six years after the skirmishing began, a curious peace has settled over that embattled community — and a new, more subtle struggle has begun: a struggle to save Carmelitos from extinction.

Not surprisingly, perhaps, the peace at Carmelitos has been accompanied by the fall from power of Mrs. Bohenenkamp, who, as a member of the Tenants Advisory Board (TAB) and a leader of the two strikes, had become a symbol of tenant intractability and toughness. Her resounding defeat in the April election of 11 new TAB board members was the signal of her repudiation by the other tenants. (The board formerly consisted of five tenant representatives.)

Observers say there were signs much earlier than April that the tenants were weary of fighting and tired of Mrs. Bohenenkamp's aggressive tactics, and would have voted her and her supporters out of office for those reasons alone. But when Supervisor James Hayes proposed in February that Carmelitos be phased out of existence because it had become an unmanageable slum, the die was cast. Her defeat was assured.

As Don Bryant explains it, Mrs. Bohenenkamp "was associated with both rent strikes, and the momentary reaction of the tenants (when they heard of the possible phaseout) was 'Oh, my God, we have to disassociate ourselves from her.'" Bryant is an attorney with the Long Beach Legal Aid Foundation and has represented striking tenants.

When Hayes called for the gradual dissolution of the project, he cited, in addition to Carmelitos' high rate of crime and vandalism (and assorted other social ills), the "irreconcilable differences between the management and tenants" of the project. His pointed allusions to the rent strikes apparently weren't lost on the tenants. No sooner was the new TAB board installed than the second rent strike was formally dissolved and the first signs of a detente began to emerge.

The new board's attitude is perhaps best summed up by tenant representative Gregory Lucero. "The past feud between the old TAB board and the housing authority no longer exists," he declares emphatically. "We're trying to work things out on a positive basis."

Significantly, Lucero adds that "everyone in the project is opposed to the phaseout. They want Carmelitos to stay open."

The overriding reason is survival. As bad as conditions at Carmelitos may be, the tenants realize that the supply of low-cost housing outside the project is sparse at best. In effect, they'd have nowhere to go. They also realize that in few places are impoverished families given the privilege of paying rents at 25 per cent of their income.

Someone once described Carmelitos as "an island of poverty and neglect surrounded by a sea of indifference."

For years Carmelitos had craved the attention of the "establishment" and the surrounding community, and now, ironically, it was getting it with a curious and unwanted vengeance.

But if outsiders have now raised the question of eliminating the project, those inside of Carmelitos seem determined to keep it.

Frankly, says project manager Tom Joyce, the people in Carmelitos are frightened of the prospect of losing their homes — this despite official assurances that alternative housing will be provided.

The effect of the Hayes proposal has been to bring the tenants and the management together in a way that would have been hard to envisage a year ago.

Bryant agrees that the phaseout proposal is largely responsible for the new spirit of cooperation in the project. But he also adds that he doesn't think it necessarily signals an abdication of the tenants' objectives.

"The attitude of the present TAB board and the goal of making Carmelitos a livable project have not changed," he declares. "What has changed is TAB's response to what the housing authority has done. Its members want to sit down and talk now."

A number of observers feel that the rent strike, while it may have netted some concessions the first time had finally begun to outlive its usefulness as a weapon. It had become counterproductive, and the time had come for a change in strategy — which accounts in part for the new board's desire sit down and talk with housing authority officials.

Some people believe, moreover, that Mrs. Bohenenkamp's unyielding manner not only tended to harden the resistance of the housing authority, but intimidated many in her own camp. Eventually, despite the soundness of her goals, they say, she alienated too many people to remain effective.

'A new spirit of cooperation in the project'

In recent years, tenant participation — a principle that sprang from the poverty war philosophy of "maximum feasible participation" of the poor — has been strongly urged upon all public housing agencies by the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. Officials consider it a necessary antidote to the paternalism that has long governed the relationship between the management and tenants of public housing projects.

In Bryant's view, though, "the county housing authority hasn't demonstrated that it really accepts the philosophy. Only now, he says, are the tenants beginning to see some steps in the right direction. As for conclusive proof, though, it has yet to be offered, he adds.

ONE OF the hopeful signs, says Bryant, is that the authority has shown a willingness to help form a joint grievance committee to arbitrate the remaining rent strike cases. (The housing authority is trying to evict 18 former strikers for non-payment of rent, but the tenants are resisting the evictions.)

Now both sides are hopeful that a mutually accept-

Brothers trudge on in round-world walk for children

By HERB SHANNON Travel Editor

Peter Kunst of Santa Ana is scheduled to interrupt a walk around the world today in New Delhi, the capital of India. He wants to give his feet and mosquito bites a two-week rest before plodding on to Calcutta and the next lap in Australia and maybe China.

Neither of the hiking hazards seem to bother his brother and partner in the world walk, David Kunst, 33, of Waseca, Minn. Possibly this is because Pete's blister and sting resistance hasn't had a chance to build up.

Pete has been on the global hike only for about three months, joining his brother in Afghanistan in March at the half-way point of an earlier round-the-world walk to promote the United Nations Children's Emergency Fund.

David had walked for nearly a year with another brother up to that point, crossing the U.S. from Minnesota to New York and then Europe from a landing at Portugal.

"The days are hot and tiresome and the nights are humid and full of mosquitoes," Pete, 28, wrote to his wife, Nancy, at their Santa Ana home, 1418 S. Magnolia Ave.

"Funny, they don't bother Dave, just me."

In the same letter, Peter traced their progress from Islamabad to Lahore in Pakistan in seven days, and outlined their plans to cross the border into India and reach New Delhi today.

Pete is a replacement for a younger brother, John, 25, who accompanied David on the earlier hike. John was killed and David was seriously injured in a bandit ambush in the Khyber Pass of Afghanistan last Oct. 21, ending the first try at the world walk.

Following David's recovery from a bullet wound in his chest, he and Peter flew together to Afghanistan to pick up their mule companion, Willie Makeit II, and resume the hike.

The brothers had hoped to gain permission from Chinese officials at the embassy in Islamabad to cross into China from India and walk eastward to a port on the China Sea.

The embassy officials, while sympathetic to the project, were unable to grant permission to cross

China because of the rugged conditions of the route they proposed. Now the brothers hope to make a token detour into China on their second-choice itinerary.

Plan B calls for them to take a ship from Calcutta to Perth, Australia, and walk an equivalent distance of their proposed route in China, thus covering the same number of oot-miles on the global tour. At Sydney they will try for bonus mileage in China by asking for permission to cross the border at Hong Kong and walk to Canton and back.

The brothers earlier had proposed that the Chinese provide a brother guide team for the China leg. If the authorities do not see fit to do this, it will save the Kunst brothers considerable hoofing after they return to the U.S. west coast via Hawaii.

They had suggested a reciprocal brotherhood hike with the Chinese across the U.S. to New York instead of only to the starting point in Minnesota.

But neither blisters, mosquitoes nor the prospect of the extra mile bug Pete as much as another painful problem involving the mule.

"We have to find transportation for Willie Makeit II back to the States from Calcutta," he wrote. "If it can't be arranged, we may have to abandon her."

'A 21st century school'

Hope voiced for ocean studies center here

By RALPH HINMAN, Jr.
Staff Writer

A foghorn unexpectedly hooting on the Long Beach breakwater punctuates — and points up — a prophecy voiced one recent misty morning by two zealots standing on the forward deck of Research Vessel Nautilus.

"We have a chance..." — Dr. Murray D. Dailey grins wryly as his words are lost in a sudden sea of sound — "...to create right here a kind of ocean studies center unique in Southern California."

His companion, Louis F. Jobst Jr., director of the city's marine and industrial development department, glances at the Southern California Ocean Studies Consortium's flying pelican emblem emblazoned on Nautilus's pilot-house.

"We have a chance to create a 21st century school," says Jobst, his sentence chopped by a second blast from an automatic foghorn located not too far from the vessel's permanent Berth 5 at Navy Landing.

"No," continues Jobst in a sudden silence, "that's not 'Jonathan Livingston Seagull' up there, even though everybody who ever heard of the book thinks it is."

On one level, the "we" each man referred to is a consortium joining together, or pooling, the efforts of Los Angeles basin campuses of the California State University and Colleges to provide a single specialized center in which all forms of ocean studies can be carried out.

"We are not exclusively a part of Cal State, Long Beach," emphasizes Dailey, project director as well as associate professor of biology at CSLB. Other equal partners in the group effort are Cal State, Dominguez Hills, Fullerton, Northridge and Cal Poly, Pomona. Early consortium member Los Angeles State later withdrew but now is said to be reconsidering rejoining.

Each school names representatives to an SCOSC governing board chaired this year by Dr. Donald B. Bright, biological science departmental chairman at Fullerton State. Jobst speaks for the maritime-related industries as vice chairman of the board.

On a deeper level, perhaps, the "we" of "we have a chance to..." might be construed as Dailey and Jobst. For if, as Webster's big book indicates, a zealot is "one who supports a cause with vigor and enthusiasm," each man eminently qualifies for this distinction — as suggested in the opening paragraph of this report.

Jobst serves as chief dollar-finder to a major academic activity now only partly funded by the state. (Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke of the CSUC system has been quoted as saying funds for the ocean studies center will be included in fiscal year 1973-74's systemwide budget; in any case, however, private financial support would be necessary for an ambitiously expanded program envisioned by the zealots.)

Last week, for instances, Jobst and Chairman Bright barnstormed the Midwest and East, meeting with 10 or more private philanthropic foundations or government research agencies. They were to suggest to the National Geographic Society that the prestigious organization sponsor a pair of expeditions to the Santa Barbara Channel Islands this fall.

One voyage would focus on discovering and preserving pre-Columbian Indian artifacts still surviving, homely relics of coastal tribes who inhabited these shores in the years before Spain's flag arrived in the New World.

The other cruise, if all goes well, would seek to discover the final resting place of Spanish explorer-navigator Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo, discoverer of Baja and Alta California and Santa Monica Bay.

Cabrillo died while his flagship rode at anchor off San Miguel Island in the group and he was buried — where? On San Miguel? Or Santa Rosa Island? — as some modern historians suggest. A definitive answer could be a major archeo-historical find.

But, one may ask, are such projects really part of ocean studies?

Dailey, himself a specialist in diseases of marine mammals and fishes, replies with an emphatic yes. He definitely foresees the Long Beach center penetrating beyond such traditional deep water studies as marine technology, oceanography or engineering.

He visualizes the center someday preparing management personnel for coastal conservation groups like those now springing up throughout the state. While doing the expected things and carrying out other projects still undreamed of.

Jobst, oriented as he is to practical maritime matters, sees the developing center as a source of trained, sophisticated people — and procedures — for a major industry.

In the meantime, even a portable classroom of two for landlubbers but essential studies would be welcomed.

The academician, convinced that "no one else is doing what we're doing in Southern California," predicts that a regular ocean studies curriculum pointing directly to a bachelor's degree — which would be awarded by the student's "home" school — will come.

And Jobst remains equally convinced that "This Long Beach - Los Angeles Harbor area, the largest Westcoast maritime complex in both North and South America," must have a full-fledged academic facility to preserve and continue its present strong growth patterns.

Pass the vitamins

Big Brother has decided to save us all from O.D.'ing, as the doctors and the kids say, on vitamins A and D.

After next year, unless Congressman Craig Hosmer heads the vitamin regulators off, anyone who wants high potency A or D will have to have a doctor's prescription. Or he'll have to smuggle it in. "buy anything in Mexico?" the customs agents will ask. "Whisky, gin, grass, heroin, vitamins?"

The medical men over at the Food and Drug Administration say that in massive doses vitamins A and D are toxic. Of course, the junkie determined to achieve Vitamin D intoxication will still be able to do it with the low potency pills. He'll just have to take more of them. They go down easily enough if swallowed with a thick milkshake.

Vitamin intoxication is quite different from other kinds of intoxication. It's not addictive and it doesn't make you drunk. So the FDA figures few of us will succumb to its temptations if we're restricted to the low-powered stuff. Only pills containing 150 per cent or less of the "minimum daily requirement" will be available without prescription.

Congressman Hosmer argues that people ought to be able to buy vitamins without federal interference, just as they can buy aspirin or alcohol without federal interference. You can kill yourself with aspirin or alcohol, too.

It comes down to medical knowledge versus folk wisdom, if you look at it one way, or medical knowledge versus faddism and quackery, if you look at it another.

Ordinarily, we'd plump for medical knowledge and oppose Hosmer's bill to lift federal controls on vitamin sales. In this case, though, the congressman says he introduced the bill at the request of people in Leisure World. If George Robeson is to be believed, those folks may know something the doctors don't.

One Reagan just has to be wrong

SACRAMENTO — Gov. Reagan is absolutely right, of course, when he describes the Assembly reapportionment proposal as a "gross and indefensible gerrymander," and he is to be praised for criticizing the attention paid to the incumbency factor and for saying that to "destroy community interest to gain partisan advantage in even one district is wrong, obviously."

The governor made those comments in a letter last week to Assembly Republican leader Robert Beverly of Manhattan Beach. The letter took Beverly and other minority members of the Assembly to task for having given their approval to the redistricting plan.

Reagan has not had an easy six years as California's governor, and the present reapportionment situation illustrates what might be one of his problems.

Here he is, on the people's behalf, protesting the politicians' efforts to save their skins at the expense of logic and common sense, and some cunning fellow is going around making statements in the governor's name supporting politicians'.

Bob Schmidt

View From Our State Bureau

In his letter to Beverly, for example, the governor cited 18 proposed Assembly districts as "contrived and in which compactness and community of interest are lost."

BUT AT THE SAME time someone, using the governor's name and, apparently, his face, has told Senate Republican leaders that he approved the upper house reapportionment plan, which contains every example of partisan gerrymandering to which the governor objects in the Assembly plan.

The letter to Beverly, for instance, noted that in the Second Assembly District "a long finger reaches up the coast (from the Sonoma-Marina county line) to include Eureka."

But the Senate plan, which someone saying he is the governor supports, has a district which starts well below the Sonoma-Marina county line, goes clear up past Eureka to the Oregon border, then heads east to the Nevada border and south almost as far as Reno.

The governor's letter objects to the proposed 23rd Assembly District, which reaches "from the borders of Orange County, through San Bernardino County, through Kern County to San Luis Obispo and Santa Barbara counties," and to the proposed 67th (now 52nd) District which "runs from Anaheim to Lake Elsinore and the San Diego County line."

BUT IN THE Senate bill, which someone saying he is the governor supports, there is the 18th District, which extends from agricultural Kern and Kings counties across the Tehachapies to the beaches of Santa Barbara, and there is the 16th District, which starts near Temple and Hoover streets in downtown Los Angeles and extends for about 60 miles eastward well into San Bernardino County.

In short, the Senate reapportionment proposal contains a number of "examples of the art of gerrymandering (which) cannot be justified on rational grounds," to quote again from the governor's letter.

The unkind suggestion has been made that the two Ronald Reagans are, in fact, the same person, and that the Senate bill is considered suitable because it assures Republicans of at least a 20-20 split in the 40-member house, and possibly provides the GOP with a chance to gain control at the next election, while the Assembly plan retains the present Democratic majority.

It is all yet another argument for denying any responsibility for reapportionment to the Legislature. Or the governor.

Conspirators' game plan

WASHINGTON — The mysterious operations of the White House intelligence unit created in 1970-71 have yet to be explored in the Senate's Watergate hearings.

When that happens the game is going to become very rough, as poisonous and divisive perhaps as the public argument over McCarthyism in the early 1950s. But it must all come out if the American people are to understand what was wrong about Watergate.

President Nixon asked us to believe in his statement of May 22 that there were national security considerations in the years 1970 and 1971 that required a massive counterinsurgency program involving spying, wiretapping and burglaries.

WHEN SOME OF the same para-intelligence personnel who ran the program turned their talents to spying on Mr. Nixon's 1973 election opponents, the game got out of hand. According to the President's version, persons unknown used the national security operation as an excuse to cover up the involvement by those worthies in Watergate burglary.

William Brown

OUR NATIONAL BUREAU CHIEF

Jeb Stuart Magruder in his remarkable testimony last week cast some light on how the national security situation looked to those operating at less rarefied levels than the President's. To the men in the White House, it appeared the President had an inherent right to bug anybody suspected of domestic subversion. They were fearful.

There had been a "certain atmosphere" at the White House, a feeling that, if the dissenters against the war could break the law, the President's defenders could reply in kind, Magruder testified.

"When these subjects came up and although I was aware they were illegal and I am sure the others did, we had become somewhat inured to using some activities that would help us in accomplishing what we thought was a legitimate cause," said Magruder.

IT WAS OUT OF such an atmosphere that the attorney general could sit in meetings at which electronic eavesdropping was discussed and take no action. It was that atmosphere that could stimulate a right-wing ideology like Gordon Liddy to dream up bizarre schemes to kidnap radical peace leaders and spirit them off to Mexico.

It became apparent in Magruder's testimony that there really was a siege mentality at the White House during those days of turmoil that followed Kent State, Jackson State, and the peace marches on Washington. Magruder revealed they were even able to delude themselves that the Republican convention had to be moved from San Diego because it was threatened by demonstrators. And having made that decision, they easily turned to the obverse—that they could plant demonstrators and agents provocateurs at the Democratic convention and among the candidates' staffs.

Of all the senators on the panel, only Sen. Sam Ervin of North Carolina seems to have identified the defense's game plan.

"In this nation, we have had a very unfortunate fear," said Ervin to Magruder. "And this fear went to the extent of deploring the exercise of personal rights for those who wanted to assemble and petition the government for redress of grievances."

"Under a Democratic administration... they became so afraid of the people that they used military intelligence to spy on civilians whose only offense was that they were dissatisfied with the policies of the government and assembled and petitioned for relief.

"Now I think that all grew out of this complement of fear, did it not, the whole Watergate incident?"

The Ervin committee is looking into allegations that the Justice Department's Internal Security Division under Robert Mardian conducted sweeping political intelligence operations under the guise of keeping tabs on antiwar groups and other organizations thought to pose a threat to political conventions or parties.

The wounds of the 1950s and 1960s will be reopened so that we may determine whether the validity of claims that the Watergate conspirators were justified in doing what they did because the students, and the peaceniks and the black militants were about to overthrow the country.

Problem Solved

EDITOR:

My favorite columnist has done it again. Nearly every time I read Sydney Harris' column, I get a most satisfying answer to problems or subjects of interest which have been uppermost in my mind for years.

I am 70 years old and must admit I have often wondered why we didn't try to breed a superman race. Mr. Harris' column of June 11 gave the most complete and intelligent answer I've ever read. My thanks to Sydney Harris!

Instant Analysis

EDITOR:

The Press-Telegram is certainly to be commended for its editorial "Instant TV wisdom" (June 12).

This editorial, while feeling obliged to call the CBS decision to abandon "instant analysis" a "minor mistake," still gives excellent and fair perspective to what has been to many viewers a very galling and intruding situation.

There can be no doubt that a good newspaper's selection of analyses is likely to be better rounded than that offered by a television network. With the CBS analysts, there was no balance at all.

There is wisdom in the P-T's willingness to wait a day for the analyses of Eric Sevareid, Dan Rather and Daniel Schorr. Please be assured that many of us would be quite willing to wait even longer.

Aren't we the lucky readers to be privileged enough to be exposed to such provocative candor as David Levinson disclosed in his off-the-top-of-the-head account of what he thought took place during the opening of the Civic Light Opera's revival of "The Student Prince"! How artless, how ingenious!

I'm sure the reading public gained by his presence, although I couldn't help wondering who was running copy and emptying wastebaskets back at the paper in his absence. But in these scintillating times when the man on the street is catapulted into stardom and the knuckleball reigns supreme in summer sports (a man who's such an authority on vibratos certainly must be downright encyclopedic on the knuckleball) he may be just what the people ordered: a plumber who writes criticism.

At last a writer with whom the guys at the pool hall can identify!

How utterly charming of Mr. Levinson to let us in on his exclusive lack of familiarity with the "creaky" piece! How self-effacing of him to admit that his reactions were "purely personal and perverse"!

How far-sighted to send such an eloquent neophyte to render his unjaundiced appraisal of that ubiquitous chestnut, "Student Prince"! The subscribers must have enjoyed the warmth and imagery of his old-shoe extrapolations. At least that's the reaction I got at Larry's Bar & Grill.

The only journalistic giant who could have improved on it would have been ol' Case himself.

'Wheat deals' may rival Watergate in political wars

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Senate permanent investigating subcommittee will conduct hearings on the controversial "wheat deals" to Russia that may be only slightly less devastating to the Nixon administration than the Watergate hearings.

Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., has investigators out in the field now developing new evidence for hearings in the late summer or early fall on the grain sales that even administration officials now concede involved monumental blunders.

These officials admit U.S. consumers and farmers are paying a high price for the deals which involved blatant election-year political gimmickry by the Nixon administration.

Increased foreign sales of farm commodities could have been handled in a manner that did not upset the entire commodity market, dislocate the U.S. transportation system, stimulate rises in domestic food prices and pay the Soviet Union hundreds of millions of dollars in subsidies for buying products they desperately needed.

If President Nixon survives the Watergate hearings, the investigation of political pressures on the commodity deals could add significant new political woes.

PARTISAN POLITICAL gain was one of the overriding considerations in the grain sales and the advice of subordinates with the competence to be wary of such a large transaction was disregarded, according to White House sources.

Aware now of the high degree of political vulnerability in the face of current rising food costs and chaotic market conditions, the White House is preparing to make Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz the scapegoat for political policies that had their origins in the White House.

Several government committees have made minor investigations of the wheat deals and the Nixon administration also has investigated itself. But on the whole, these probes have been a comer-up in much the same way the early investigations of Watergate were coverups.

OBVIOUSLY FALSE testimony was given in the superficial investigation by the House Agriculture Committee but witnesses were not put under oath nor were stories challenged.

The General Accounting Office (GAO) is in the midst of an investigation but has had to labor without subpoena power and against the opposition of Commodity Exchange Authority Administrator Alex Caldwell and other Agriculture Department officials.

The Permanent Investigating Subcommittee has a reputation for tough thoroughness developed over the last 20 years and highlighted by its investigations of labor rackets, the multi-billion-dollar blunders on the TFX warplane contract and more recently the multi-million-dollar Vietnam club scandals and the subsequent coverups by the Army.

THAT COMMITTEE reputation was gained under the chairmanship of Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., but Senator Jackson, a potential Democratic presidential candidate, does not intend to let the reputation slip.

At this stage, the blundering of the administration in paying more than $140 million in wheat subsidies is admitted. These subsidies allowed the Russians to buy our grain at artificially low prices even as the sales resulted in sharp rises in the prices that American food companies had to pay for grain.

Even at this stage of the investigations of the Soviet wheat deals, these points are clear:

1. The Agriculture Department and State Department officials were ill-equipped to deal with the major impact that the $1 billion in sales of wheat, corn and soybeans had on the domestic market and upon the American transportation system.

2. Dr. Henry A. Kissinger displayed little understanding or interest in the economic aspects of the transactions and only seemed concerned with "the big picture" from a standpoint of international political and U.S. relations with the Soviet Union and Communist China.

3. President Nixon, various White House aides and Agriculture Secretary Butz were more concerned with moving large amounts of farm products quickly into international trade, with emphasis on getting agreements in time to boost farm prices before the 1972 election.

4. To further complicate the picture, some of those involved in making decisions for the U.S. government had potential conflicts of interest because of ties with big international grain dealers.

5. Dr. Kissinger, greatly concerned with secrecy in his top-level dealings with the Russians, often left U.S. negotiators with less information about the American bargaining posture than he had given their Soviet counterparts.

The Senate subcommittee's hearings will detail the incompetence of high level U.S. negotiators and will provide a sharp contrast to the public image of President Nixon and Dr. Kissinger as highly skillful international bargainers.

"WE WERE ALL very much aware of the President's desire to pull this off before the election," one source said.

The Jackson subcommittee also will be looking into allegations that the big grain firms used their knowledge of the impending sales to rig the price of wheat futures at the Kansas City Board of Trade.

The Commodity Exchange Authority, the government agency charged with regulating the nation's commodity markets, first permitted the Board of Trade to investigate itself, a move that predictably resulted in a "whitewash" report of innocence.

But, under press and Senate subcommittee pressure, the CEA has now admitted finding evidence of possible criminal acts and has sent the case to the criminal fraud division of the Justice Department.

As in the Watergate affair, the revelations of the cover-up of crimes and political pressures in the commodity deals may move to be equally as important as the conflicts of interest and political machinations themselves.

Crewcut Yankee lawyer tackles his toughest job

By JOHN BARBOUR

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tall lean man from New England found himself climbing the steps of the Lincoln Memorial. It was late afternoon, a Sunday spared from work but not from worry.

His responsibility weighed heavily. His duty: to investigate any wrongdoing in the re-election of the President, and to bring charges against any persons responsible, even the President if need be.

As special prosecutor, he is answerable only to the Constitution, the laws of the land and the American people. Yet, almost as soon as Congress approved his appointment, Congress and the White House challenged his authority.

HE WAS NOW only gathering a staff, and already working 18 hours a day, six days a week. But this was Sunday, and he stood now before the immense statue of Lincoln and read again the chiseled words on the wall, "... and that government of the people, by the people, for the people shall not perish from the earth."

Then, as some men leave a chapel to which they have turned for inspiration, Archibald Cox, Yankee lawyer, turned and descended to the realities of Washington, the conflicting streams of politics, and the turbid waters of Watergate.

Late this past week, recalling his visit to the Lincoln Memorial over a 7:30 breakfast, he said:

"Of course hardly anything looks as overwhelming in history as it looks at the time. But I think the central problem of restoring confidence in government will be appreciated down through history. Surely, it's essential we do it, or we'll come a cropper.

"I think the people, given candor and a sense of responsibility by the people in government, will come to have their faith restored. I believe in that kind of government very deeply. I think the people want it."

IN HIS 61 years Archibald Cox has built a nearly impregnable reputation as a man of reason, a man of the law, a fair man with an inexorable sense of duty.

He still wears his graying hair crewcut, and an almost shy smile plays about his face, even at times when the subject is serious. His wit is subtle, gentle, and sometimes easy to miss. But when he drives home a point of law, his argument is propelled by the twin engines of fact and reason.

He cloaks his brilliance with a modesty, pretends to be the ordinary man. In the week before he was offered the Watergate job, he was speaking on the Supreme Court's role in government as a visiting lecturer at the University of California. One student asked him if he would be named special prosecutor. He smiled and said he knew of only one other person less likely to get the job than himself — and that was Earl Warren.

WHEN HE WAS offered the job, he typically said he would think about it, flew home to his wife, and began consulting his son and two daughters by telephone. When he finally agreed, it was a family decision.

But even before he was asked he had defined the essential element of the job — total independence, from the other branches of government, from political parties, from anything and anyone.

The son, grandson and great grandson of lawyers, Cox cannot remember a day in his life when he had not wanted to be a lawyer. His wife, Phyllis, is the granddaughter of two law school deans, James Barr Ames of Harvard, and Nathan Abbott of Stanford.

"I always thought the real lawyers were courtroom lawyers," Cox says. "And I guess my mother would say I always had an interest in government, public service as it used to be called."

Cox senses the possible irony of his current assignment. His great grandfather was an eloquent New York lawyer, who became a senator, a secretary of state, a U.S. attorney general. He also defended President Andrew Johnson against impeachment.

"HE WAS ONE of Johnson's chief counsels," Cox says with a smile, "which is a funny little quirk — or I should say could become a funny little quirk."

His wife, whose voice is as clipped and neat as Katherine Hepburn's, remembers the day of his decision to take the job: "I thought like him that it was an enormous task and not to be taken lightly. . . . I don't know any man who is less a publicity seeker, but he does have a strong sense of civic duty. He feels that if you were called to serve, you answer the call."

"I don't think," Cox says, "it's the sort of thing, if you were physically able and didn't feel utterly incompetent, that you could refuse. Your job is to do the best you can on something like this.

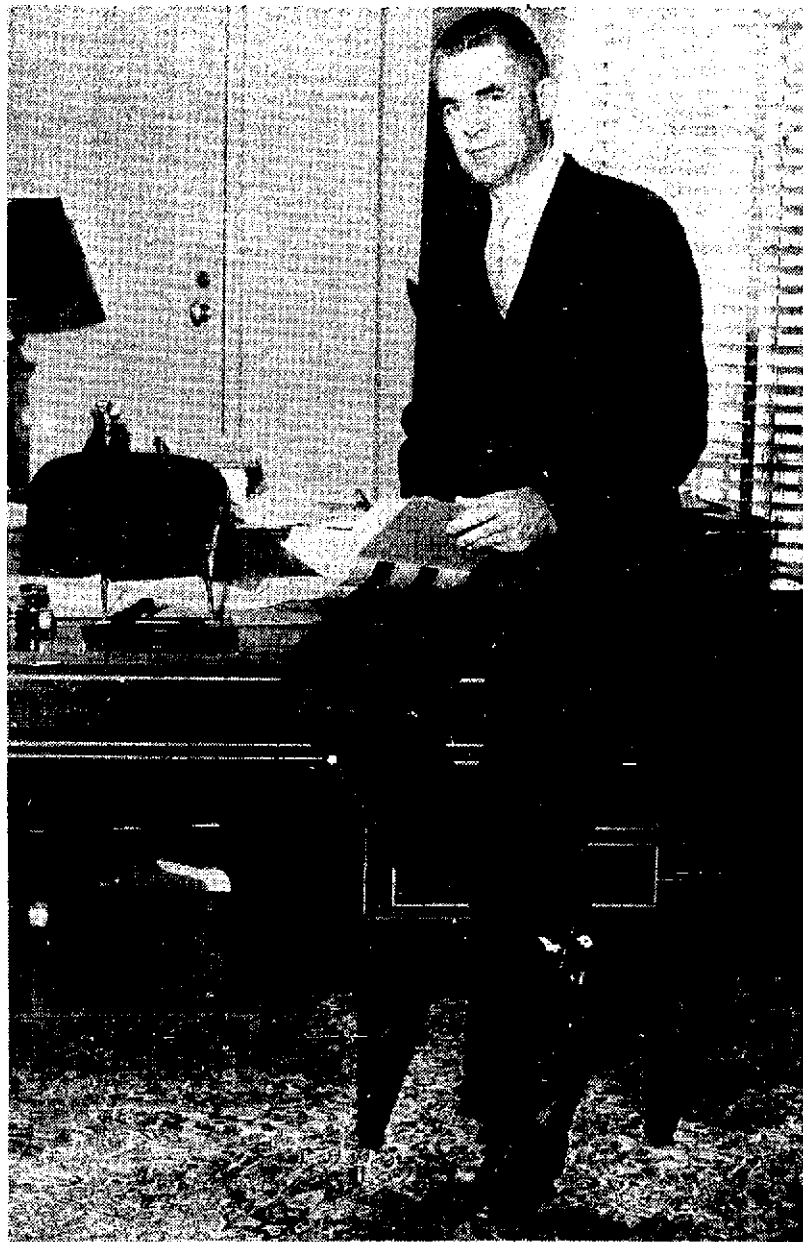

"I do feel about it that way. I don't mean to be somber and gloomy about it. Obviously, there are fascinating things you're dealing with. Being on the spot has its own fascination."

His sense of duty won't leave him alone, which is why, in those two hours before he retires at midnight, Cox is still grading examination papers from the law school classes he had to abandon at Harvard. Special prosecutor or not, he still has a duty to his students.

DUTY, IF NOT authority, is vital in Washington. But having granted him the authority, Washington immediately tried to erode it. The White House felt he went too far in seeking presidential records, finally agreed to provide the records, but not honor subpoena. Congress granted him wide investigatory powers, but balked when he said that televised Senate hearings were jeopardizing fair trials and his own investigations.

Cox is living in the Hotel Washington, an old and comfortable establishment, a block from the White House. He walks the three blocks to his new headquarters on the ninth floor of a commercial office building where he hopes soon to have a working staff of 40 to 50 professionals plus supporting personnel.

He plans to draw heavily on the services of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and, as needed, on the legal expertise of U.S. district attorneys in the various states. His investigation will reach from coast to coast. Everyone will report directly to him or to his staff. He is his own boss. He is also the man in the middle, a creation apart from any of the branches of government.

ARCHIBALD COX
Attired for Supreme Court Appearance

"I've got a helluva responsibility," Cox says. "No doubt about that. You sometimes think that each decision you make may prove to be the fatal mistake. There don't seem to be any easy ones. You know it is sort of awesome not having anyone to report to."

BUT FRIENDS have always said that Archibald Cox is his own sternest judge. As an expert in labor law, he was a Truman appointee to the Wage Stabilization Board during the Korean War. When President Truman overrode the board and granted a wage increase to the coal miners to avoid a strike, Cox quit and returned to Harvard.

The increase, he said, was "something so much in violation of the stabilization principles, and one couldn't in good conscience live with it. Consequently the thing to do was get out of town."

"It was sort of an unavoidable thing where perhaps each of us was right, looking at it in an historical point of view," Cox says now. "I might add that its funny how unimportant that seems now when at the time it seemed like the most enormous traumatic event."

Cox served as law clerk to Judge Learned Hand, and those days left him with even a more firm belief in the power of reason. Justice Felix Frankfurter once asked Cox, then solicitor general, what he really got out of it. Cox said he thought the greatest thing was what many people deny — "that judges can really reason things out without any predilections or personal feelings. I know they're wrong because I saw a man doing it every day."

Today, he says of reason, "In the end it is a faith like all faiths."

HE HAS SEEN that faith challenged, and it brought to him those few signs of emotion that emerge from an essentially private man. Twice at Harvard, acting as troubleshooter for the university president, he was confronted with unreasonable students with whom his powers of persuasion and reason could not prevail. On both occasions, tears came to his eyes.

To this time the most dramatic moments of his career were the civil rights and reapportionment cases he argued on behalf of the United States as Solicitor general before the Supreme court. It says something of his respect for the law and the court that, despite his frequent appearances there, he invariably approached each day in court with butterflies in his stomach. "I was hardly ever able, even after doing it over and over again, to sleep the night before."

Cox is to his friends the strong man to lean on. He is, they say, extraordinarily tactful, has an extraordinary conscience, works very efficiently, is always cool, quick to respond, to laugh with you. He's just very much there, they say; attentive, very much the Yankee, the New Englander with that kind of sense of duty, that kind of conscience.

AND YET, it seems, that Archibald Cox would never be caught in an anecdote. His friends cannot recall stories of the man in action, in unusual situations that show insight to his character. One explains that perhaps it is because Archibald Cox becomes larger than the situation he finds himself in.

Solicitor General Erwin Griswold, who taught the young Cox at Harvard law, defends the reserved image of Cox: "I don't think that because there aren't colorful anecdotes a person is bland or not significant. With Archie you just knew blame well that when the crunch came he would be standing there doing his job."

His job now is to organize, cross reference, the reams of data that have erupted from Watergate and its ancillary fissures in the elective process. Cross catalogue the names, the innumerable names. Identify the unanswered questions and answer them.

WALKING UP the street toward his office, through the rush of cars bringing government to work, Cox thinks of the lost summer, of the farm at Wayland outside Boston where his wife trains Morgan horses and his garden goes to weed. There will still be this summer some stolen time at his other home in Maine, Christmas as usual with all his family at his mother's home in Windsor, Vt.

But all the rest of the days, and even through the stolen moments of leisure, Cox will live with the haunting image of Watergate, so far from Boston, and Maine, and Vermont.

Facts shaky in anti-Dean campaign

WASHINGTON — The unrelenting onslaught by presidential defenders against the credibility of President Nixon's deposed White House counsel, John W. Dean III, partly rests on shaky factual foundations about Dean's activities during those frantic April days when the Watergate scandal broke open.

Contrary to published reports, federal prosecutors say Dean never told them in April that he had no evidence linking Mr. Nixon with the Watergate cover-up. Contrary to claims by Nixon defenders, Dean April he had no evidence to link the President with Watergate.

In fact, according to highly placed figures in the Watergate prosecution, Dean did not then tell prosecutors he had no information to incriminate Mr. Nixon, but merely that he had no information he was prepared to give them at that time.

According to intimates, Dean had not yet decided how much he could say about the President in view of possible demands of executive privilege, the attorney-client relationship and national security.

THE CHARGE THAT Dean offered to tell all only after Mr. Nixon discovered his part in the conspiracy comes from former Nixon aide Charles W. Colson, emerging as the President's leading public defender.

Colson told ABC commentator Howard K. Smith June 6 that he and his new law partner, David Shapiro, "presented information for the President" on April 13 recommending Dean be fired. "It's no small coincidence that the next day," said Colson, "Mr. Dean . . . went to the U.S. attorney's office seeking immunity."

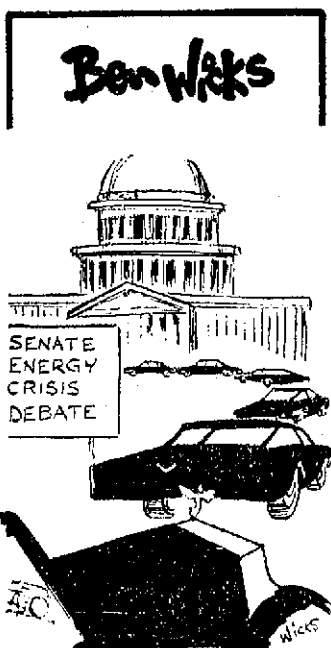

In fact, however, Dean's immunity negotiations with U.S. prosecutors, covering eight separate late-night and weekend sessions, started April 2, eleven days before the Colson-Shapiro recommendation.

ALL THE WHILE there have been underground calumnies on Dean's character peddled around Washington. All, including contradictory rumors that he is homosexual and goes to massage parlors, are without apparent basis in fact.

More significantly, Dean's lawyers also deny a far more widely circulated and far more damaging report. In early May, CBS quoted one of his lawyers as saying Dean was seeking immunity to avoid jail because he feared sexual assault. That report has been widely repeated in and out of print to make Dean a figure of ridicule and contempt here. But his lawyers call it absolutely false, telling us they did not deny it originally for fear the denial would only spread the report.

The anti-Dean campaign has experienced conspicuous success. Even some leading Democratic Senators now ridicule his impact as a witness on grounds his dishonesty is a proven fact. Highly-placed federal prosecutors also say privately that Dean's failing credibility will play a part in the government's eventual decision whether to continue denying him immunity and thus pass up his full testimony.

Even without a campaign against him, the 34-year-old Dean would be hard put to make himself believed against the combined denials of Colson, H. R. (Bob) Haldeman, John Ehrlichman, perhaps John Mitchell, and, of course, the President. Nevertheless, the campaign against Dean based in part on faulty information suggests he is not quite so irrelevant as the President's defenders publicly claim. If he seems credible before the Ervin committee this week, the nightmare of the Watergate scandal will grow still bleaker.

L.A.C. Says When Brezhnev meets with Nixon

By L.A. COLLINS SR.

As general secretary of the Communist Party Leonid Brezhnev is the most powerful man in the Soviet Union. His coming to the United States Saturday is viewed by the world with questions of what he will ask for from the United States and what he will offer or agree to in return. He comes with a record of coming to power after serving under Stalin and Khrushchev throughout most of his adult years. But many observers consider him a tough but more reasonable leader than his predecessors.

His life as a boy was filled with war and turmoil. He was 9 years old when the revolution deposed the czar and Lenin and Trotsky took over. From then on Brezhnev became a part of the rebuilding of Russia and its efforts to spread communism throughout the world. He is pictured as a quiet, powerful personality that is now seeking to improve the economy of the Soviets by cooperation with the free nations. But the question is how much he can or will give for the things he needs.

A PARADE MAGAZINE article before the Nixon visit to Moscow last year said — what the Soviets want most from the United States is a trade agreement on extended credit terms. The Russians lag far behind the United States in creature comforts and agriculture products. They need grain, computers, broad-gauge pipelines, and technical know-how. They also hope for assurance that the United States will not become too friendly with Red China and thereby endanger the Soviets by stronger Red China attacks on the Soviet's Siberian borders.

The problem is, what does Russia have to offer in return for what it hopes to get? Some answers given are agreements whereby Russia would use its influence to stop the North Vietnam attacks in Indochina. It will be asked to allow its Jewish people to leave without the heavy tax it charges them for that purpose. And it can cooperate in trying to find a peaceful settlement between the Arabs and Israel.

An important area of agreement could come from agreements on the limitation of nuclear weapons to give assurance to both sides that they will have equal powers to the extent that neither side would dare attack the other. Progress has been made in this respect through the SALT negotiations. But they could be greatly speeded up by a Soviet-U.S. agreement to do so. Another issue can be the reduction of U.S. forces in West Europe and a Soviet reduction in Eastern Europe. This could be marked financial savings to both sides and an easing of world tensions.

On the economic side of the conference is the U.S. ability and willingness to supply the grains, machinery, technology and know-how for the Russian development. They have very few things to send us to pay for what we would sell them. But there is one resource that the United States will need. That is the vast supplies of natural gas in Siberia. It is estimated this will cost many billions of dollars to develop with pipelines to ocean ports, where it would be liquefied and shipped to the United States where it would be returned to its natural gaseous state and solve a large part of our energy crisis.

THE BREZHNEV visit with President Nixon is expected to involve all these issues. It is the first time there has been an atmosphere between the two nations that gave hope for solving its problems. Great changes have taken place in the past quarter century. There is reason to hope we may be getting close to ending the antagonism that has so long existed. At least it is something each of us should hope for and pray that it will be accomplished.

Mr. Collins' column will appear each Tuesday, Thursday and Sunday — The Editor.

offered to tell all to federal investigators in return for immunity from prosecution before, not after, Mr. Nixon decided to fire him. Moreover, Dean's lawyers claim that the torrent of personal innuendo about Dean amounts to calculated libels intended to demolish him as a witness.

AT STAKE IS whether Dean is believed or not when he testifies before the Senate Watergate committee next week. Of all former presidential aides involved in the scandal, only Dean threatens to wrap Mr. Nixon in the guilt of Watergate. Therefore, the White House and other Nixon defenders have campaigned furiously, with remarkable success, against Dean's reputation and credibility.

But this campaign's shaky factual foundations, while not insuring the truth of Dean's largely undocumented charges, suggest he should not be written off in advance as irresponsible and unreliable.

A major contention in the anti-Dean campaign is that he began accusing Mr. Nixon of complicity in the Watergate coverup only after being fired by the President. Some Nixon defenders in the press have written that Dean first told prosecutors during sessions with them in

Golden's grove in North Long Beach

Beans put the flavor in these berries

By VINT MADER
Staff Writer

The big black raspberries that flourish in his North Long Beach backyard derive their lusciousness from some old green beans, rather than any gardener's green thumb, says courthouse guard Clifford Golden.

Golden, who also harvests varied tree fruits from seedlings he planted, attributes productivity of the soil at his 166 Adair St. home to the fact that the area was commercial bean fields before a housing tract was built there.

Golden's grove includes orange, grapefruit and lemon trees, several varieties of peach and plum and a loquat tree.

They all bear richly with minimal care, and underfoot the soil yields lush crops of tomatoes, cantaloupes and potatoes, plus assorted flowers and the four bushes of juicy raspberries.

Not only does the vegetation grow profusely without fertilizers, but the raspberries have expanded by the self-seeding of dropped fruit.

Golden thinks the ground's fertility is a residue from its agricultural years before the tract development of the late 1940s.

Golden, a guard at the Long Beach Courthouse, prizes especially his newest tree, a Santa Rosa variety plum that bears a tag, "January, 1972, Danny Plum." When he planted it, the seedling was held by Danny Murray, of 4988 Stearns Street, the only grandchild of Clifford and his wife, Anne, now two years old.

Golden's least prized tree is the seedling ash he planted a bit too close to their new house in 1947.

It's now a towering giant with an 18-inch-diameter trunk and roots that threaten the concrete of his patio about eight feet away.

"I've got to get rid of that," he reflected.

L.B. gets 30 hrs. of police work every 24

By CHUCK CHEATHAM
Staff Writer

Long Beach residents—due to the police department's unique 4-40 plan—are receiving 30 hours of police service each 24 hours.

And, morale in the patrol division has never been higher.

The 4-40 plan, a brain child of Deputy Chief Maurice Z. Wishon, has the 286 men in the patrol division working four 10-hour shifts every seven days.

With three 10-hour shifts each day, there are six hours when the shifts overlap.

The peak demands for police services, Wishon's statistics disclosed, were from 2:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. and from 10:30 p.m. to 2:30 a.m. By overlapping shifts these busy hours more cars are in the field to handle the calls.

Shifts are also overlapped from 7:30 a.m. to 8:30 a.m. and from 4:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. to provide officers with in-service training, to appraise the men of current and expected crime problems in their districts and to keep cars in each district until the end of the work shift.

Statistically speaking, Wishon said, under the old five-day eight-hour day plan there were 19.7 units in the field each hour. Now the average is 22.4 units or an increase of 13.7 per cent.

Response time needed to answer calls has been reduced, as a result of the 4-40 plan, Wishon declared.

However, Wishon says sadly, calls for service have increased.

In April, 1972, calls averaged 671 each day. In April, 1973, they increased to 781 a day, up 16 per cent.

Without the 4-40 plan the police department's response time in answering calls would be doubled.

The Long Beach 4-40 plan became operational Feb. 1, 1971. Only Huntington Beach with a much smaller police department had ever tried the 4-40 and they pioneered it in 1970.

Wishon devoted over 500 hours to ironing out the bugs before Long Beach went to the 4-40 plan.

In police circles the new plan created a sensation and more than 100 inquiries have been received from organizations thinking of following suit.

Numerous organizations have switched and most reported a success, Wishon declared. Police department administrators favor the new system because of the additional service to the public and the elimination of much overtime pay. The officers appreciate the additional time they have with their families and the extra 52 days a year they gain to devote to their leisure time pursuits.

In fact, the men like it so well, there is a waiting list of those who would like to transfer to patrol from other divisions.

Too many hospital beds, study says

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

Recommendations for a reduction in the number of hospital beds in Orange County will be made Monday by the Orange County Health Planning Council.

It will complete a lengthy study of the health care delivery system in Orange County and propose a growth-limitation policy to prevent future "overbedding."

As the report is made public during the day, little time will be left to study it before the council begins a series of 10 public hearings. The first one is 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Orange County Court House, 700 W. Civic Center Drive.

Paul Carpenter, council executive secretary, explained that the series of hearing would deal with specifics. The initial one Monday night, for instance, will consider emergency care, health education and mental health facilities offered by hospitals in the county.

Health facilities will be considered Tuesday night and on Wednesday the thrust of the hearings will be to consider various kinds of health insurance for the elderly and chronically ill.

Subsequent hearings will deal with other aspects of health care in the county, it was explained.

Carpenter disclosed that the council found in its study that the county is so overbedded that its hospitals have vacancy factors which are too high. This makes for increased costs in care, he insisted, and the hospitals have to raise their prices for daily care to meet the increased costs.

The report says that the county probably has enough hospital beds to accommodate its population until the year 2000.

It recommends generally against any new construction of hospitals and says that the number of licensed beds should be cut back.

Aimed for the State Health Planning Council, the report was put together by committees comprising doctors, hospital administrators, hospital proprietors, and laymen classified as "consumers" of hospital services.

It is due to be filed with the state council by July 1.

Lakewood fetes its father of the year

Willard William Wagner, who operates a printing business in Bellflower, was honored Saturday as Lakewood's "Father of the Year."

Wagner, who has lived in Lakewood 27 years, was selected by a panel of civic and business leaders from a list of candidates submitted by Lakewood residents. He had been nominated by his daughter.

When entering her father, Mary Jo, Wagner's youngest of three daughters and a former Pan

Am Queen, wrote to the selection committee that her father was "a good citizen who just worked hard to raise three daughters."

Wagner has been in business in the area since 1950. He has six grandchildren. His hobbies are hunting and fishing and gardening.

At Saturday's ceremony, Wagner was presented gifts from the Lakewood Merchants Association, co-sponsors of the event with the Chamber of Commerce.

Hearings on budget Monday

By BOB ANDREW
Staff Writer

Public hearings are scheduled Monday on Lomita's proposed $1,050,600 budget for next fiscal year which includes $231,000 in capital improvement programs.

Continuing a policy adopted upon incorporation in 1964, councilmen will levy no city property tax. Instead the major sources of revenue remain $437,500 in grants and subventions from other levels of government, $399,000 in sales taxes and other direct taxes, $91,300 for licenses and fees, $70,000 in fines, and other sources totaling $52,800.

As always, the major expenditure is for law enforcement. Contracts with the Los Angeles Sheriff's Department total $297,000—which are about equally divided for traffic patrol and general law enforcement.

Included in the $319,400 for public safety are expenditures of $18,000 for building regulations, $300 for civil defense, $1,000 for services provided by the district attorney and $3,100 for support of the traffic commission.

The $231,000 total for capital improvements includes provision for $136,000 in street improvements along Eshelman Avenue and other select system streets as the council determines.

Other capital projects are $30,000 for additional development of the civic center and $65,000 for park improvements. Scattered throughout the budget are purchases of items of capital equipment amounting to $15,400.

Street maintenance projects will account for $74,700 with another $21,500 allocated for engineering and administration of public works projects.

Bellflower school tax cut gains

Trustees of Bellflower Unified School District have adopted a tentative 1973-74 budget that reflects an estimated general fund tax rate reduction of around 75 cents for each $100 of assessed property valuation.

The current general fund budget is $5.24 for each $100 of assessed property valuation as compared to the estimated new rate of $4.49. The actual rate is set by the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors after the final budget is adopted.

The $11,660,296 budget includes a net ending balance of $682,950 with $328,000 of that sum earmarked as undistributed reserves for possible teacher pay increases, John Edwards, assistant business manager, said.

Earlier this week Dr. Richard Guengerich, superintendent, recommended a basic 6.2 per cent adjusted salary increase for teachers, but withdrew his recommendation when the Certificated Employee Council demanded a 10 per cent across-the-board increase.

Fear of closure brings end to Carmelitos strife able committee will be formed soon and a set of guidelines laid down.

LOUIS Kanaster, director of the housing authority, sees the committee coming into being within the next month, in fact.

Kanaster is almost ecstatic about the new TAB board. He's "so favorably impressed by its attitude and composition," he says, that he's considering throwing a broad range of advisory functions its way. Among other things, he says, he'd like to see the board become a screening panel for prospective tenants — a function the board has been seeking.

"If the board does a good job of screening," he declares, "we'll let them continue."

In all areas, the TAB board would make recommendations only. The housing authority, Kanaster explains, would "reserve the right to make (final) decisions." Moreover, if the board's recommendations proved consistently inappropriate in management's view, the authority would feel no compunction about "taking things in hand," he says.

TENANT leaders appear to have a somewhat different perspective on the matter, and the how the two views will be resolved remains to be seen. According to Mrs. Kaye Wilson, the new chairman of the TAB board, the question of ultimate authority is still "up in the air." Mrs. Wilson thinks the tenants have "as much say" as the housing authority. In any case, she adds, "they respect my decisions — let's put it that way."

Kanaster, in addition to being pleased with the new board, is also encouraged by other changes that seem to be taking place at Carmelitos. The TAB board has been encouraging a cleaning up of yards and parking areas, and has begun a program of painting old trash cans. Moreover, while the crime rate remains relatively high, it appears to be tapering off.

Still, the presence of 170 vacant apartments in the compound lends an air of unmistakable blight to the project. It also presents an almost irresistible target to young vandals in the area.

The "abnormal" vacancy rate is attributable to several factors — including Carmelitos' own unhappy reputation for vandalism and crime, including assaults. But, significantly, the vital element in the vacancy rate is the housing authority's own determination to keep new residents out.

IT HAS done so in two ways: it has raised the minimum rent for new tenants to $65 a month, and it has refused to take advantage of specially earmarked federal funds that would enable it to avoid losses resulting from low rents.

By restricting new tenants to those whose incomes are large enough to justify a $65 rent, the authority has virtually frozen out the very people for whom Carmelitos has been a haven all these years — welfare families and the poor.

Under the so-called Brooke Amendment to the 1969 Housing Act, public housing agencies in general are required to charge no more than 25 per cent of a family's adjusted income for rent. But to avoid losses, they can draw on Brooke Amendment funds to make up the costs of maintaining the projects. The amendment was specifically designed to help the poor.

For a while, though, the funds were blocked by President Nixon, but now that they've been released, the county housing authority has seen fit not to use them. Right now, says Kanaster, the authority is studying its policy — trying to decide whether to keep it or change it.

Some sources close to the situation believe the authority is deliberately trying to reduce the population at Carmelitos, which is now down to around 2,500. It was formerly 3,000.

By keeping the population down, the sources say, the authority feels that it might be able to appease those who want to dismantle the project entirely. With fewer people, the theory goes, Carmelitos would be less troublesome and more manageable. Were that to happen, those who insist on phasing it out might be persuaded to compromise by accepting the project on a smaller scale.

(There is the possibility, too, that the authority may wish to phase the entire project out by attrition.)

At the moment, a special committee appointed by the Board of Supervisors is studying the Hayes proposal and possible alternatives. The residents of Carmelitos, meanwhile, are keeping their fingers crossed and trying to make the best of a difficult situation.

HOSPITAL

Beach for the McKee company, a nationwide organization with headquarters at El Paso, Tex. in 1968, the U.S. General Accounting Office reported to Congress that the Veterans Administration failed to enforce its specification for a 700-bed VA hospital built by McKee.

"As a result, materials and workmanship that did not comply with the specifications were incorporated into the structures," the report stated.

Deviations involved were found in concrete mix, wall surface materials, ceramic floors, and plumbing and heating work, the GAO said.

The GAO charges were strongly denied both by the company and a top VA official in Washington.

S. M. Appleman, of the VA's central office, contended the GAO attack was based more on "paperwork" procedures linked to the job and on "administration technicalities" than on the construction itself.

"It was more a difference between the administrative people and the working people who were more concerned with getting the job done," Appleman said.

Summary of Secret Witness cases, rewards

As part of the Independent, Press-Telegram's Secret Witness program, summaries of cases in which rewards of specified amounts are offered are printed in the Independent and Press-Telegram each Thursday and Sunday. Rewards paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of suspects in any other criminal cases, not covered in these summaries, will vary in amount depending on the seriousness of the offense. The summaries follow:

— Rewards totaling $4,000, including $2,000 guaranteed by the Independent, Press-Telegram's Secret Witness program and $2,000 offered by the Compton City Council, will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of 55-year-old Compton city employee Raymond Adams. Adams was shot to death by an unknown gunman as he was operating a city street sweeper at 4:45 a.m. Sunday at the northwest corner of Compton and Long Beach Boulevards. Officers answering a call of shots fired in the central Compton area found Adams slumped over the wheel of his sweeping machine, which was standing at the corner with the motor still running.

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of 21-year-old Joyce King, of 5221 Cortland Ave., Lynwood, slain in the early morning hours of Jan. 1, 1972. Miss King left her home shortly after midnight to walk to a nearby drive-in restaurant. Her partially-clothed body, slashed by 40 to 50 knife wounds, was found approximately eight hours later in an alley behind the 11600 block of Louise Avenue in Lynwood.

— A $1,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of a man who robbed an East Long Beach branch of the Bank of America on last June 4. The man who fled the bank at 6437 E. Spring St. with $709 matches the description of a bandit who committed four bank robberies within 90 minutes throughout the area two days later and is a suspect in two earlier Southland bank holdups. The suspect is described as having blondish hair, about 5 feet 10 inches in height, and weighing about 160.

— A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Julia Holan, 88, who died April 14 of injuries received when she was knocked down by a purse thief on Eighth Street near Pacific Avenue on the previous day. The killer thief was described as white, about 18 years old, about 5 feet, 8 inches tall, medium build, and with neatly trimmed brown hair.

— A $500 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the driver responsible for the hit-run manslaughter death March 23 of 6-year-old Gary Perkins, of 625 Magnolia Ave. Gary, son of Eugene and Barbara Perkins, was walking with two adult friends of his parents to a nearby delicatessen and had stepped out in front of them to cross the street at seventh Street and Magnolia Avenue when a car speeding south on Magnolia ran the red light, and struck the boy, and kept going. Police found the car, a 1965 red Mustang, abandoned near the Queen Mary the next day. The owner said it had been stolen.

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Deborah Ann Baker, 18, whose strangled body was found March 21 in a vacant field adjacent to Los Coyotes Country Club, near Beach Boulevard and Roserans Avenue in Fullerton. Fullerton police theorize the young woman's body was dumped in the field after she was killed in the early morning hours on that date in another location. Miss Baker was last seen alive by a girl friend with whom she was temporarily sharing an apartment at 1313 E. Wilshire Ave., Fullerton, at 1 p.m. on the previous day. At that time, she left the apartment and told her friend she was going on a job interview.

— Rewards totaling $4,000 — including $2,000 each from the Secret Witness programs of the Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram and the Santa Monica Evening Outlook — will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Kathleen Ann La Chance, aspiring Long Beach 24-year-old actress. Miss La Chance was last seen alive at 5 p.m. on Nov. 15, 1972, when she left an actors' workshop play rehearsal at the apartment of a friend in Los Angeles. Her nude body, arms bound by leather straps and mouth stuffed with sand, was found late that night near the pier on the Santa Monica beachfront. She had been raped and stabbed repeatedly.

— Rewards totaling $2,500 are offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murder of Mrs. Judith Cooper, 31, stabbed to death by a robber on the morning of last April 2, in a television rental shop at 8580 Washington Blvd. in Culver City, where she was employed as a secretary. Mrs. Cooper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C.B. Older of Long Beach, was slain with more than 50 knife wounds by the bandit who took $1,500 from the store's safe.

— A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Fletcher Jordan Herndon, 58, of San Pedro, on the night of last Feb. 6. Herndon and his wife had just returned home from dining out and Mrs. Herndon was parking the car when an unknown assassin hiding outside the house at 985 Channel St. felled Herndon with two shotgun blasts in the chest as he walked up to the front door.

— A $2,025 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killers of pharmacist Patrick Horgan, 59, at the Horgan Pharmacy, 1403 Cherry Ave., on March 9. Horgan was shot in the back as he waited on three men who fled without taking any money after the shot was fired. The killers, black men in their early or middle 30s, drove away in a 1963 or 1964 maroon Chevrolet convertible.

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Victor Joseph Zalnerraitis, of Long Beach, whose body was found lying in the oil fields southwest of Cherry Avenue and Burnett Street in Signal Hill last March 30. Zalnerraitis had been slain by multiple stab wounds in the chest and back, apparently inflicted with a pocket knife. The 6-foot, 180-pound victim was last seen alive in a pool parlor at 2499 E. Pacific Coast Highway in Signal Hill late on the night before the body was discovered by an industrial worker.

— A $2,000 reward is

Mental-disorder statute invoked

Mentally disordered sex offender proceedings have been instituted against a 29-year-old steelworker in Long Beach Superior Court when he pleaded guilty to the knife-point rape of two women who were accosted in coin laundries.

Ralph David Utley, of San Gabriel made the plea before Judge Elsworth M. Beam.

Judge Beam moving to L.A. court

Judge Elsworth M. Beam has been transferred from Long Beach Superior Court to Los Angeles where he will take over a criminal trial department on Monday, Acting Supervising Judge Max Z. Wisot announced Friday.

Beam, who has been presiding on criminal cases in Long Beach Dept. J, will be succeeded by Judge D. Sterry Fagan, 46, of Huntington Harbor, who has been sitting in Van Nuys Superior Court, Wisot said.

Beam will sit in Los Angeles Dept. 131, succeeding Judge Charles C. Stratton, who has been on temporary assignment there since he retired last month after 12 years of Superior Court service.

Judge Fagan was admitted to the California Bar in 1954 after graduation from University of Southern California School of Law and was a deputy district attorney until he was appointed to Superior Court in 1968.

offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Mrs. Helga Dorothea Brown, 64, whose nude body was found in Scherer Park last Sept. 23. Mrs. Brown, last seen alive by her husband and friends on the morning of Sept. 17, had been beaten and strangled by someone who hid the body on an island in the duck pond part of the park. Her empty purse and part of her clothing were found near a picnic table in the park area.

— A $500 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of Freddie Tidmore, alias Fred Douglas Mabsoq, 20, sought in connection with the holdup shooting of John Bell, 33-year-old clerk at the Wooden Shoe Liquor store, 2053 Orange Ave., last Dec. 20. Bell, critically wounded, identified Tidmore as his assailant. Tidmore, who is black, 5 feet 10 inches tall, 155 pounds, is believed to be still in the Long Beach-Compton area.

— Secret Witness will pay $2,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of 11-year-old Teri Lynn Hollis, of 2036 Dalmadea St., Torrance, who was kidnapped from the front yard of her home last Thanksgiving Day. Her body, clad only in a white T-shirt, was found on a rocky and desolate stretch of beach 11 miles south of Oxnard on the following day. The little blonde girl had been raped and strangled. Teri was last seen alive by an informant who told Torrance police she was riding near her home on a bicycle pedaled by a young man about 21 years old, dark-haired, and about 5 feet, 6 inches tall.

— Rewards totaling $4,000 will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer of Mrs. Velma Harris, 44, shot to death in her Long Beach home, at 5020 Centralia St. on Aug. 17, 1971. Her body was discovered by her husband, Ralph K. Harris, 47, when he came home from work at 11 a.m. Mr.

Harris has posted a $2,000 reward in the case, and this amount is being matched by the Secret Witness service.

— A $1,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrests and convictions of the members of a Long Beach area auto theft gang who steal cars from throughout the Southland and then, at one of a number of auto repair shops, strip them for parts.

— A $2,000 reward is in force for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer of Mrs. Marguerite June Makeig, 50, shot in the head and killed when she returned to her home, 10608 Felson St., Bellflower, on the afternoon of Aug. 11, 1971. Mrs. Makeig had been shopping. When she walked into her living room, someone armed with a small-caliber handgun fired once, the bullet striking her in the head.

— A $2,000 reward is being offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the man who killed Elliot C. Lawson, 38, during a holdup at the Atlantic Inn, 1854 Atlantic Ave., at about 1:10 a.m. on July 16, 1971. The killer is described as a Negro, about 25 years old, 5-feet-7, 130 pounds with a two inch Afro hairdo. The man has a slender face, large eyes, a slender nose, and smooth, medium complexion. He has a deep voice, is straight in posture and is well-groomed.

— A $2,500 reward is in force for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killers of Long Beach auto wholesaler Robert Wilson Cogley, 44, shot to death in the parking lot of the Highway Center Liquor Store, Pacific Coast Highway and California Avenue, at 1:40 a.m. last Aug. 12. Cogley's killers are described as Negroes between 16 and 19 years old and from 5-feet-7 to 5-feet-10 in height.

How to become a Secret Witness

Secret Witness seeks information from the public leading to the capture of fugitives and the arrest and conviction of other criminals. For this purpose, a guaranteed fund of $100,000 has been established by the Independent, Press-Telegram to be used for rewards of varying amounts.

Identities of informants will be kept secret.

You will be paid a reward if the information you give Secret Witness results in the arrest and conviction of a criminal, or the capture of a fugitive in cases publicized in this column. Rewards also will be paid for information resulting in arrests and convictions in cases not published by Secret Witness.

To contact Secret Witness, telephone 436-2526 from 8 a.m. to midnight weekdays, or from 3 p.m. to 11 p.m. Saturdays, and Sundays. Do NOT give us your name. Or write to Secret Witness at the following address: Secret Witness, P.O. Box 67, Long Beach, Calif. 90801.

This is how the last page of your "Secret Witness" letter should look after you have typed or printed your information about a crime.

DO NOT SIGN YOUR NAME. Instead, select a code name for yourself . . . any name, as long as it's not your own . . . and place it and a code number at the bottom of your letter. The code number should combine three letters and three numbers in any combination.

Tear off and keep a corner of the last page, with the same code name and number on it. Mail your letter to "Secret Witness," P.O. Box 67, Long Beach, 90801.

THE WATERFRONT

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Maritime Editor

Bottom heavy

The 2,246-passenger SS Caberra, capable of carrying more passengers than any liner afloat, although a relatively young lady of 12 years, may have lived out her usefulness because she draws too much water.

The 820-foot pride of P&O Lines first called at Long Beach Harbor July 23, 1961, then, moved over to Los Angeles Harbor, calling there last Sept. 9, 1972.

Canberra's draft of 35 1/2 feet bars her from visiting many popular world ports because the harbors are too shallow to accommodate her.

"Unless this is remedied by reducing her draft to about 32 feet the ship will simply have lived out her usefulness," George Turner, the British line's president concluded.

The ship currently is equipped with heavy steam engines. The company hopes that by replacing the engines with lighter diesel engines that she will come up to the 32-foot draft line.

"Unless it is proved technically feasible to re-engine the ship to reduce her operating draft, thereby making it possible for the Canberra to undertake more popular cruises out of Australia or the United Kingdom, the ship will then be sold," Turner said.

Basic purpose for which the flagship and largest ship operated by P&O was built in 1960 was to cater to long-range passenger service for which there no longer exists a need since the advent of large jet airplanes.

The company president complained that the ship tried for a season of worldwide cruising but that the plan did not prove out to be successful.

The fate of the Canberra is to be decided by Sept. 30, but whatever the decision it will not affect the British cruise line's operations out of Los Angeles Harbor. The company currently operates the Spirit of London on cruises to Mexico, Canada and Alaska, and the Arcadia on Pacific cruises. Available are two-day party cruises and full Pacific cruises up to 60 days.

Champion greeter

Joe Arno, Catalina Island retired restaurateur, former Avalon mayor, past president of the Chamber of Commerce, and a greeter who has shook the hands of more visitors to the island than any other person, has been retained by the operators of the "Big White Steamer" as the company's public relations representative on the island. The steamer resumed service to the island Saturday.

According to Peter Farrow, vice president sales for MGKS, Inc., operators of the 2,200-passenger ship, Arno "will look out for our interests on the island, greet visiting VIP's, and serve as liaison with the Avalon community and our company."

Arno and his wife, Rose, have lived on the island for 40 years operating Arno's Sea Food Restaurant, featuring Calamari Curls, a "delicacy of the sea" (deep fried squid) and the St. Catherine Hotel from 1952 until 1962. He operated the sea food house for 22 years until he retired in 1968.

He served on the City Council of Avalon for 10 years and as mayor for two years, 1962-64. In 1951-52 he was president of the Chamber of Commerce and 20 years later, again served a two-year term as president in 1971-72.

Recognition of the Arno's contribution to the island community came somewhat ironically May 25 when Catalina Cruises, operating out of the Long Beach Harbor and a competitor to the "Big White Steamer" asked Mrs. Arno to christen the new 700-passenger Long Beach King.

In-PORT-ant people

Shannon J. Wall who served as agent for the San Pedro Branch of the National Maritime Union in 1954 and 1955, has been elected to a 4-year term as president of the 36-year-old union at an annual salary of $49,000.

Election returns announced this week by the Honest Ballot Association gave Wall a 3 to 1 margin over his nearest competitor among the five seeking the high union office.

Costly Delicacy

Complaining about the high cost of meat? Consider the plight of the Japanese who relish nibbling on eels, cooked over a hibachi and used as a garnish over a bowl of steaming rice.

Until recently the Japanese were importing live eels (a small cylindrical young eel that is more advanced in development than a leptocephalus—Webster) from South Korea and Taiwan. But early this year South Korea put an export ban on eels to protect the resource. Taiwan also prohibited their export until next month.

The Japanese looked to mainland China as a source of eels. In April and May two shipments of live eels were shipped aboard a freighter from the Peoples Republic of China to Japan.

Cost of the young eels were 160,000 to 170,000 yen, or approximately $274 to $292 per POUND!

How Unique A Nickname

Cmdr. James Fournier, acting as master of ceremonies before an audience of 161 attending the retirement party Wednesday for Capt. George Walker, chief of staff of the 11th Coast Guard District who will end 31 years, nine months of service June 30, told this story about his boss:

"When Capt. Walker became chief of staff he summoned all the group and section leaders to a get-acquainted-meeting. Addressing the assemblage of officers gathered about the conference table he said: 'Gentlemen, I want to run a friendly, cordial, and relaxed staff. I want you all to call me by my nickname-SIR!'"

SPACESHIP CRASH TALE CALLED 'PATENT HOAX'

TUCSON (UPI) — The international director of the Aerial Phenomena Research Organization has called the recent report of the crash of a spaceship at Aurora, Tex., in 1897 a "patent hoax."

"Recent news stories concerning the findings of mysterious bits of metal at the site of the alleged crash concern nothing more than an aluminum alloy and there's nothing mysterious about that," L.J. Lorenzen said.

"It is our opinion that publicity oriented individuals have used the story to promote their own interests. There's every indication that the bits of aluminum alloy arrived on the Proctor property since 1967 and probably within the last 60 days."

"The important point in the whole story is the fact that in 1967, Mr. Alfred E. Kraus, director of the Kilgore Research Institute at West Texas State University, undertook an exhaustive investigation of the judge Proctor farm where the spaceship was supposed to have crashed and using a metal detector found nothing but very ordinary bits of colored metal objects such as rings from horses' bridles, stove lids and 1932 license plates."

YOUR HOROSCOPE BY JEANE DIXON

Forecast for MONDAY
Your birthday today: Begin with conversion. Potential source of earning and cooperation are mobilized, rearranged later as you enter a growth phase, requiring revision of work habits. Today's natives are fond of tradition, family history.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Involve many people in your program. Your bright idea has promise but needs rethinking. Taurus (April 20-May 20): From a confused but goodnatured beginning, today works out to be pleasant and profitable.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): It's better to present a bold front. Let your partners, workmates carry their share of whatever goes on.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Disregard minor quibbles, plunge into a vigorous career-building campaign.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Once past the resistance of old habits, this promises to be an interesting period of higher rewards, improved skills.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Teamwork builds as you negotiate this afternoon. Social opportunity opens, may distract you.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your aversion to taking sides is helpful early in the day. Confirm your real beliefs by positive expression later.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Morning actions later turn out to be preliminary; afternoon and evening have a definite, lasting impact.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be consistent, pursue recent success with strong follow-up projects. Friends' and family fortunes tend to increase.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Nearly everybody has something interesting to present today. Later hours favor new business, plans for family excursions.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Taking for granted that others know your financial situation could be troublesome. Explain nothing until you must, then be selective and brief.

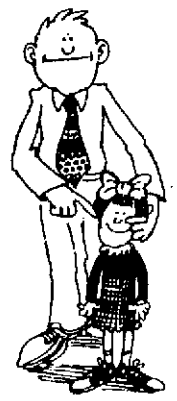

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Once your routines are settled and your accounts leveled out, this promises to be an unusually productive day.

Death takes parade Santa

Ferdinand Zegal, who has been the Santa Claus in the annual Hollywood Santa Claus Lane Parade for the last decade, died Saturday. He was 78.

Zegal, who had also done television commercials in his Santa suit, had been admitted to a local hospital earlier in the week. Cause of death was not given.

"I concentrate on new dentures at prices you can afford"

What you can't afford is to be without them.

Dr. F. E. Campbell

Why I can offer new dentures at such reasonable prices: Of all our services, the basic and most important one is making new dentures. We do all our own work in our own modern laboratories. With the popularity of my INSTANT CREDIT PLAN—I can deliver new dentures at prices you can afford.

Instant Credit Makes It Easy. Older people often face a different kind of credit problem than younger ones. I understand your credit problems. I carry my own credit, so I can make my own decision on your credit INSTANTLY. No waiting for an answer. No banks or finance companies to deal with. Many of my patients work part time, are on Social Security, a small pension or retired. Whatever your circumstances, I tailor the terms to fit them—on approval of your credit—even if you earn UNDER $200 a month, even if you've never had credit before.

Extra work? No extra charge. Even though we never know in advance how much time and work your new dentures may take—you always know in advance how much they'll cost. Exactly. We never charge extra for difficult cases. All work in our labs by union technicians.

One Day Service. Usually, if you come in to our downtown L.A. office by 9:30 A.M.—your dentures can be ready the same day—a real advantage for out-of-towners.

Fast Plate Repairs in all 12 offices. Usually...while you wait.

Union Members. All union and insurance dental care plans welcome. Bring your I.D. card. We do the rest.

Any questions? We'll gladly answer them in detail. Come in anytime or phone the office nearest you. No appointment necessary for examination.

FAMOUS BRAND
WAREHOUSE FURNITURE SALE

 Levitz Soaring to No. 1
In Southern California

By JOANNE GAMLIN
LOS ANGELES — Levitz — a name which has long stirred awe and anxiety in traditional furniture dealers here — will realize a three-year-old retail ambition this year.
The seven Levitz warehouse-showrooms here will nail down the position of No. 1 in any list of the top ten furniture retailers in southern California.
Refuting the Cassandra who spent a lot of time in 1972 predicting the warehouse-showroom momentum had begun to wear thin, Levitz was probably No. 1 in 1972 and will be the indisputable crown holder this year. Its full size warehouse-showrooms, combined with the smaller San Diego unit, will churn out total sales of nearly $80 million this year.

CALIFORNIA CLASSICS BY-THE-SEA . . . contemporary architecture at Huntington Beach

Classics By-the-sea opening

Grand opening is under way in Huntington Beach for Kendall Development Company's all new California Classics By-the-Sea homes.

The new $11 million coastal community will ultimately include 254 single-family residences.

First phase of 94 units is under construction and reservations are being taken. First move-ins are scheduled for July.

"Because we were fortunate enough to be exempt from Proposition 20, which regulates all new construction near the coastline, we made special design adaptations on these homes to take advantage of our choice location," says Jerome Gary, vice president of the California Division of Kendall, a wholly-owned subsidiary of American Standard Inc., of New York City.

"It's going to become increasingly difficult, if not impossible, to find new homes this close to beach recreation areas," continued Gary.

The new community is located just a mile and a half from the surfing beaches of Huntington and only a few minutes more from the marinas and yacht harbors of Newport Beach.

Country Court Homes open at Village San Juan

The recent opening of the fourth unit of Country Court Homes at Village San Juan in San Juan Capistrano marked the $20 million project's most active weekend for sales since its opening in June, 1972, reports Rob Partin, president of the Southern California Division of U. S. Development Corporation, builder of the 109-acre planned community.

"Twenty-one new homes were sold on the weekend of April 14-15," Partin said. Value of the sales was priced at just below $600,000.

Village San Juan, being constructed adjacent to the San Diego Freeway in Orange County's mission city, features two home styles; the Country Court Homes, and the company's Village Townhomes.

"Sixteen of the sales were of Country Court Homes, attesting to the growing popularity of this particular residential style," Partin said.

COUNTRY Court Homes are constructed in pairs, with one adjoining wall, permitting maximum yard space. It is from this carefully designed yard space that the units derive their name.

The Village Townhomes have also proven their popularity with California homebuyers, Martin said. To date, over 1,400 of the company's townhomes have been sold in the state since their introduction in 1970.

Partin complimented Ray Hires and Jim Lenon of the Village San Juan sales team for their efforts.

A 3½ acre manmade lake highlights the list of recreational features at Village San Juan. The private lake has proved popular with residents for both boating and fishing. Other amenities include swimming pools, tot lots and a community building.

To reach Village San Juan, take the Junipero Serra exit from the San Diego Freeway and take the frontage road to the north of the freeway to the entrance of the community.

Professional Building Rises

Construction and leasing of space has begun on the $950,000, two-story Westhaven Professional Building at Brookhurst Street and Margo Lane in Westminster, a further development of the city by builder/developer Larry P. Shields of Shields Development Co., Inc.

The early California-styled building with red tile roof and monolithic facades, scheduled to be completed in the fall of this year, will contain suites ranging from 450 to 20,000 square feet.

The builder pointed out the building has been designed, and will be constructed, so that individual suites can be customized to meet the needs of any professional individual or firm wanting a location in the prestige neighborhood, which is midway between the San Diego (405) and Garden Grove (22) Freeways.

Ample parking is being provided and will be night lighted for the safety and convenience of occupants and visitors.

The building has been designed by Barker & Barker, AIA, of Whittier, with the extensive professional landscape plans by Beau Shigetomi and Associates of Orange.

Los Coyotes Country Club Homes in preview

Southern California's newest exclusive home development — Los Coyotes Country Club Homes—is previewing in one of Orange County's most prestigious residential areas.

Bordering the famed Los Coyotes Country Club in the Bellehurst area of Buena Park, the new homes by the Emblem Development Corporation of Fullerton are priced from $61,950.

The fully air-conditioned single-family homes contain multiple luxury features.

One plan includes a living room and separate dining room, kitchen with breakfast nook, study, den with fireplace, master bedroom suite with private lounge and fireplace and bonus room.

The living room ceiling soars two stories with a view from the second floor stair landing.

All attached garages are designed for three cars and are complete with automatic garage door openers.

LAVISH detailing from wet bars to built-in shoe racks in the closets of some plans indicate the builder's consideration for the homebuyers. Concrete driveways, underground utilities and large lots all contribute to the beauty of the residential community designed to mellow into that traditional warmth and graciousness associated with fine neighborhoods.

The Bellehurst section of Buena Park is noted for expensive custom homes and lushly landscaped boulevards and gardens.

The social and recreational opportunities of the Los Coyotes Country Club and Golf Course are nearby, as well as the facilities of the Swimming Club and Teen Center. The Tennis Club is another prime amenity of this community-conscious area.

Los Alamitos land site for buildings

Two or more buildings will be constructed on two acres in Los Alamitos purchased from Mrs. Otelia Nelson of Paramount by Lewis M. Webb, local businessman.

Following clearing of the property on Los Alamitos Boulevard, between Sausalito and Serpentine, Webb plans to build facilities for use as a recreational vehicle and automotive sales, leasing and service agency,

S & S CYPRESS VILLAGE MASTER-PLANNED

Family-style recreation is key feature available to residents at S & S Construction's master-planned Cypress Village community in Cypress, offering Village Gardens townhomes, Village Greens patio homes and College Park detached residences. Townhome units, shown above, are priced from $31,950; patio homes start at $36,450. A total of 1,113 units are planned within the overall complex.

Division of Fluor in move

Additional industry enters Orange County July 2 when Fluor Engineers and Constructors, Inc. opens an office in Anaheim to accommodate a growing list of energy-oriented construction projects.

The 109,500-square foot facility offers space for approximately 700 personnel.

Initially, some 300 employees from Los Angeles Division headquarters in eastern Los Angeles will relocate to the building.

Fluor Vice President W. I. McKay anticipates the projects to be undertaken at the Anaheim location will demand the services of additional engineering, design, and support personnel from the local area.

The new location will be staffed with a personnel representative.

THE Anaheim office not only opens up a recruiting area in Orange County for Fluor Corporation, but it moves a segment of its work force closer to the company's recently-acquired land option in the Irvine Industrial Complex.

Long-range plans call for a new office building on this property.

Fluor holds a two-year lease on the building at 3320 E. La Palma Ave., with an option to renew the lease for two five-year periods. The facility was formerly occupied by a portion of Rockwell International's Electronics Group.

Fluor Engineers and Constructors is a wholly owned subsidiary of Fluor Corporation, a leading international firm specializing in engineering and construction services to the natural-resource industries.

Arco limiting supplies

Atlantic Richfield Company has announced the company is limiting retail gasoline sales east of the Rocky Mountains to 104 per cent of monthly sales volumes during the "comparable calendar month of 1972."

In the West, allocation of available retail gasoline has been increased in June to 96 per cent of the volumes of June 1972, up from the 84 per cent allocation figure of last month. The company anticipates that, barring unforeseen circumstances, the allocation percentage will continue to improve.

The announcement also said that distillate sales generally are being limited to 100 per cent of year ago volumes.

Gallery in registration of magazine

Registration of the magazine title, "Glimpses From The Galleries" as a protected U.S. service mark was announced last week by Realtor Reg Dupuy, Long Beach-Lake-wood area affiliate of Gallery of Homes, Inc.

The new registration is for the title of Gallery's national magazine, depicting photos and descriptive data about homes in every part of the country.

According to Realtor Dupuy, this new service mark is the fourth controlled by Gallery, the others being the name Gallery of Homes itself, the organization's logo (an artist palette with the name inside) and the logo palette without inscription.

TV sales up

CHICAGO (UPI) — Industry sales of color television receivers could hit $9.5 million this year, up from $8.6 million in 1972.

New 'Imperial Hotel' suggested for L.B.

A landmark Tokyo hotel, designed by Frank Lloyd Wright, may be recreated on landfill near the Queen's Way Bridge, a visiting Japanese corporate official has announced.

Kiyotsu Hayama, general manager of Tokyo's Imperial Hotel, and Feinberg Development Corp. Vice-President Jay Feinberg, reported during a visit to the harbor site this week that a final decision on the project will follow a full-scale survey of the area's potential later this month.

The officials visited the site with Takao Sakuma, deputy agent of the Dai-ichi Kangyo Bank, Ltd., of Los Angeles.

The hotel, said officials, would be patterned after Wright's original low-rise Imperial Hotel, which served "hundreds of thousands" of visitors before it was dismantled to permit construction of the current high-rise Imperial.

NEW JOB
Maurice Caillouette, formerly with Irvine Ranch Water District, has assumed sales responsibility for Ponderosa Homes' Park Place, Fountain Valley.

To be located on an 18-acre landfill at the bridge's port end, under 40-year lease to the Feinberg Corp., the recreated Imperial would include lily ponds, a downstairs shopping arcade and a lobby and bar along the lines of Wright's original creations, they said.

Sharing the location with the Imperial's site, west of the bridge, will be a 200-room Queensway Hilton Hotel to the east and an adjacent waterfront restaurant, to be constructed by the Quiet Cannon Corp., according to Feinberg.

DESIGN FOR PEOPLE

End space shortage; use all extra corners

By EMILY MALINO

Most people have a space shortage; some have space in the wrong place. Those extra corners and spaces, unrelated to the logical location of a conversation grouping of sitting furniture, can often turn out to be today's heaviest decorating headache.

Leftover space is usually the result of unthinking architecture. Sometimes it occurs in the approach or entry to a room, where the collective square footage is more than the living room itself. (More on that in another column.)

Today we will concentrate on those awkward corners, a common threat to any decorating scheme. Corners can be beautiful — the major challenge is to make these spaces interesting and useful, as well as related to the other furniture of the room.

Take a living room with windows in the right-angle walls and with plenty of blank wall between them in the corner. This is a typical problem, created especially by your builder to keep you awake and puzzled at night.

I WAS recently faced with this very situation. I could have created two huge walls of drapery, hanging yards and yards of fabric wall-to-wall, visually joining one window to another.

Or I could have tried an elaborate lambrequin or valance with full-blown draperies designed to eat into the corner and shrink it in the process.

Both of these options would have spelled decorating death to this rather delicately proportioned room, where a south-eastern exposure made the windows the best part of the room.

So, instead of allocating my window budget to

Fullerton Center planned

Construction is under way on Fullerton Center, a $6 million shopping complex in Fullerton along California's El Camino Real, it was announced by Ronald E. Birtcher, general partner, Sequoia Pacific, national land development affiliate of Southern Pacific Company.

Located on 8.6 acres on Harbor Boulevard at Valley View Avenue, just north of Fullerton's central business district, the new center is across from Hillcrest Park and adjacent to the North Orange County Courthouse, both Fullerton landmarks.

The center will consist of a row of seven one-story buildings and a two-story office complex, providing a total of 110,000-square feet of retail and commercial space.

IN THE wide esplanade fronting the buildings, flower carts, outdoor boutiques and displays of paintings and art objects will create the atmosphere of a festive village fair.

Projecting porticos from the major buildings will provide shade and will be decorated with hanging plants to add even more color to the open areas. Exteriors of the buildings will be of brick block with stucco walls in warm earth tones and Spanish tile roofs.

Tenants include Ralph's second largest supermarket in Southern California with 33,350-square feet of space, a 21,000-square foot Thrifty Drugs, a Bob's Big Boy Family Restaurant, a Powerline coin-operated service station and a 30,000-square-foot professional office complex.

Financing for Tustin unit set

Charterhouse Investment Co., Century City-based commercial and industrial mortgage bankers, has arranged $475,000 in long-term financing for a two-story office building complex under construction in Tustin.

According to Charterhouse assistant vice president Michael L. Schwab, the loan has been placed with an eastern life insurance company. It will be administered by Charterhouse, a subsidiary of The Colwell Company, Los Angeles, loan correspondent for some 240 nationwide institutional investors.

A development of Patschek-Veiga Construction Co., Tustin, and designed by Laurey Frey, Inc., Tustin, the proposed Spanish-styled building will be located at the southeast corner of Irving Boulevard and Prospect Avenue.

It is scheduled for completion in October.

Totalling over 17,000 square feet, the stucco, glass and brick walled complex will feature 18 deluxe office suites, air conditioning and parking for some 50 cars.

Clay firm establishes affiliate

Public Opinion Research Co. has been formed as an affiliate of Robert Clay P. R., Tustin, public relations counseling firm, it was announced by Robert Clay, principal of both firms.

Clay said his organization may be among the first PR firms in the country to establish its own opinion research affiliate.

"Betsy Ann Plank, the national chairman of the Public Relations Society of America, recently told me she is not aware of any other PR firm that has set up an opinion research operation," Clay said.

"Yet, nothing could make more sense. The whole idea of public relations is to create and build favorable public opinion."

Shapell income takes big jump

Shapell Industries, Inc., (NYSE, PSE) diversified homebuilder and community developer, announced at its annual meeting the appointment of Daniel L. Shafon as vice president-general counsel. Shafon, formerly senior counsel of First Charter Financial Corporation and American Savings and Loan Association, holds an LL.B. from the University of California at Los Angeles Law School.

He has extensive experience in real estate, construction, mortgage financing, and litigation in his prior associations with United California Bank, Bank of America, and in private practice with the law firm of Long & Levit.

Shapell Industries is involved in homebuilding in California and in Colorado. The company reported first quarter 1973 revenues up 20 per cent to $18,050,000 from $15,098,000.

Net income rose 22 per cent to $1,615,000 or $46 per share against $1,322,000 or $38 per share for the same period 1972.

Shapell reported revenues of $72.9 million with earnings of $6.3 million for fiscal 1972.

Construction begins on Viejo West units

Construction has started on Viejo West, a $1.8 million family-oriented townhouse development at Cherry Avenue and Second Street, El Toro, reported Hester Development Co., Corona del Mar builder-developer.

Designed by Foster-O'Neill, a Tustin architecture and planning firm, the 74-unit project will be completed in September in time for the opening of school. Individual units, offering two to four bedrooms and two baths, are located in one and two-story buildings. Units have from 905 to 1,314 square feet, attached two-car garages and private patios.

The 6.5 acre site is heavily landscaped with winding walkways through green belt areas, and a two-story recreation center is provided.

APPOINTED

Jeff Lodder, with Mission Viejo Company since 1969, has been appointed vice president of operations, Housing Development Division.

Sandville units sell

Only six homes remain to be sold in the 100-unit Sans Souci Townhomes development, a new, walled community for young families near Standard and McFadden Avenues in Santa Ana.

Sales of 94 townhouses in the project total nearly $2 million, according to builder C. H. (Chuck) Sandberg of the Sandville Development Co.

Sans Souci's first unit of 52 townhomes is sold out and the second increment of 48 homes is nearing the sellout point.

Aircro okay

NEW YORK (UPI) — Aircro Inc. says it has licensed Creusotloire, a French firm, to market Aircro's E-Brite metal products in Europe.

Shapell Industries renews credit line

Shapell Industries, Inc. (NYSE, PSE), diversified homebuilder and community developer, has announced the company has renewed its $40 million line of credit with Union Bank of Beverly Hills.

Nathan Shapell, chairman and chief executive officer, stated: "We are pleased with the terms of the commitment and we anticipate continuing the use of this capital in our planned growth on an already solid base."

Shapell Industries reported first quarter 1973 revenues up 20 per cent to $18,050,000 from $15,098,000. First quarter net income rose 22 per cent to $1,615,000 or $46 per share against $1,322,000 or $38 per share for the same period 1972.

Tapmatic moves to Irvine offices

Tapmatic Corporation, formerly of Costa Mesa, has moved into its new $250,000 office and manufacturing facility at 1851 Kettering St. in Irvine, it was announced by Allan S. Johnson, president.

The new facility, located on a 1.2-acre site, totals 18,000 sq. ft. and includes 2,100 sq. ft. of mezzanine-level storage. Tapmatic is a manufacturer and distributor of precision machine tools which are sold in major countries around the world, according to Johnson.

"Close coordination with the owner was required to insure installation of shop equipment without interrupting normal business activities," said Alex Robertson Jr., president of the Irvine-based general contracting company, which designed and constructed the facility.

Architect for the facility was Robert L. Carli & Associates of Los Angeles. Financing was handled by First Western Bank & Trust Company, Los Angeles.

Shapell is presently active in community development in Los Angeles and Orange Counties, San Diego, San Jose, Danville, Stockton, Sacramento and in the Denver area.

Mission Viejo milestone at its New Madrid units

Mission Viejo Company has marked a new milestone with the sale of its 1,000th New Madrid home in only 27 months.

Mary Lawrence, director of operations, single-family homes, noted this represented more than $45 million, and better than one sale a day over the entire period of time.

The New Madrid neighborhood, which opened late in February, 1971, is extremely popular and has been the scene in recent months of competitive drawings for the privilege of obtaining a home.

Priced from $40,000 to $55,750, New Madrid homes are available in six models with three to five bedrooms and two or three baths.

privacy, with separate dining rooms, large walk-in closets and individual laundry rooms.

NEW MADRID model homes are close to the million dollar Marguerite Recreation Center, which features a complete program of adult physical fitness.

An expansion program at Marguerite Center has added a huge 50-meter pool, a 5,000-square-foot warm-up pool, and seven new tennis courts.

The models may be reached via the La Paz Road exit of the San Diego Freeway, left on La Paz to Marguerite Parkway, then left on Marguerite to the models.

Winners in the 13th annual Building Industry Association high school architectural scholarship competition were honored recently at an awards dinner.

The event is sponsored by the Harbor Area Chapter of BIA in conjunction with the Industrial Arts Division of the Long Beach Unified School District.

Winner of first place in the working drawings competition was Mark Zall of Millikan; second was Cairney James of Jordan, and David Boyer of Poly won third.

In the design competition, students from Lakewood High took all three places: first to Shannon Adams, second to Paul Billings and third to G. A. McCombs.

In the models competition, students from Wilson High won all three awards. First went to Berge Basmajian, and a tie for second to Jim Sins and Robert Pearson. A special award was given to Curtis Grove of Millikan High for his construction scale model. (First place winners received $100; second place, $50, and third, $25.)

President Charles Philbrick was in charge of the program.

James Acret, BIA attorney, discussed the legal aspects of environmental impacts of today. Paul McKenzie Jr. made the presentations to the scholarship winners.

No-fault idea

NEW YORK (UPI) — Motorists who have the new modified no-fault insurance policies soon will not need to have qualms about driving in states that do not have such laws if they are insured by companies affiliated with the Insurance Services Office, the ISO announced. ISO vice-president Carl Black Jr. said his organization is inaugurating a system by which basic auto insurance protection will be automatically extended to comply with the laws of any state or Canadian province the motorist enters in his car. "There will be no additional charge for this protection.

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (UPI) — Phillips Petroleum Co. says it has awarded a contract to a British firm for construction of a facility in Britain to process oil from the Ekofisk Field in the North Sea off the Norwegian Coast.

Ponderosa contributes La Palma development

Nearly 15 per cent of the residents of the City of La Palma live in Ponderosa Homes, reported G. Ross Crawford, director of sales for the Kaiser Aetna division.

"More than 600 families have purchased Ponderosa Homes in La Palma since we opened our first neighborhood there in 1969," Crawford said. "Now we have six neighborhoods throughout the city, and are in the process of building our seventh which is already 66 per cent sold."

Once comprised of 35 dairies and six poultry farms, La Palma has been making a careful transition from dairy land to urban community since the City Council made its decision to urbanize in 1965. Because of its free-way proximity to both Orange County and downtown Los Angeles, the agricultural lands there have been in great demand.

There are about 13,000 residents now, and in 1975

—its year of ultimate urbanization—La Palma foresees a population of only 16,000 people.

"This beautiful and very complete city already contains a number of commercial centers, as well as a hospital, office buildings and several industrial plants," Crawford noted. He pointed out that today only one dairy and one poultry ranch remain. "And according to municipal ordinance, even they will be gone by 1975," he said.

IN A recent newspaper article, La Palma's mayor, Ed Bryne, was quoted as saying that the changeover has turned out well for the city. "We have been thoroughly master planned," he said. "We have grown with balanced development."

Contributing to that balance are the neighborhoods of Ponderosa Homes which offer buyers a choice of six quality home plans ranging in size from 1,400 to 2,407 square feet, and in price from $37,990 to $46,990. "Excellent financing is available," Crawford added.

One and two-story homes offer either three bedrooms and two baths, or four bedrooms and 2½ baths. Each plan comes in a choice of at least three exterior elevations on which brick, cedar shingles and rough-sawn siding are used extensively.

EVERY Ponderosa Home is designed around a spacious family center—an oversized combination of modern kitchen, family dining area and large, comfortable family room with its own custom fireplace.

Award-winning design features of Ponderosa Homes combine such luxuries as sunken living rooms, formal dining rooms, powder rooms, separate utility rooms, beamed ceilings, wet bars and large, finished bonus rooms.

"Lifetime quality is built into every Ponderosa Home," Crawford pointed out, "in the form of cast iron tubs, copper plumbing, ceramic tile countertops, fenced rear yards, concrete driveways and shake or cedar shingle roofs."

Open daily from 10 a.m. until dusk, the Ponderosa Homes sales office and furnished model complex as at 7511 Moody Street, between Orangethorpe and La Palma Avenues.

Rights bought

LIBERTYVILLE, Ill. (UPI) — International Minerals & Chemical Corp. has bought rights to an additional 20 million tons of phosphate ore reserves in Florida. The company said royalties to be paid as the ore is mined will exceed $25 million. The deposits are near Noralyn and Clear Springs in Central Florida.

LBDBR PRESIDENT WARNS:

Watch for lender gouging

Recent hearings in the state legislature on mortgage lending practices have shown that it is still possible to be victimized by a fringe of shady lenders, says Clyde S. Brown, president of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors.

Spotlighted were the industrial loan companies and mortgage loan brokers who specialize in second mortgages. While most provide a useful service, "there are among them those who prey on the unsuspecting, gouging carefully just inside the law," Brown said.

"Basically, the second mortgage is a device to tide a property owner over a financial bind. It may be used to refinance property, consolidate debts, provide money for paying taxes, remodeling and repairs, or to make up a shortage in down payment.

"Let's look at the latter as an example," said Brown.

"A family is buying a $25,000 house. Down payment required is $5,000, but they can scrape together only $2,500. So a lender agrees to provide the additional $2,500, taking a second mortgage on the property as security.

"The second typically has a higher rate of interest than the first trust deed and runs a comparatively short time, say five years at 9 per cent. In case of default, the lender may foreclose on the property within certain rules.

"The most frequent vehicle for gouging is the balloon payment at the end of the term, in this case, five years. Payment on the mortgage probably is 1 per cent per month: in our example, $25. But at the end of five years, the low monthly payment has applied very little against the loan principal. The borrower still owes $2,028.50 and must pay that lump sum or be in default," Brown said.

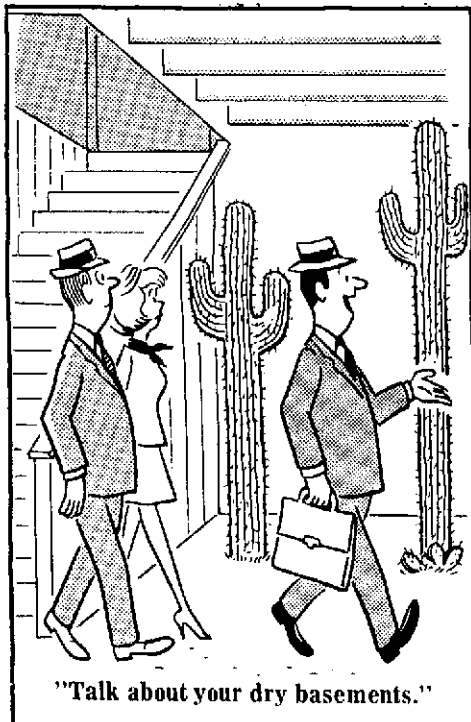

"ENTER A lender who agrees to refinance the loan, but at a higher rate of interest and for a shorter term, say 10 per cent for three years. He may also charge various fees for processing the loan, tacking on as many as he can legally get away with.

"He may tell the borrower it will be necessary to take out a life insurance and disability policy as a condition for the loan, collecting an insurance brokerage fee for that as well," Brown explained. "He then takes those fees out of the proceeds of the loan at the beginning of the term, causing the face amount to increase. If he manages to tack on $500 in such fees, the face amount climbs to $2,528.50, higher than the original amount of the loan five years earlier.

"The family now continues with a monthly payment of $25.29, if it remains at 1 per cent. At the end of the three-year term for the new loan, they will still owe $2,352.05 as a balloon payment, and the cycle begins again," Brown said.

"There are other means of gouging, particularly through exorbitant late charges. But basically, the balloon payment is the source of trouble for the unwary," he warned. "It is for this reason that in my work as a Realtor, when clients use help of a second mortgage, I make sure they also realize their obligation. A lump payment due in three or five years may seem comfortably far away. But unless the family provides early for funds to meet it, the balloon can loom uncomfortably close and put an impossible strain on their finances."

expensive yardage, I used this fund to create a useful corner with character.

I bought two inexpensive folding screens and painted them bright yellow, an accent I used in the sitting furniture in the room.

I found a very modern, very sleek, round table with a polished white marble top on a gutsy chrome base. Combined with a modern wall lamp it makes a lovely foil for two elegant French chairs. With velvet seats and cane backs, these round out a complete corner that not only creates a useful new space but also extends the scope of the conversation seating in the major part of the room.

THE CHAIRS are light weight but comfortable, and they can easily be brought into the living area to join the others when needed.

The corner itself makes a pleasant place for reading, sewing or writing letters — an all-purpose space.

The built-in bonus of this corner solution is that the window treatment itself, free of the need for fabric because the windows have become second to the new focus on the corner, can be treated very casually.

Export sales

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — An oil company official said the delay of the United States in switching to the metric system is hampering the country's export sales. W. Andrew Wright of Sun Oil Co. of Marcus Hook, Pa., said industry is slowly shifting over to the metric system instead of waiting for Congress to formally change the legal weights and measures. Wright urged the petroleum industry to follow suit in order to reduce the expensive excessive number of duplications in measurements.

Canadian builders visit Village San Juan units

Forty-five Canadians from the greater Toronto area spontaneously burst into their national anthem, "The Maple Leaf Forever," when they recently walked into the sales office at Village San Juan, U.S. Development Corporation's $20 million planned residential community being built in San Juan Capistrano.

The Canadians, all representing various building-oriented businesses in or near Toronto, were touring new home projects throughout Southern California.

U. S. Development Corp. officers decided to greet the visitors with their own "Maple Leaf" flag, displayed in the center of the sales office.

As the tour members embarked from a bus outside and filed through the sales office door, one by one they saw the flag. In a moment the assembly was singing the Canadian anthem.

THE VISITORS were also greeted with slices of strawberry pie; a delicacy not often encountered in the nation to the north, along with coffee and tea. The Canadians then toured the Village San Juan models—where just two weeks ago 21 sales were recorded in a two-day period.

Many members of the group took time to personally thank John Stuart, sales

A WARMINGTON DEVELOPMENT

WHAT'S YOUR PROBLEM?

Many problems found in purchasing property

By DON CAMPBELL

The whole process of buying or selling a home — despite the baffling legal paper-shuffling required — really comes off a lot less painfully (in most cases) than either the buyer or the seller envisions that it will.

And it's a vicious trap, because it, in no way, prepares either party for the nightmare that lies ahead: the physical reshuffling of everyone's possessions from house "A" to house "B" to house "C".

MR. CAMPBELL:

We purchased a house six months ago and passed the papers last September. The seller is still in the home since his new home has not been completed. He is paying our mortgage and has given us three different dates when he was going to get out.

How can we get possession of OUR home? We gave notice where we are now, and everyone is getting hung up over these delays. — Mrs. H. H. (Quincy, Mass.)

ANSWER: Do I detect someone's patience running out? I do, indeed, and I don't blame you. One of the stickiest things in the world is trying to time a house sale so that the logistics work out to everyone's satisfaction. And, I'm afraid, it rarely does.

Every time a would-be-buyer makes a proposition on a house at least three dates are spelled out in black and white: the date by which the seller must either accept or reject the offer; the date of the closing of the deal; and the date on which possession of the physical house takes place.

I can appreciate the fact that you feel sympathy for the seller and his inability to get into HIS new home, but I am afraid that you are now down to the nitty-gritty and have arrived at the point where someone has to get hurt.

There's no reason why it should be you, because you were prepared to take possession on the date agreed on, and you have been far more patient about it than most buyers.

This could drag on indefinitely unless you insist that he be out of the house by such-and-such a date. If his own home isn't completed by then it certainly isn't your fault, and he'll simply have to store his possessions and move into a motel for the duration. The incentive that this will give him to light a fire under his builder will be a tremendous thing to behold.

Shadow Run's financing praised

Warmington Development Inc. has announced its Shadow Run development, located on La Palma Avenue west of Moody in La Palma, will be ready for occupancy by early summer.

Phase One of this 218-home development is already over 50 per cent sold. Buyers have mentioned financing as one of the strong selling points on Shadow Run.

Priced from $37,750 to $47,490, conventional financing is by Mutual Savings & Loan; 10 per cent down entitles the buyer to a 7½ per cent — 29½-year loan; 20 per cent down entitles the buyer to a 7¼ per cent — 29½ year loan. Three floor plans are available with three to five bedrooms in 12 exterior elevations.

Included in the selling price are such features as wall-to-wall carpeting, block wall fencing, fireplace, tile counter, built-in kitchen appliances, wet bars, concrete drives and custom kitchen cabinets.

Shadow Run is in one of the most desired areas of Orange County with easy access to three major freeways — the Santa Ana, Artesia and San Diego.

Every family requirement is brought within convenient distance of this location, whether it be employment, schools, shopping or recreation.

Molnar creates new Group

Fred Molnar, president of Molnar & Associates, Inc., Beverly Hills-based advertising and public relations firm, has announced formation of the Real Estate Group.

The new group will specialize in advertising, public relations and merchandising of real estate and its related industries.

Initial clients include Wrightwood Sales Development Company/Levitt Modular Homes, Spectrum American, a developer of shopping centers, and Signal Hill Condominiums.

The new Molnar Group will be headed by Daniel L. Sefton, vice president and director of the public relations division, and Myrna R. Molnar, agency executive vice president and creative director.

Both have extensive backgrounds in advertising and public relations of residential, commercial and recreational real estate.

Molnar & Associates believe that "with the increased special requirements of real estate marketing there is a definite need for a formal specialization of marketing communication knowledge and talent in real estate."

Garon opens third Red Carpet office

Garon Investments, Inc. of Yorba Linda announced the opening of their third Red Carpet, Realtors office this year.

The new office at 5031 La Palma had its grand opening Friday.

Ron Henry, Ron Gate, Ron Christian and Gary Bolton are the owners of Garon Investments, Inc. Ken Blasingham and Tom Duncan will be the managing partners of the La Palma office.

Garon opened its first Red Carpet office in January in Yorba Linda and the second office at 5001 Second Ave., Long Beach, in May. The corporation has grown to a sales staff of 45 salesmen in six months. A fourth office is soon to open in Diamond Bar.

Le Gran outlets to grow by fifth

Le Gran Corp. (ASE), Long Beach, plans to increase the number of its department locations by at least 20 per cent in 1973, David Grand, president, told the annual meeting of shareholders this week.

The expansion is the largest for any year in the company's history.

Le Gran's board of directors declared the company's first regular semi-annual cash dividend.

It was also announced Le Gran sales for the first quarter ended April 30 increased 26 per cent to $4,674,000 from $3,722,000 in the comparable period of last year. Complete operating results for the quarter will be available in the first week of June.

At the start of the current fiscal year on Feb. 1, Le Gran had a total of 44 jewelry and general merchandise departments in operation.

At least nine new locations will be added in 1973, one of which just opened in Houston.

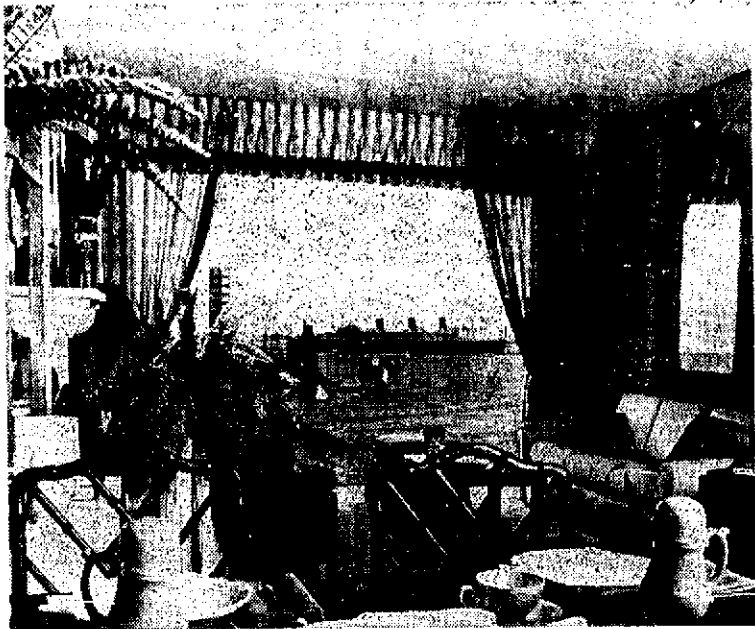

Of the 45 Le Gran departments now in operation, a total of 40 are in Gemco and Memco membership department stores owned by Lucky Stores Inc. An agreement with Lucky, extends through 1986.

O.C. Escrow unit meets Wednesday

Members of the Orange County Escrow Association will hear a "Financial Forecast" at a dinner meeting Wednesday in the Holiday Inn, Costa Mesa, with a social hour at 6:30 preceding the 7:30 p.m. dinner.

Speaker will be Herbert B. Tasker, vice president of Mason-McDuffie Company of Southern California, mortgage banking firm. Associated with the firm since 1963, he was manager of the Walnut Creek office for two and one-half years before starting the Southern California operation in February 1970.

The facility now has five residential offices, including commercial loan, insurance and escrow departments.

CALIFORNIA Classics By-the-Sea is situated in one of the city's finest residential neighborhoods. Both Meadowlark and Huntington Seacrest golf courses are nearby.

The new community will be in close proximity to the proposed 350-acre Huntington Beach Regional Park.

Bordering on Lake Huntington, this new park will eventually feature fishing and boating facilities, along with a bird and wildlife sanctuary.

Original Classics homes have been the state's best selling new home series since their first opening in 1968. The homes received national recognition with numerous awards, including House and Home magazine's Award of Merit for Design and Construction.

THE NEW development includes a variety of one and two-story homes with 3 and 4 bedrooms, with prices beginning at $37,990.

Four different floorplans are offered with a choice of 12 individual exteriors, ranging from California ranch to traditional.

Architecturally detailed wood and masonry trim, with attractive shake and shingle roofs are among the distinctive appointments of various homes.

Exceptional features of the new Kendall designs include an abundance of glass with living areas situated to take advantage of outdoor surroundings.

There are dramatic cathedral and sloped ceilings, handsome double-door entries, large dining areas, and custom, raised hearth fireplaces in living rooms or family rooms.

The Classic "Terrace Kitchens" include such luxury extras as built-in General Electric range and double oven (one self-cleaning), dishwasher and disposal; ceramic tile counter tops and furniture finished ash cabinetry; and sliding pass-thru windows to patio serving counters.

MORE SPECIAL items included in the purchase price are wall-to-wall carpeting in living room, hall and master bedroom; rear lot-line fencing; cultured marble pullman tops and ceramic tile surrounding baths and showers; porcelain steel tubs and lavatories with crystal clear acrylic controls by American Standard.

Three of the New California Classics homes are popular single-story designs opening from a central entry to an activity area on one side and privately situated sleeping quarters on the other.

The Plan 100 is a care-free and convenient smaller home with three bedrooms and two baths, attractive sloped ceiling living room with fireplace and large family room kitchen area.

Barnard at new center

Stephen N. Barnard has been appointed president of Koll Center Newport, a 177-acre master-planned office building and commercial project bounded by Campus Drive and Jamboree and MacArthur Boulevards, Newport Beach.

Announcement of Barnard's appointment was made by Don Koll, Newport Beach investment builder, who said Barnard will have overall responsibility for the direction of what will evolve into the largest single-owner multi-building office complex on the West Coast.

More than 1.6 million square feet of prime office space will be developed at Koll Center Newport and it will be marketed by Coldwell, Banker & Co., leasing agents.

Tables hurt, too

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (UPI) — Chairman Stewart S. Cort of Bethlehem Steel Corp. assailed the New York legislature for passing a law prohibiting the sale of allegedly hazardous toys. Cort said ordinary household tables causes twice as many injuries to children as toys, according to federal statistics.

He told the annual dinner meeting of the West Branch Manufacturers Association the New York law is based on a misinterpretation of five-year old estimates.

Four share U.S. Open lead

...here comes Palmer!

OAKMONT, Pa. — It was a scene from out of the past.

There were Julius Boros and Arnold Palmer striding up the fairway together, locked in a head-to-head duel for the lead in the U.S. Open golf championship.

It might have been the Open of 1953, when Palmer was at the crest of his worldwide popularity.

Or it might have been the Open of 1953, when the broad-faced, methodical Boros was the defending champion.

But it was the 1973 edition of the world's most prestigious golf championship and again the two heroes of another era moved into a share of the lead going into the last round.

Boros, now 53, benefited from incredible putting — and a favorable ruling — down the stretch while Palmer, hitching up his britches and flashing that famous smile, waved to a standing ovation from the huge gallery around the 18th green at the Oakmont Country Club.

"Hell, I knew most of them," said Palmer, 43, who had his beginning some 50 miles away at Latrobe, Pa.

Each managed a three-under-par 68 and were tied at 210 with young lion

Arnold Palmer was crushing his drives Saturday and leading famed Army around Oakmont CC enroute to share of U.S. Open lead.

Jerry Heard and lanky longshot John Schlee.

This is the first time four players ever shared the lead after three rounds in the Open and it's only the second time more than two players were deadlocked going into the final round.

Heard, a mop-haired, easy-going 26-year-old, had an eagle-three en route to his brilliant, five-under-par 66. Schlee, the graying Hawaiian Open champion, shot a 67.

Tom Weiskopf, winner of three of his last four starts, was just one stroke back after romping over the 6,921-yard layout with a 67 for 211.

Joining the logjam near the top was the irrepressible Lee Trevino, tied at one-under 212 with dour Bob Charles, the New Zealand lefty.

Gary Player of South Africa, the leader through the first two rounds, stumbled with a string of five bogeys in one string of seven holes and went to a 77 and 214.

Jack Nicklaus, the defending champion, stumbled on a rash of missed putts. He had only one birdie as he took a 74 for a 214 total — four back of the leaders.

The huge gallery that flocked to the historic course in the Pittsburgh suburbs — site of Nicklaus' 1962 U.S. Open play-off victory over Palmer — were treated to a rare sight.

It was Boros' amble and Palmer's charge — and they stayed dead even.

Boros, a paunchy old guy and the idol of the over-age set, has a deliberate, unhurried gait and smooth, fluid swing.

His playing partner was Palmer, the quick-striding one-time king of the game who is hoping for a comeback to the greatness that once was his.

They played with different styles in the slop and goo of the course made wet and heavy by morning rains.

Palmer, who has been frustrated before in his bid for another major title, refused to get too excited.

Homer helps beat Yanks

A dandy debut by Scheinblum

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

Richie Scheinblum was explicit about his evacuation from Cincinnati where he was doing nothing but gathering cobwebs and growing old less than gracefully.

But there was one thing that bothered him about departing from the ranks of the Reds and heading for more heavenly prospects with the Angels.

"They promised me a World Series ring at Cincinnati," Scheinblum remarked Saturday night, "so I guess now I'll have to collect one here."

Scheinblum arrived in the Southland at 1:30 p.m.

ANGEL OF DAY
RICHIE SCHEINBLUM slugged home run in first game as Angel, triggering 5-2 victory over New York.

Saturday afternoon and at 6 p.m. he was stationed in leftfield against the New York Yankees.

At approximately 7:15 p.m. Scheinblum stepped to the plate in the fifth inning to face the Yankees' Pat Dobson in a 0-0 game. It did not remain 0-0 long. Scheinblum parked one of Dobson's serves on the asphalt beyond the rightfield fence and the Angels went on to defeat the Yankees, 5-2, presenting Nolan Ryan with his first career victory over the Bronx Bombers.

"It's been so long since I hit a home run I forgot my trot," Scheinblum deadpanned to a covey of newsmen who hovered around his locker.

It's been so long since Scheinblum has done anything except sit.

This was only his second start in a month and it did not figure his swing would be a thing of beautiful timing.

But it was.

"Nothing in this game surprises me any more," said Scheinblum, who along with Mike Epstein gives the Angels a corner on the Jewish ballplayer market.

Ryan got his customary 10 strikeouts and went the distance for the eighth consecutive time but he was not poetry in motion, either.

He threw the unlikely total of 180 pitches and was battling his control and rhythm all night.

"It felt like I threw 400," he said wearily, removing a piece of tape from his ankles. "I was constantly getting behind; that is why there were so many hits."

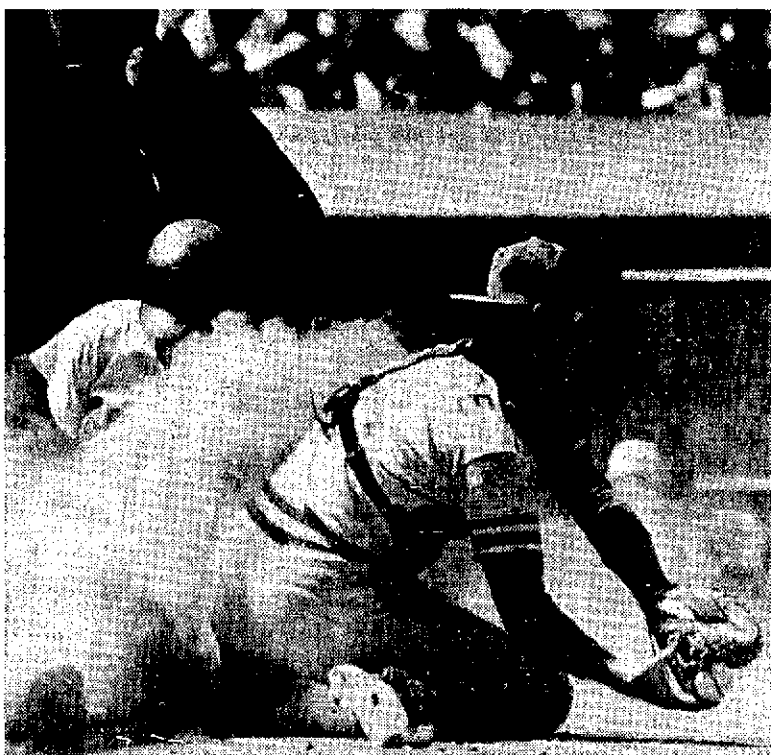

Nolan gave up the ghastly total of eight.

Pat Dobson, making his first start in a Yankee uniform, was betrayed by two errors — including one of his own — which led to three unearned Angel runs, the final margin of victory.

After Scheinblum's shot snapped the runless tie in the fifth, the Angels scored two more in the sixth on Vada Pinson's bloop double, an intentional walk to Frank Robinson, Ron Blomberg's throwing error and Bob Oliver's double.

They manufactured a pair of unearned runs in Cold doesn't deter Dodgers' 'Penguin'

By GORDON VERRELL

MONTREAL — According to the calendar, summer arrives sometime next week.

According to the thermometer, it's the dead of winter.

It was 50 degrees and drizzling when the umpires started Saturday's game between the Dodgers and Montreal Expos.

That was as warm as it got all afternoon.

It's the kind of weather suitable for polar bears and Eskimos, so the man they call Penguin relished the cold.

Ron Cey, the penguin-like third baseman of the Dodgers, slugged a three-run homer in a four-run third inning as the O'Malleys snapped Montreal's seven-game win streak with a 6-3 victory, cut short after six innings by the icy rain.

"It's the worst conditions I've ever pitched in," said Claude Osteen who earned his eighth victory in 12 decisions.

More than 10,000 hearty Canadians showed up at Jarry Park despite the cold and rain which began falling late Friday night and didn't let up until less than an hour before game time.

It started raining again in the first inning but

ODDGER OF DAY
RON CEY slugged three-run homer in six-inning, 6-3 victory over Montreal.

The Expos, who've already had six games postponed, sincerely wanted to get Saturday's game played. After the Dodgers rolled Bill Stoneman for four runs in the third, highlighted by Cey's eighth homer of the year, they had second thoughts.

"It was weather more suited for hockey," Osteen said later in the comfort of the clubhouse. "In that kind of weather there was nothing to do but throw fast balls. I couldn't get any traction out on the mound."

The win snapped the Dodgers' two-game mini skid and was only their second win in five meetings with the suddenly potent Expos.

For Cey, who got on base three times on a homer, single and a walk, it marked the end of a slump that's plagued him much of the road trip. Until Saturday he'd managed just two hits in his last 18 at bat as his average dipped below .300 for the first time in nearly a month.

"You can't really worry about it," he said. "We have a good club and you

Hilton surprises; Stones jumps 7-5

Combined news services

BAKERSFIELD — Steve Prefontaine came within a hair of the American 3-mile record, Len Hilton stunned the stars in the mile and Dwight Stones high jumped 7 feet, 5 inches at the 85th National Amateur Athletic Union track championships Saturday night.

Prefontaine was clocked in 12:53.4 to barely miss the American mark of 12:53.0 by Gerry Lindgren.

Moments earlier the surprising Hilton used a surprising late spring to win the mile in a lifetime best 3:55.9.

Hilton, running for the Pacific Coast Club, of Long Beach is known as a fine three miler with little late speed. But his last 220 was quick enough to overhaul pace setter Mary Liquori, who ran second in 3:56.8 for his best mark in two years.

Chuck LaBenz, out with injuries the past two years, startled the experts also by running 3:58.0 for third.

Stones cleared 7-5 on his final attempt to become the No. 4 leaper in history.

The lanky 6-foot-4 former UCLA student flopped backwards over the bar, brushing it with his jersey — but the bar stayed up.

He failed three times at 7-6 1/4, one-half inch above the world mark.

Rick Wohlhuter, who set the world record in the 880-yard run two weeks ago, remained dominant in the event by thrashing Olympic gold medalist Dave Wottle in meet record time of 1:45.6.

Wohlhuter led coming off the final turn and Wottle's usual late surge fell short as he clocked 1:46.2 for second.

Prefontaine broke away from Dick Buerkle of the New York AC with three laps to go. With one left he was within sight of the American mark, needing 59 seconds flat to equal the record. His time was 59.4.

Buerkle, who runs with a shaved head, was second in 12:59.8 to become only the third American under 13 minutes.

Texas Southern's Tommy Fulton was the early leader in the mile but Liquori grabbed the lead with 300 yards left and held a seven-yard edge going into the final turn before the 6-foot-2 Hilton made his move.

Steve Williams became only the second sprinter in 13 years to win both the 100 and 220 yard dashes. Williams won the 220 Saturday night in 20.4, coming from five yards back in the last 15 to nip Mark Lutz by one tenth.

He had captured the 100 in 9.4 Friday night.

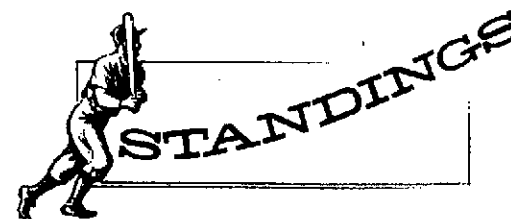

The last man to win both dashes was Ray Norton in 1960, taking the 100-meter dash in 10.5 and the 200 in 20.8.

NCAA champ Doug Brown rallied in the final 50 yards to win the steeplechase in near American record time.

Brown passed Barry Brown to win in 8:26.8, only four-tenths of a second off Sid Sink's American record. Barry Brown was timed in 8:27.1.

John Craft took the triple jump with a leap of Ice hockey players in bondage no more

Curt Flood said he was in bondage, Roman Gabriel said he was trapped and unloved and Richie Allen said he was misunderstood.

Until recently, an inquiry into the state of mind of the average professional hockey player would have brought a reply that he regarded himself as in bondage, trapped and unloved and misunderstood.

To hear a National Hockey League athlete tell it, his life was the property of other parties and indeed it was. The NHL drafted infants in the cradle and practiced ownership throughout the player's lifetime. Salaries were low and the turnover high and if the players had a voice, it spoke only to deaf ears.

All of this was before the birth of the World Hockey Assn. which provided another avenue down which players might stroll. Whether another league is good for the game probably leaves room for dispute but there is no question it is wonderful for the people who play it.

Marc Tardif, one of the splendid young properties of the Montreal Canadiens, recently was in our town for the purpose of leaping to the Los Angeles Sharks of the WHA. Asked his personal reasons, Tardif outlined the standard items such as financial security, peace of mind and so on and so forth.

What Tardif related of real interest was the manner in which the NHL looks at the other side.

"THE NHL MADE A BIG mistake in my opinion," Tardif said. "The people in the NHL had things their own way for so long they made the mistake of underestimating the new league.

"They laughed and said it wouldn't get off the ground. When it did, they laughed and said it wouldn't finish the season.

"Right now, they aren't laughing quite as loud." If the established league made a mistake, according to Tardif, it was not the first.

"If they had treated the players more like humans before the WHA came along," he said, "perhaps not so many of the guys would have been so quick to jump."

Tardif was the second important player to betray the Canadiens. J. C. Tremblay left before Montreal's Stanley Cup winning season of 1972-73.

"Perhaps they didn't care so much about J.C.," Tardif said, "because he was going to be 33, but I think they made a mistake."

Tremblay was an established super star. A decade his junior, Tardif is regarded by most as a super star of the future. Terry Slater, the coach of the Sharks, does not think there is any mistake in that particular judgment.

"Marc will score more than 50 goals in the WHA," Slater said, looking at his new man the way a guy looks at a new car.

INASMUCH AS THE MONTREAL franchise is the most successful in all of hockey, one wonders why they would let such potential get away. The suspension is that the Canadiens made something of a mistake.

"Their first mistake," Tardif said, "was in not taking me seriously when I said I might leave. They did not come close on money or any of the other things we discussed."

"I'm sure they did not think a French Canadian would leave the Montreal club to play in the other league, certainly not in California."

"They were wrong. They made a big mistake." Among the issues Tardif discussed with the Canadiens was the matter of a no cut, no trade contract. It was contrary to the policy of the Montreal organization and they would not relax the rule.

"I like to feel I have roots someplace," Tardif said. "That's important to a man with a family."

This man's is a family of three, soon to be four. "We have a six-month-old baby," Marc explained, "and another one already on the way. That was a mistake."

Well, nobody is perfect.

Bobby Chacon fights his way out of trouble

"Fighting is not a pleasure, you know. It's gotten to me, training in the gym all the time. I want to make the most money I can and as soon as I can get out of boxing." — Bobby Chacon.

It's the American saga. Tough little kid always getting into fights, running away from home, figures to grow up to be a troublemaker. Somehow, though, kid turns out all right.

Bobby Chacon may turn out all right, too, but it's too soon to tell. He never grew up, which leaves him just the right size to make trouble for most of the world's featherweights, and he's still running away from home.

"I'm away from home now and it's in my head all the time," says the unbeaten slugger from Sylmar, who meets former bantamweight champion (he did grow up) Ruben Olivares at the Forum Saturday night.

RICH ROBERTS

"I want to go home," says Chacon, whose wife Valerie is pregnant with their second child, due in November. "It's been about a week and a half now and I won't see her until the fight's over."

Bobby's first child was a girl, now not quite 3. He hopes the second is a boy.

CHACON HAD 19 fights in his first year as a pro, winning them all, most by knockouts.

"It's going to be easier now," he says. "I'll have more time between fights because I'm making bigger purses ($40,000 against Olivares). But you've got to work your way up to that."

"I love fighting when the time comes to fight for money. But the training in the gym, hitting other guys all the time. . . I don't like that part of it."

"Right now I'm in the hotel with Joe (manager Joe Ponce) and my Uncle Enoch, so I'm in bed by 10 o'clock and up at 5 to run. That's one thing I really hate. They have to make me do it."

"The food is terrible. I have to eat those softboiled eggs with a glass of water and toast in the morning. I'm a good eater and it doesn't appeal to me."

POVERTY DOESN'T appeal to Bobby, either. He learned about that while literally fighting his way through San Fernando High.

"I just had my mom. My father went somewhere when I was very young. My stepfather was very good to me, but I was mostly on my own."

"I ran away from home a lot. I'd stay two or three months, usually in the project with my friend Richard. This is where I got my strength. He was six feet and 180 pounds and one of the toughest guys in San Fernando — probably the toughest. We'd fight, just hitting on the shoulders, never on the face, and without gloves."

"He was almost like my brother and he's not making it too good. I guess I knew good from bad. . . . Even if you didn't always act like it?"

"I used to fight with a couple of guys, three guys — one time I fought four guys at a time, and I took 'em. I never started them fights but they always got on me because I was little, plus after awhile they'd say, 'That's the guy you've got to watch out for.' But I always wanted to win."

ONE OF CHACON'S classmates was Anthony Davis, who plays football for a college on Figueroa Ave.

"We never fought," says Bobby, "but we almost did. I guess he was a little scared of me and I was a little scared of him, because he was so wide."

"We were pretty close. We went out in the streets together and did a few things — stole tires off cars and stuff — but we haven't seen each other in a couple of years."

After high school, Chacon married Valerie, took a job at Lockheed and started boxing as an amateur.

"That was a rough schedule," he recalls. "I was a plastic fabricator, making the noses on planes. Eight hours there and then go to the gym, and running. I quit as soon as I turned pro."

"Then I started going to school at Cal State Northridge. I went there for a year and a half, but going away to (training) camp all the time, it was no use. I just couldn't make it. I'm going to try to go back later."

THE LATTER statement has a familiar ring to it — like, a million other fighters before Bobby.

"I really want to," he insists. "I hope I can. I have it in my head that I'll go back. I want to get that physical education degree so I can teach kids in school. I'd like to help kids."

Chacon, 21½, is little more than a kid himself but appears to have his values organized. After this fight he and his family will move into a 2½-acre ranch he purchased in Sylmar.

"Boxing bought it for me," he says. "My wife wants horses. She's the reason I bought it."

"I've also got a '48 Chevy that's fixed so it runs perfectly and saves gas, and I've got a '70 truck, so I'm satisfied. If that's all I get out of boxing, I'm happy."

Robert Mitchum has a star in his stable

There's nothing like a good horse to turn on the sunshine.

You don't need rose-colored glasses when you've got a stakes winner in the barn. Some horsemen even claim that such a horse is a better all-around cure than the old standby of chicken soup.

If you have any doubts as to the truth of the above, I refer you to Mr. Robert Mitchum, the movie star, plus Earl Holmes, the quarter horse trainer, and Ronnie Banks, the race rider.

The team of Mitchum, Banks and Holmes have just such a horse at Los Alamitos and on this coming Saturday night they're hoping to complete a parlay that began last May 19 at Bay Meadows.

Oh, yes. There's another important member of the illustrious group. He's the horse — a three-year-old named Don Guerro. As Don Guerro does the running, one is fairly safe in saying that he is the most important member of the team.

ON SATURDAY NIGHT, movie star Mitchum will watch, Holmes will do the saddling, Banks the riding and Don Guerro the running in the $75,000-added Los Alamitos Derby at 440 yards.

This team succeeded in the $140,000 Golden State Derby up North and it would like nothing better than to sweep the California derbies for quarter horses.

The Derby at Bay Meadows was the first such a win for Bob Mitchum and Holmes. Banks has gone that route before — in fact he won the rich Los Alamitos Derby as far back as 1957 with Pap — and needless to add he's eager and willing to do it all over again.

Does Banks think he can win with Don Guerro? "Heck, yes," snapped the jock. "What do you think I'm on the horse's back for?"

"This is a real tough field. I think Don Guerro has a real good shot for all the money. This colt can run and if he has a fault, it's that he tries too hard."

"What I mean by that is that he is so anxious to run, he flies from the gate and almost always will have the ground break out from under him. That causes a horse to stumble and when you're going only 440 yards, you can't afford to make mistakes."

"In the Derby at Bay Meadows, he did just that and I thought sure as the lights were on, that we'd lost it then and there. But that colt picked it up right away. He's quick as a cat on his feet, and thank heaven for that. We were right up with the leaders after the first 100 yards. From then on, he just sailed and we won it all by daylight."

"IT WAS A LUCKY NIGHT BECAUSE after Don Guerro stumbled and picked himself up we still had clear running room," commented Banks.

"Most times when you slip at the start you lose your place in the lineup and have to wait for room and fight your way through."

"I'm hoping Guerro breaks cleanly in this one Saturday night because with the crowd we're going against in this Los Alamitos Derby, you can't afford any mistakes. In a race like this, the winner is usually the horse and jock who make the least mistakes."

Following the Derby win at Bay Meadows, the triumphant trio celebrated with a champagne party. Guess who bought the bubbly? Mitchum? Wrong. It was Banks.

"It was a great thrill winning that one, bubbled Banks, "and I dug for the champagne because I wanted to. Sure, I'll pop again if we can win this one."

DONALD "CURLY" SMITH, director of racing and racing secretary for Los Alamitos, declares that this year's Derby field is the best he has ever seen anywhere.

BOBBY CHACON. . . American saga

COLUMNISTS' CORNER

Curly, who isn't bald-headed at all, knows whereof he speaks.

"All the hot horses which won stakes races at Los Alamitos last summer as two-year-olds are back and running," remarked Curly.

"It is rather unique when every single stakes winner comes into his three-year-old year ready to run. You usually have one or two. It's mainly that soreness hurts the group."

Last year's two-year-old stakes winners include Love Charge, Burma Shan, Bamalet, Go Chickie Go, Hop Skip and Jump, Pockatu, Rocky Denudo and Value Added.

BOBBY ADAIR, seeking his fifth consecutive 100-plus victory season at Los Alamitos, will ride Love Charge — and isn't that a beautiful name for a tiny horse? — for his father-in-law, James M. Coffman.

Love Charge won the Bardella Stakes last year in his Los Alamitos debut and injured a knee in the process. That laid him up until now, but he's been working like the championship colt he was expected to be and with Adair's help, he'll be tough.

As a two-year-old, Love Charge was undefeated in six starts and Coffman and Adair thought he was the best juvenile in the quarter horse world.

And well they should.

"He was a great horse," remarked Adair, with much feeling, "and he might have given me my first all-American Futurity winner had he not chipped a knee bone the night he won the Bardella. I'll tell you one thing, man. Love Charge will drown the others Saturday night. His distance isn't too great, but at 440 yards he'll just whip the whole field."

ADDING CONSIDERABLE EXCITEMENT to Saturday's Derby is Truckle Feature, an invader from Arizona and New Mexico.

Usually things from the Southwest don't become attractions in California, but Truckle Feature is an exception. Young Truckle was bred in California and was owned and trained by G.B. Howell, who shipped the young colt from his home state to find fame and fortune on foreign race tracks.

Truckle Feature has blistered every track he's run upon, especially Sunland Park in Arizona in which he humbled the best three-year-olds west of California in that park's Derby.

But I'll stick with Mitchum this time around.

IT'S NOT PERFECTLY CLEAR

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. — Football coach Joe Paterno told Penn State graduates here Saturday that he may be the only commencement speaker "who doesn't give his opinion on Watergate."

But then he did just that in his address to 4,650 graduates sitting in a steady rain in Penn State's Beaver Stadium.

'New' Ellis comes back again Monday

New York Times Service

The other heavyweight from Louisville, the one who sings hymns and knocks people out, ornaments the New York scene these days because Jose Luis Garcia walked into a fist and Jerry Quarry got the flu.

Jimmy Ellis, substituting for Quarry, is working in Madison Square Garden Monday night against Ernie Shavers, a substitute for Garcia. Ellis, who used to be champion of the World Boxing Assn. Has whipped every heavyweight he ever met who wasn't named Joe Frazier or Muham ad Ali.

Shavers, who used to be the star of a stable owned and operated by Dean Chance, has scored 43 knockouts, winning 44 of 46 bouts without meeting anybody who could fight. Dean Chance, who used to be the best pitcher in baseball, now lives on a farm at Jeromesville, Ohio, and has investments in jellies.

There, that should tie up the loose ends. Before he won the WBA championship and lost it to Frazier, Ellis knocked people out only when it was convenient but lately he has adopted a new policy of stiffening somebody once a month. His victims, like Tiger Joe Harris and Pretty Boy Felstein, are seldom mistaken for John L. Sullivan, but they are at least as renowned as young Agabab, Johnny Mac and the others on Shaver's record.

"I ALWAYS HAD A PUNCH," Ellis said, "but I didn't consider myself a knockout specialist. More of a boxer-puncher. But when you lose a championship, it motivates you. After I won the title I felt I had it made and I started to slack off. I didn't fight at all in 1969, and when I tried to get ready for Frazier after that year off it was awful hard to force myself back into the groove." Frazier knocked him out in the fifth round, and 17 months later the companion of his youth, Muhammad Ali, stopped him in 12.

"Since then," Jimmy said, "I've been training twice as hard as I ever did, just like I'm sure Frazier is doing now getting ready for Joe Bugner and just like Ali after losing to Ken Norton. In the ring I seem to concentrate better and when I see a chin I hit it."

Ellis had undergone his pre-fight physical—"I found him very warm," said Dr. Edwin Campbell—and proceeded to the garden carrying the tools of his trade: trunks, a speed bag, and several rolls of adhesive. For an hour he sat chatting in Tommy Kenville's office there while Angelo Dundee, his manager, prowled the corridors talking up a storm.

"The best one-punch belter among the heavyweights today," Dundee was saying. "A hell of an athlete, goes to church, and he only took up boxing because he saw Ali beat up a friend of his."

Ellis laughed. "I was a kid watching a TV show called, 'champions of tomorrow,' amateur bouts. Ali—he was Cassius Clay then—beat this friend of mine, Connie Hall. I said, 'I can whip that fella,' and I went into the gym."

When Jimmy turned pro in 1961 he was a middleweight. They threw him right in with the best in the division—Wilf Greaves, Holly Mims, Rory Calhoun, Henry Hank.

"I QUIT A COUPLE TIMES," he said. "In 1963 I had only two fights and I quit. The next year I signed a contract with a new manager and look—" he put a finger on his record for 1964, three defeats in four fights—"I wasn't getting paid. For Joe Spencer in Lexington I got about $200, for Don Fullmer in Louisville not a cent, for George Benton in Philadelphia $1,000. So I quit again until my contract ran out."

"I'd sit around home and snap at the kids," the fighter said. "My wife told me, 'you're not happy. You have to fight.' I said, 'If I have to stay in Louisville I don't want to fight.' She said, 'You can go somewhere else. You know Angie. Write him.' She wrote the letter for me: 'I am a good fighter. I think I can be middleweight champion of the world if I get a chance.' And I wrote across the letter 'h-e-l-p!!'"

"THREE DAYS LATER Angie telephoned. 'Come down to Miami.' He was getting Ali ready for Liston then and I sparred with Ali. Angie had other middleweights but he wouldn't let me work with any of them. I couldn't work with anybody but Ali."

"Let this sucker belt my middleweights around," Dundee said. "I may be stupid but I'm not crazy. I had a dream; Ellis was going to be light-heavyweight champion of the world, but when he tried to make the weight the lightest he could get was 185. He's been a heavyweight ever since."

Ring Magazine rates Ellis No. 5 among contenders, behind Frazier, Norton, Ali and Quarry. "Frazier and Ali beat me so they're always on top of me," Jimmy said, "but I got a win over Quarry. Why can't they put me over him?"

"If Norton beats Ali again," it was suggested, "you'll be rated over your old sparring partner."

"Don't say it," Dundee said. He spoke like a man with a knife in his heart.

WHAT'S $2 A SHARE FOR SECRETARIAT?

NEW YORK — More than 5,000 persons who watched Secretariat set turf history in the Belmont Stakes a week ago apparently are saving their $2 win tickets as souvenirs.

Robert W. McElfresh, director of mutuels at Belmont Park, said Saturday that 5,526 $2 win tickets, worth $2.20 each, are still outstanding.

McElfresh expects that 5,000 of these tickets will never be cashed and probably will be framed as a memento of last Saturday's historic afternoon.

Secretariat won the Belmont by an unbelievable 31 lengths and became thoroughbred racing's first Triple Crown winner in 25 years. He did it in record time of 2:24 for the 1½ miles.

Altogether, tickets worth $32,907.60 still are outstanding on the Belmont. McElfresh said. This includes the $2, $5, $10, $50, $100 and exacta categories. McElfresh said he had no breakdown other than that for the $2 win class.

The total on-track mutual pool on the Belmont was $519,689, plus $274,110 on the exacta. All uncashed tickets retain their value until April 1, 1974, after which the money reverts to the state government.

"I'd like to know how could the President know so little about Watergate in 1973, and so much about college football in 1969."

That was the year Nixon said the winner of the Texas-Arkansas game would be No. 1 in the nation — thereby slighting Penn State which was unbeaten.

DRAG BOAT RECORDS FLIP

By DON CULPEPPER
Staff Writer

Saturday was a great day for the drag boats at Long Beach Marine Stadium. No flips, no accidents, nobody hurt, two world records!

With perfect weather predicted, today's finals of the Pacific Challenge Drag Boats should be even better.

The other record was made by Bruce Bourguin in the single engine outboards. Eight qualifying boats in each of 15 classes will be ready for the starting line today, beginning at noon, and even the barefoot water skiers, who proved to be sensational Saturday, will be back for more tries at records of more than 90 miles per hour.

Top time in the preliminary heats Saturday was made by Larry Schwabland, Fresno, driving his famous Climax at 196.28 miles per hour. The world record in that class—blown fuel hydros—stands at 202.46 miles per hour, and Larry has been hoping for a faster time at several drag meets in the west.

Larry, however, may have a real rival in Mac Christensen, Norwalk, who took his Shock Wave through the measured course at 176.76 mph. Saturday. Witnesses said, however, that he was going much faster than that at the end of the measured course.

Mike Brendel, North Hollywood, drove his Hot Damn Honda in the ski competition class to a world record of 125.70 mph., two miles faster than his own mark.

The other record was made by Bruce Bourguin in the single engine outboards with fuel. He drove My Ding-a-Ling 108.06 miles per hour, almost two miles per hour more than the mark in the class.

John Taylor, Long Beach barefoot skier, had the crowd on edge Saturday with his performances, which failed to set a world record.

Taylor made his first run early Saturday morning, doing 90.08 mph. He tried to back it with another run. He was doing 96 mph. but fell before reaching the marker. There was some question as to whether his record would have stood. He was wearing moccasins on both runs, and such footwear has not been approved by the American Ski Assn. even though it is expected to be at an early date.

The gates open early today, but, in accordance with the city's regulations on the Marine Stadium, there can be no racing before noon. Admission price is $4, with children 10 and under going free when accompanied by adults.

Motor Patrol tumbles in 12

San Pedro scored two unearned runs in the top of the 12th inning Saturday to edge Motor Patrol 4-3 in American Legion baseball play at Blair Field.

In other games Shua edged North Long Beach 3-2, Lakewood pounded Carson 12-8 and Alamitos Bay beat Peterson 3-1.

Motor Patrol committed three errors in the 12th inning and San Pedro added one hit for the two runs. Steve Roak went the distance for the win. The loss dropped Motor Patrol out of second place.

League-leading Shua scored three runs in the first two innings and Craig Gioia fanned seven in the win. Greg Airhart singled home Gioia with what proved to be the winning in the second inning. Doug Stokke singled home two Shua runs in the first.

Don Driscoll yielded only five hits and struck out nine in the loss.

Lakewood moved into second place when four players drove in two runs apiece.

McCown Banzai wins Rum Run

Barry McCown drove his Spectra Marine Special, Banzai, 54.2 miles per hour Saturday to win Rum Run XI from Long Beach to Malibu and return. The race was staged by the Pacific Ocean Power Boat Racing Assn.

The race was dominated by the Sports and Production Class boats and no American Power Boat Assn. points were involved. Nine boats finished the course which measured 84 nautical miles or 95 statute miles. Seventeen boats started, two were disqualified and the others did not finish.

McCown's time was 1 hour, 47 minutes, seven minutes ahead of the second-place finisher, Bill Dunsmore and Ron Berry in Gray Whale, which averaged 50.68 miles per hour for the run.

It was a race that almost didn't start. The U.S. Coast Guard was trying to communicate with the fleet prior to the start because a private boat had broken down on the course.

Larry Smith, driving

Mike Whipple crashed a two-run homer for Lakewood and teammates John Flannery, Mike Martinson and Kevin Miller also drove in two runs. Lakewood pounded out 13 hits against three Carson pitchers.

Alamitos Bay scored three times in the eighth inning to edge Peterson. Chris Mandick doubled in two runs and scored on an error. Paul Dunn and Chuck Walker combined for the win.

In today's games North Long Beach plays Motor Patrol (11 a.m.) and Alamitos Bay tangles with Shua (2 p.m.) at Blair Field.

In other games Peterson travels to Carson and San Pedro hosts Lakewood. Both begin at 1:30 p.m.

Lakers coach Bill Sharman said it was all just a "misunderstanding" and forward Happy Hairston will be an instructor at his basketball camp after all.

Hairston filed a $450,000 suit in a Los Angeles Superior Court Thursday contending he never gave Sharman permission to use his name to promote Sharman's California Basketball Camp.

Sharman said apologies were sent to Hairston and that the Lakers forward said he would serve as a "player, instructor and staff member" at the camp.

"It's been completely settled," Sharman said, "and there were never any hard feelings between Happy and I."

VENEZUELAN lightweight Vincento Rondon has been fined $1,000 by the Danish Professional Boxing Assn. after losing a ten-round fight on points to Denmark's Tom Bogs Thursday night.

Experts at ringside described the 28-year old former World Boxing Assn. champion as "worthless and unwilling to do any work in the ring."

On Friday the Danish PBA said it would withhold Rondon's $5,000 purse pending an investigation which resulted in Rondon leaving Copenhagen $1,000 poorer.

THE NEW ORLEANS Saints have been sold to a Chicago group pending approval by the National Football League, the Atlanta Constitution reported Saturday.

The Constitution said a purchase price close to $20 million has been agreed upon with Potter Palmer, George Gillett and John O'Neil Jr., all of Chicago, as the prospective buyers.

"IT'S GREAT to see the outside world again," said Billy Tohill after being released from John Peter Smith Hospital in Fort Worth, Texas where he had been hospitalized since March 14 following an automobile accident that nearly cost him his life.

"I'm going to stay at home for a couple of weeks and then start coming back in the office for a few hours each day starting the first of July.

EDDIE BANE, former Westminster High and Arizona State star, has been signed by the Minnesota Twins for reportedly the highest bonus ever given to a pitcher by the organization. Bane, the Twins' No. 1 draft choice, was immediately placed on their major league roster after compiling a three-year collegiate record of 41-4.

ADRIAN DANTLEY, high school basketball all-American from DeMatha High in Hyattsville, Md., has signed a national letter of intent with the Univ. of Notre Dame. The United States collegiate all-star basketball team and women's AAU champion John F. Kennedy College arrived in Peking Saturday to start their tour of China. A recommendation to do away with the present system of giving each club representation in the All-Star game will be among the proposals brought up before the annual meeting of the National Basketball Assn. Board of Governors, which opens June 27 in Beverly Hills.

THIS CAR CAN SAVE NEW YORK CITY TAXPAYERS $2,000,000.

Nobody knows the burden of taxes better than the average New Yorker.

For openers, there's Federal, State and City taxes.

Then there's sales tax, surtax and surcharges.

If you own a car, the tunnels and bridges get you coming and going.

So when somebody comes up with a way to cut taxes, New York papers dispatch teams of reporters.

That's exactly what happened

Director of New York's Bureau of Motor Vehicle Pollution Control announced that he and his staff found a way to save the City (and maybe the City taxpayer) nearly two million dollars a year.

All the City had to do, he suggested, was replace the 4,700 Fords and Plymouths now used for municipal business with a like number of smaller cars. Like the Fiat 124.

It seems the Bureau added five compact cars (including two Fords and two Toyotas) to the City's fleet of official cars for over a year.

When they compared operating costs, they found that while the Fords were currently costing New York 9.3¢ a mile to operate, a Fiat 124 would cost only 5¢ a mile.

The savings was based not only on gas mileage, but on maintenance, purchase price and resale value as well.

The report also indicated that the smaller cars were more than equal to the task of day-in, day-out city driving.

And one car, it turns out, made more sense than any other small car tested. The Fiat 124.

In fact, at 5¢ a mile, there's only one passenger vehicle we know of in New York City that rivals the 124 for economy.

The Staten Island Ferry.

Spectate by braille

Open crowd like cattle

OAKMONT, Pa. — Golf is the only sport in the world in which the spectator's can walk out to the pitcher's mound and talk to the pitcher, but no crowd is more abused or long-suffering. They fight aggravating traffic jams over winding single-lane roads, pay $2 to park, walk a mile to the course and then spend eight to 10 hours being shoved, pushed and herded like cattle by hard-hatted marshals carrying restraining ropes. Most of them are lucky if they see a dozen clean, unimpeded shots. Around the greens, a majority must follow the drama by ear. It's sport spectating by braille.

At the front gate of the Oakmont Country Club, scene of the 73rd U.S. Open Championship, two signs are prominently displayed.

"Admission $10 — Have Exact Change Ready."

"No Food or Beverages Permitted on Premises."

If you want to eat — and some people do — a hamburger costs $1.25, a hot dog 75 cents, beer $1 and a soft drink 60 cents.

The weekend gallery has been estimated at 25,000 to 35,000. There are seats for perhaps 2,000 in improvised steel stands at the 18th hole.

The clubhouse is off limits to the masses. It's dining and other facilities are restricted to members and special guests.

The average fan must queue up for his 75-cent hot dog, fight the mustard line while brushing away the flies and eat his lunch on the run.

For toilets, there are 86 portable Johns placed at strategic spots around the course — laminated, smelly outhouses. That's one for about every 300 people.

The spectators are a walking bleachers.

If you get too tired, you can buy a little canvas stool for $5.30. If you're hot, get a cap for $3.50 or a visor for 3. if you can't see, try a paper periscope — manufacturers' cost eight cents — for $1.50.

All are available by the concessionaire on the premises.

There are incongruous features. The marshals and the guys who park your car are probably $100,000 executives or professional men, club members giving their services free. They wear snappy plaid jackets and gold pants.

The scorers and committeewomen — attractive in fall brown and gold colors — also are volunteers. The cops are miniskirted cuties in blue that can make an arrest a pleasant adventure. They get paid, don't wear guns.

The fans don't complain. It's worth it, if they can see Jack Nicklaus bang a drive to a 322-yard, par-four green for an eagle duce, overhear a quip from Lee Trevino or catch a glimpse of Arnold Palmer wrinkling his nose and flashing golf's most famous smile.

Palmer, Boros reliving past

"As yet," he said, "I have nothing to be excited about. Just say I'm trying to slow down my swing on putts. Tomorrow, I'm going out to win. That's all that is on my mind."

Palmer insisted he "didn't play much differently from earlier rounds. The wet greens made the course play differently," he said. "There are 10 or 12 guys in position to win now and that's because of the rain."

Palmer gave himself a little pep talk before he went out on the course. "Arnold Palmer," he told himself, "go on out there, get off your dead — and do something."

That did it, there's no question this Open took on a dramatic, new look because Palmer's 68 matched his best score in the Open since that dreadful 1966 tournament.

"Those birdies on the 10th and 11th kind of got me going," said Palmer, who has won only once in the last two years and who has been the subject of countless golfing obituaries.

Those two finished a string of three consecutive birdies for the slope-shouldered master.

He started the string — reminiscent of one of his charges of old — on the 480-yard, par-five ninth. He put his second shot in the fluffy rough at the right of the green, surveyed the situation with a frown then hit the stick with his chip. He tapped in a six-inch birdie putt and was on his way.

He lashed an iron to within 10 feet of the 10th and made the putt. On the 11th he holed a monster — he called the distance 50 feet — over the swales and valleys of Oakmont's undulating greens.

Boros, who scored his last pro victory in the 1968 Westchester Classic, opened birdie-birdie, cruised along with routine pars for a while, then began some uncharacteristic scrambling.

The one-time insurance company accountant put his tee shot on the 15th, a 443-yard par four, in deep, deep trouble. It came to rest between the lip of a sand trap and the uncompleted line of a lateral hazard.

After considerable consultation with USGA officials, he was allowed a free drop in the bunker.

It wasn't Player's day or Nicklaus' either.

Nicklaus, with four bogeys and one birdie, said he "hit a lot of nondescript shots."

Asked how he calculated his chances now, he said, "Obviously, since I'm four shots back I'll have to get off to a good start tomorrow to have a chance."

Player, who never cracked a smile all day, stumbled right at the start with a bogey on the 469-yard, par-four opening hole. He had a 40 on the front nine with 20 putts. But the thing that may have cost him a shot at his second Open championship could have been the fickle Oakmont weather.

Dedeaux vs. Hicks College All-Stars play L.B. nine

With nine national collegiate baseball championships — including a record four in a row — USC coach Rod Dedeaux has few worlds to conquer. Dedeaux will lead the U.S. College All-Stars against the Japanese College All-Stars Friday, 4 p.m., and Sunday, 5:30 p.m., at Dodger Stadium. How good is his team? He'll find out Wednesday at Blair Field when his stars, composed primarily of USC players, face Joe Hicks' Long Beach Collegians, 7:30 p.m. Hicks, veteran Long Beach City College coach, also has corralled a block of all-stars. His club roster will include: —Catcher Jim Gmur, two-year veteran at Long Beach State; —First baseman Dan Peters, most valuable player at Long Beach City College in 1972; —Infielders Rand Rasmussen, Long Beach and Northridge; Chris Kinder, UCLA; Rick Hamblin, L.B. City College; Greg Stitzinger, Arizona State. —Outfielders Steve Derian, all-league at Cal Berkeley; Don Zimmermann, all-city at Millikan High; Steve Fenoglio, most valuable player in the Moore League, and Mike Mallet, LBCC. —Pitchers Craig Giola (9-5), all-Metropolitan Conference at LBCC, and Viking freshmen Bob McRae, Bob Hill and Jim Davis (9-0). Dedeaux has loaned Russ McQueen of USC to Hicks for the one game. McQueen stopped Arizona State in their 1973 College World Series first game showdown, and last year was voted outstanding player of the tournament. McQueen hails from Lakewood High. Three 1973 Lakewood players may represent the Long Beach Collegians, depending upon their negotiations with the Angels: pitcher Doug Slettvet, catcher Steve Brisbin, and outfielder Bob Johnson. Tickets will be on sale at Blair Field on Wednesday.

As usual — Iron Man Trophy to L.B. City College

Long Beach City College knows a good thing when it sees it. The Carl White Iron Man Trophy, that is. For the fifth consecutive year the award, symbolic of athletic supremacy in the Metropolitan Conference, has come to rest in the LBCC trophy case. In fact, the Vikings have won it eight times in the last nine tries. Long Beach scored 43.5 points, well ahead of El Camino's 38, to retain possession of the Iron Man. The scoring is based upon a formula similar to that used in multiple-entry track meets — points for first place, second, and so on, in the final standings of the Metro's 11 sports. Conference championships by the Vike basketball, water polo, volleyball and baseball teams were key factors in bringing the trophy to LBCC. Runner-up finishes by the tennis and swimming teams were important, also. Athletic director Del Walker, proud of the Iron Man because of the overall excellence which it signifies, said there was a time in the spring when it looked as if the trophy would find a new home. "But a strong finish by our spring sports changed the situation in the last two-three weeks," Walker said. Following Long Beach and El Camino, the order of finish was Pierce, Pasadena and Bakersfield — with only one-and-a-half points separating the third and fifth positions — with Valley rounding out the league.

Women's track begins today

Long Beach's Kathy Schmidt, pursuing the world javelin record, will headline the National AAU women's track and field championships beginning today at UC Irvine. The meet runs through next Sunday. Miss Schmidt has thrown 207-10 and 208-1 in the last two weeks to win the Modesto Relays and Kennedy Games. Mary Decker of Garden Grove and Robin Campbell of Washington, DC, are expected to lead the 880.

Becker to defend L.B. women's title

Competition won't be any stiffer this week than when 29 players battle for only 15 positions in Long Beach Women's city golf championship qualifying Monday at Recreation Park. Defending champion Jane Becker returns, as does runnerup Mildred Stanley. An eagle-2 on the 20th hole earned Mrs. Becker her fourth title in this event last year at El Dorado. Mrs. Stanley garnered the coveted crown in 1969, 1971, scoring her first ever win over Harriet Glanville in the latter year. Miss Glanville, who shows 9 championship trophies in her last 20 L.B. outings, lost to Laura Baugh in the 1970 finale and won medalist honors in 1971-72. She was felled by Mrs. Stanley, 4-2, two years ago and suffered a startling quarter-final upset to Marianne Stangeland a year ago. Miss Stangeland, the Wilson High student, must be considered a contender, along with another sensational teenager, Amy Alcott.

49ER FOUNDATION RAISES $212,375

Pointing toward a goal of $170,000 in its second fund and membership drive, the 49er Foundation outdid itself by reaching $212,375 in pledges. Speaking for the Long Beach State University support group, 49er Foundation president Chuck Boyle said, "This was a key time in the history of the school, athletically. We needed funding from the community and we got it." Team leaders were Rick Bryson, Frank Bowman, Whitey Littlefield, George Medak and Forrest Huffstetler. Bryson's team gathered more than 22 per cent of the total with $47,075 in returns. Bowman's squad, co-directed by Tom Dean and representing the university, totalled $42,650. Littlefield's team brought in $33,705, Medak's $23,492 and Huffstetler's $17,660.

Forest easy to manage; people are not

By RAY GISE

Angeles National Forest, California's oldest, is being worn down because of too many visitors and too little financing. Most visitors leave it like it is, but the "slobs" account for thousands of dollars in damages each year. "A forest is easy to manage," says a veteran ranger. "People are not."

This forest was founded in 1892, with credit to conservationist organizations. An estimated seven million persons a year use its trails, camps, streams and ski slopes. Most that has been done, recreation-wise, was done in the early 1930s by the CCC boys. Nothing has been added in the last decade because money has not been appropriated by Congress.

It is too bad that the Civilian Conservation Corps is not active today. FDR instituted this in depression times, and many a boy became a good citizen as a result. I saw these boys in action in my early backpacking days and they were magnificent. They planted trees, corrected erosion, fought forest fires, maintained trails and discovered. To quote John Muir: "Here ends my forever memorable High Sierra excursion. I have crossed the Range of Light, surely the brightest and best of all the Lord has built, and rejoicing in its glory, I hope to pray that I may see it again."

Now for you "day hikers" in our area there is a nice short hike from Angeles Crest Highway to Switzer Falls. There should be some water yet. From one short completed section of the Foothill Freeway in La Canada, follow the Angeles Crest Highway, State Route 2, north for almost 10 miles. About a half-mile after the junction with Angeles Forest Highway you will see a road dropping down steeply to your right. This leads about a quarter mile to the parking lot at Switzer picnic area. Parking is limited so you should be early if on a weekend. You can usually park on the Crest Highway, but it is a long, hot pull up after you have done a day's hiking. This jaunt is recommended by Dave Hood, a professor at Long Beach State University, an avid backpacker.

A word of caution, now that summer is here. Keep your eyes peeled for rattlers if you are hiking our local trails. Normally, they are not on a trail, but one just might be behind the rock you rest on for a breather. Don't handle small friendly animals with your hands. They can be rabid.

If you are a novice at this game of backpacking check with people who know. Do not "short cut" trails — this causes erosion. Do not get yourself caught on a ledge where you cannot go up nor can you come down. Stick to established trails.

Should you wander off trail and get lost, don't panic and become more confused. A good idea is to carry a whistle such as referees use. You can make more noise with this than by yelling. If you have youngsters, see that each has one. That whistle is not to be blown as amusement, only emergency.

Equipment is most important. Neal's outlets in Cerritos, Fullerton, Newport Beach and Santa Ana will steer you on the right course. If you are in Long Beach, talk to Scott Promisel at Sports Ltd. Get the lightest weights to fit your purpose. Remember it is all going on your back. Food is secondary unless you are really going all out on a trip of more than a day or weekend.

The next column will discuss food for serious backpackers. "Goodies" are nice on a long backpack but they cost money. Freeze dried foods are a luxury; if your budget can stand it indulge. Dehydrated foods are less expensive and they will keep you going, but you will come out of the hills craving things like juicy hamburgers, steaks, ice cream, milk or even a hot bath.

Give a thought to boat safety

Even though catching a yellowtail or tramping along the John Muir Trail in the Sierra Nevada might be far more interesting than part of a column about boating safety, this is the week to mention the fact that learning to do the proper thing in a boat may be the most important factor of your summer; in fact, of your life.

We previously have printed the fact that boating safety programs were responsible for improving the death balance in the vital statistics for 1972, when compared with the previous year. There is room for more improvement.

Just when everything was looking rosier for the boater, the California Department of Navigation and Ocean Development released a bulletin saying that DNOD officials were disappointed about the statistics that came from the operation of canoes, rubber rafts, kayaks and pontoon boats.

While the DNOD warning applied mostly to mishaps, even tragedies, on fast running rivers in the north, it would be invaluable to every kid who is out of school this week because most youngsters will be hunting water, and not to drink especially, but ponds, rivers, creeks, bays and the ocean in which to play.

It may seem incredible, but one-third of the fatalities in California last year occurred in canoes, rubber rafts, other kinds of rafts, kayaks and pontoon boats.

THE MOST TRAGIC PART of the DNOD report is that three of the fatalities were children under 15 years of age. Guy Ricksecker, program manager for DNOD's Boating Safety and Regulation Division, says: "The most alarming fact so far is that in every reported mishap involving such small boats, at least one person has died."

Boating Safety and Regulation Division, says: "The most alarming fact so far is that in every reported mishap involving such small boats, at least one person has died."

"Ironically, not one of the 14 persons who died was wearing a life jacket. Only two of the craft involved had flotation devices aboard. We urge all persons, regardless of swimming ability, to wear flotation devices whenever boating on white water or rivers with swift currents."

While he didn't mention boating in such places like Alamitos Bay and the Long Beach Outer Harbor, it would be well for all youngsters to do the same when boating there. Alamitos Bay has a remarkable safety record through the years simply because there is a constant patrol there and kids are taught the dangers of water, particularly when they go through the courses at the Youth Sailing Center.

There were 612 pleasure boat accidents in California in 1972, with 113 fatalities and 178 injuries, an 18 percent decrease in accidents, 18.4 percent in injuries and 17.4 in deaths. Property damage totalled $905,033, as compared with $1,344,700 in 1971.

WHILE ON THE SAFETY SUBJECT, it is nothing short of terrific that the Department of Fish and Game reports that 18,725 persons, 5,951 of them adults, were given certificates in the first five months of this year for passing the California Hunter Safety courses. Both of those numbers were up slightly from reports of the first five months of 1972.

Through May of this year, a grand total of 659,083 persons have been trained in Hunter Safety since the program was started in 1954. This state was the second in the nation to start training youngsters and the first to train adults.

When the law was changed to require first-time buyers of California hunting licenses to take the Hunter Safety program, the percentage of adults went up sharply. When the program was first started, it applied only to those persons 16 years of age and younger. That was changed in 1965 to 18 and under. Then the Legislature decided in 1970 that adults should take the program unless they had had prior California licenses.

The hunter casualty rate has decreased by two-thirds in the last 19 years and THE DFG, which administers the program, attributes that drop to Hunter Safety classes. There are more than 3,000 volunteers who teach the classes. The first of the 1973 hunting seasons (rabbits) is just days away. If you plan to apply for a license and haven't had one previously, call the DFG (435-7741) for information about this year's classes in this area.

IT'S HARDLY POSSIBLE TO START a week without mentioning the yellowtail. Due to an early deadline for this column in Sunday's edition, we can't review the last-minute totals but you will find those in the FISHIN' FACTS, which this newspaper publishes as a public service. This columnist assumes no responsibility for the published figures which are telephoned by the landing operators to the sports department every night.

I do everything possible to encourage honest reporting from the landings, but I know that a few skippers and deckhands become overly enthusiastic on occasions.

The reports that appear in FISHIN' FACTS are the same as those which landing owners and operators must submit to the Department of Fish and Game. If the DFG learns of discrepancies, the offending landing can expect more than just a lifted eyebrow from a DFG warden or higher official.

It may be simple to pad rockfish figures, but not those for yellowtail. The customers are like watchdogs on that yellowtail count.

This weekend's yellowtail count should continue at the same rate, which means that several thousand fish will be decked. Meandering schools of yellows were seen up and down the coast Thursday. Many yellows were caught; far more were lost because anglers didn't have the proper tackle or had allowed their outfits to deteriorate since last season.

THE SPORTS TIME MACHINE

By Dave Brase and Tim Simons

McGraw (L.) and Mathewson at 1905 Series (Brown Brothers)

Philadelphia, 1905

Hotels are jammed to capacity and their lobbies are buzzing with energy. Philadelphia is engulfed with a festive holiday spirit.

John McGraw's New York Giants, representing the National League, and hundreds of their fans have invaded this city for the opening of a best of seven "World Championship" series. Their opponents are Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics.

In the opening game, with an overflowing crowd of 17,955 on hand, the McGrawmen unveil their stunning new black flannel uniforms and the pitching sensation of the National League, Christy Mathewson.

Mathewson holds the Athletics to four hits and masterfully shuts them out 3-0.

The series moves to New York. Iron Man McGinnity pitches well for the Ginals, but an even larger crowd of 25,000 at the Polo Grounds goes home disappointed. Philadelphia's Chief Bender helped by a couple of Giant errors, beats New York 3-0.

The third game is delayed one day due to rain in Philadelphia. The weather clears and Mathewson, with only two days rest, registers another brilliant shutout and the Giants win 9-0.

Two games are now scheduled for the Polo Grounds in New York. McGinnity causes the New York fans to forget his earlier series loss by blanking the A's with a 1-0 shutout.

The Giants now lead the series 3 games to 1 and Mathewson is called on to wrap it up. He pitches his third consecutive shutout in less than a week and the New York Giants have won the world championship of baseball in a series of nothing but shutouts.

Ancient fighting art to be demonstrated

Kung fu san soo — the fighting art of karate — will be demonstrated today, 2:30 p.m., at the Long Beach Athletic Club, 4000 Long Beach Blvd.

The public is invited. Admission is free.

Jimmy Woo, a student of kung fu for more than 40 years, will direct the demonstration. His family learned the art from Buddhist monks in China more than five generations ago.

Kung fu is considered the oldest fighting art in the world. It is based on a combination of punches, kicks, strikes and blocking in unison.

Kung fu classes will be held at the Long Beach AC on Monday and Wednesday evenings.

Pro basketball summer league debuts tonight

Two games kick off the 1973 Southern California Pro Basketball Summer League's 66-game schedule today when the Bucks-Suns collide with the Sonics-Warriors at 7, followed by UCLA Bruins (Alumni) against Watts Summer Games at 8:30 p.m. at Cal State L.A.'s Men's Gym.

The Summer League will be moving into its third year of operation and its founder and executive director, Dick Marquis, believes this will be the best season yet.

"We feel that we really turned the corner in the calibre of players and fan interest last summer," he said. "This year the league has grown from six to eight teams with many proven NBA and ABA players, as well as numerous outstanding rookie prospects from last season's collegiate ranks."

Games will again be played four nights a week — Sunday, Tuesday, Friday, and Saturday.

Composed entirely of pro rookies, Watts Summer Games has a lineup of collegians which includes Swen Nater (UCLA), Raymond Lewis (Cal State L.A.), Jim Brewer (Minnesota), Ed Ratleff (Long Beach State), Ron King (Florida State), and Willie Calvert (Abilene Christian). Brewer, Nater, Ratleff, and Lewis were No. 1 draft picks of Cleveland, Virginia, Houston, and Philadelphia.

Mexico-Brazil soccer match on Friday

A pair of national champions from Mexico and Brazil will tangle in an international soccer match at the Coliseum Friday night, 8 p.m.

Defending Mexican national champion Cruz

Azul makes its first Los Angeles appearance against Cruzeiro, club titlist from Brazil.

Cruz Azul has dominated Mexican soccer since 1968, the year it captured the first division title and the Mexican Cup Championship. The Mexican squad will feature 10 members of the Mexican World Cup team, featuring Bustons, Sanchez, Galindo, Pulido and Salgado. The team has compiled the finest playing record of any Mexican professional team against foreign opposition.

Advance tickets priced at $5 for men, $4 for women, may be purchased at the Coliseum Ticket Office and ticket agencies.

Earl Wilson Is a film star really lucky?

New York — "Do you think that a guy who winds up a movie star is really lucky?" I asked Malcolm McDowell.

Frowning a little as he sat in his suite at the Hotel Pierre with his feet up, drinking a lemonade, he said, "A good question." The English star who was 30 on June 13, the day that "O Lucky Man" opened here, thought it over.

"But I have to be honest," he said. "Yes, it is a privilege."

BUT WAS IT lucky for Marilyn Monroe and Judy Garland? They had the tragedies, the rise and fall. In his last picture which he also wrote, he plays a coffee salesman who's taken advantage of, sent unjustifiably to prison, reformed by prison, and released to win a film audition. "A ridiculous ending," he said.

"It's intended to be slightly ironic," he added.

"But you feel you were lucky to have become a star?"

"Sometimes when I have to get up at 5:30 I feel there is a better job than this. But if you can do something enjoyable and get paid a lot for it, and can work with people you respect who are also your friends, you are indeed a lucky man."

"Were Marilyn Monroe and Judy Garland lucky?"

"It's not lucky for those two because they're dead. Marilyn was treated as a sex object and not as one of the most incredible actresses as we know she was. There are some people who will only grant greatness to a performer whose life ends in a tragedy."

"DO YOU believe in luck?"

"In timing, not in luck. Bogart, Cagney, were talented actors but they had good timing. They grabbed their opportunities."

"And so did you?"

"I did sell coffee, you know. I had a job as a trainee in a factory. One day a salesman was mysteriously removed. I was suddenly thrust into selling this coffee."

"I was driving down a country lane and stopped my car to write notes of my last sale. Some police came by. They wouldn't believe I was a coffee salesman. They threw all my coffee out and then said, 'Now pick it up.'"

"Physical shape, what you look like, takes you only so far. When the director calls for silence and the camera turns, there's no luck involved any more."

McDowell, who as 18 was a wine waiter in his father's pub, will next film a thriller, which he's writing.

"I take my craft seriously. I'm obsessive about my work. Not for the audience but for me. In the end does it satisfy you?"

The "Marty" who plays heavies

Profile of Ernest Borgnine

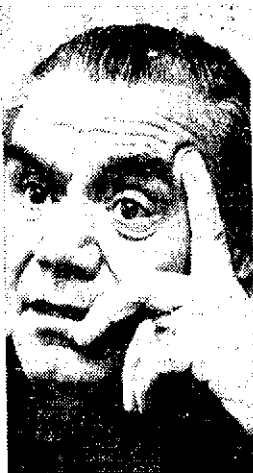

EDITOR'S NOTE — A villain is a villain is a villain, you say? Not so, says Ernest Borgnine, who has played the villain more times than most. One doesn't find the right kind of villain every day. And when a good villain role comes along, Borgnine says he jumps at it.

By MARY CAMPBELL
New York (AP) — Actor Ernest Borgnine wonders whether he would do as well playing the title role in "Marty" today as he did 18 years ago when he won the Academy Award for it.

"Then, I felt I could do it. Now is the time I have my doubts," Borgnine says. "I say to myself, 'What would I do with that part now, knowing more than I did then? Would I have the same simple attachment to the girl?' I don't know."

BEFORE "Marty," the burly actor was typecast as a villain. Since, Borgnine has played leading and supporting roles as well as — whenever he finds strong ones — villains. In his newest picture, "The Emperor of the North Pole," somewhere around his 60th film, he plays Shack, a sadistic freight train conductor.

"You don't find these kinds of villains every day," Borgnine said in an interview. "Villains are usually in Westerns or Vincent Price in a horror movie. When one comes along, shucks, I jump at it. It's another way of showing acting ability and versatility.

"I've never seen a man yet that didn't like to be a heavy. In a man's life there are times he'd like to kick somebody in the behind so badly it hurts. I've been able to take that out of fellow actors. Some men never get that opportunity. They have to go home and put a fist through a wall or take it out on the old lady."

"I will say, in my gallery of villains, they have become increasingly meaner. I thought Coley, who tormented Spencer Tracy in 'Bad Day at Black Rock' was more brutal than Fatso, who beat up Frank Sinatra in 'From Here to Eternity.' And Shack tops them all."

"MARTY," Borgnine says, was made for a tax loss.

"They had made so much money from 'Vera Cruz' and 'Apache' and 'Trapeze' that they had to lose some money somehow. So they figured they'd take a TV script, and although they couldn't get Rod Steiger they'd get hold of somebody — me."

"Marty" was shot in 18 days, eight in New York. Then we went to the Goldwyn studios and found that nothing was ready and things weren't up to snuff. Finally sets were hurriedly built and they said we would finish up the picture. I was glad to hear that.

"Then they had a tremendous smash on their hands. I guess they got their loss with 'The Kentuckian.' That was a disaster."

"I was making 'The Catered Affair' with Bette Davis when 'Marty' opened in New York. When that finished, I came to New York and they met me at the airport with a limo and said,

"Kid, you're a star.' Four days later I suddenly believed it. Taxi drivers and truck drivers and people on the street were waving to me and saying, 'Hi Marty.' I never saw such a reaction in my life."

BEFORE breaking into pictures, Borgnine worked with James Dunn, who later won an Oscar for "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn."

"Jean Stapleton, who's new in 'All in the Family,' and I were with him in the national tour of 'Harvey,' " Borgnine remembers.

"He was Elwood P. Dowd. I was the hospital attendant. He said to us, 'Kids, I want you to go out there and have a ball. Get all the laughs you can and make yourselves look good, and then the better I'm going to look.'"

The lesson stuck, Borgnine says.

"I went in 'McHale's Navy' on TV, and I said, 'Boys, go out and have a ball. The more laughs you get, the better you're going to make me look.' People remember me as McHale, and some think I'm the greatest comic that ever walked in two shoes. It was a great lesson learned — work with your fellow actors."

"ANYWAY, people don't write films any more for an Ernest Borgnine or a Wallace Beery or a Clark Gable. Now they write for an interesting group of people, one of whom could be an Ernest Borgnine type.

"It's like they did with 'The Poseidon Adventure.' They get Gene Hackman — he's hot right now — and a bunch of us together and it becomes more

BORGNINE, who is 56, was married last November to his fifth wife, who formerly operated retail cosmetic concessions.

"We met on a blind date," he says.

How a film director becomes a ring master and referee

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—How do you treat Bette Davis and Joan Crawford when they are working together in a movie?

Gingerly! Director Robert Aldrich flung himself into the breach twice, but never again. The ladies costarred in "Whatever Happened to Baby Jane?" and "Hush...Hush, Sweet Charlotte" until Miss Crawford became ill.

"A DIRECTOR is a ring master, a psychiatrist and referee," said Aldrich, Grinning broadly. "Crawford and Davis were perfect pros on the set, until 6 p.m."

"Then I'd get a call from Joan asking, 'Did you see what that (Bleep) did to me today?' A couple of minutes later Bette would call and ask, 'What did that (bleep) call you about?'"

"First one and then the other. I could count on it every day."

"Bette was nominated for an Oscar just before we did 'Hush...Hush' and was backstage waiting for the results to be called. She thought she would win. Joan was backstage, too. She had the proxy of three of the nominees to pick of the award in the event they won."

"When they announced Anne Bancroft had won, Joan pushed Bette aside

JOAN CRAWFORD
"Did You See (Bleep)?"

BETTE DAVIS
Tough in Feud

and with a great big smile accepted the Oscar for Anne.

"Bette has the longest memory in history. When we began to make 'Hush Hush! Sweet Charlotte' Bette stood just off-camera rehearsing her lines when Joan was working in a scene."

"One day she watched Joan do a scene and then asked me in a loud voice, 'She's not going to do it that way, is she?' Joan got sick and we had to replace her with Olivia de Havilland. I'd never go through it again."

On "The Big Knife" Rod Steiger and Jack Palance were enemies. They feuded and fussed throughout the film.

"One day Rod had to do a very dramatic scene and Jack began throwing phonograph records at him. They were whizzing by Rod's head. I was amused because Rod just kept reciting his lines," Aldrich recalled.

"But it ruined the take. Finally I told them we were quitting for the day and they could either call me that night and apologize for acting like children or telephone their attorneys in the morning."

"I sat by the phone that night, worrying. But they finally called."

"I try not to cast difficult actors in my pictures, or performers who don't get along with one another. But too often a feud will break out in unexpected quarters."

In his new picture, "Emperor of the North Pole," Aldrich worked with Lee Marvin for the third time and Ernie Borgnine for the eighth time. Both men get along professionally and personally.

"Temperamental outbursts usually happen in rehearsal or the first few days of shooting when the actors are trying to settle down," he said.

"They are unsure of themselves and the interior relationships of a picture. It takes a while for them to adjust to their surroundings and what they are supposed to do."

"Working with the same stars in movies cuts through a lot of time and adjustment. They can speak in house numbers and be comfortable."

"I couldn't have made 'Emperor of the North Pole' if Lee and Ernie didn't have mutual respect and admiration for each other. Each was too proud to let the other guy walk away with the picture."

"You don't have to tell actors not to coast. They should be competitive but cooperative. It's a drag working with stars who put you or a costar in conflict. I'd just as soon not work with them."

In Light Opera Roles

James Cutlip, playing the role of Prince Karl Franz, and Irene Chapman as Kathie are appearing in the final performance this afternoon of the Civic Light Opera production of "The Student Prince." Tickets to the musical in the Jordan Theater, 6500 Atlantic Ave., are available at Mutual and Liberty agencies and the CLO box office, 518 E. Fourth St. —Staff Photo by TOM SHAW

Making music on a garden hose

United Press International

A nuclear physicist at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles can blow a tune on a garden hose that sounds like a clarinet.

Dr. John Backus has been doing research for the past 15 years on the acoustics of woodwind instruments.

He has developed a synthetic reed for clarinets which he says takes the uncertainty out of the capricious instrument. He has applied for a patent and hopes to market his reed.

Backus says what comes out of a woodwind instrument is the product of a complicated relationship between the vibrations from the reed and from the air column.

Backus insists that with a good reed, almost any air column will do.

Chef for 'beautiful people' multiplying La Petite Ferme

By DUSTON HARVEY

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The problem is the same whether you run Harry's Hamburger Heaven, Dan's Dandy Delicatessen or Charles Chevillot's "La Petite Ferme."

How do you expand an intimate eatery which owes its success to the personality and culinary skills of its owner-chef without losing your loyal customers?

If you're Chevillot and those customers include Jacqueline Onassis, Truman Capote and other so-called "beautiful people," you spend a lot of time on airplanes between your popular "hole-in-the-wall" in New York and your unheralded San Francisco replica.

You listen to some of your better known patrons asking, "Why don't you spend more time here?" And worry about what they're going to say when you open the third version of your small French restaurant in the Hilton Hotel in Teheran in the fall.

Lots of restaurant owners, of course, would like to have worries and problems like those. Chevillot, 39, who founded his first "La Petite Ferme" — the small farm — in a Greenwich Village bakery two years ago, is a casual-dressing Frenchman who drops names and and chats about cooking and the changing restaurant scene with equal facility. Chevillot's previous post as manager of a huge restaurant in the CBS building in New York and his acquaintance with the William Paleys eventually brought some of the city's famous to his eatery, which now has a two-to-three week waiting list for reservations.

"Fancy, expensive restaurants are in a decline for economic reasons and because of changing life styles. The time of captains and head waiters is over."

He said people are becoming unhappy about spending $50 for a dinner for two — even those who can easily afford it. "They object to that style of life, to wearing a coat and tie just for dinner."

Rags 'n tatters vanish into fashion history

NEW YORK — It was the day when Seventh Avenue came undone at the seams. Fashion showings were stacked one on top of each other so closely that nobody could get to them all — but a lot of people tried. Lunch was a cup of cottage cheese on the corner of 39th Street, pretzels passed among friends and hard candy for dessert. Shows ran late, viewers left early — and on top of all this, retailers had a real headache.

The longer skirt, which caused so much havoc three years ago, was sidling in the door of some of the most prestigious fashion houses: Halston, Oscar de la Renta and, among the swingers, Scott Barrie. Just a speck below the knee, sometimes a few inches longer, but enough to cause sick headaches among retailers seeking to make sense of the new season.

"They don't look pretty," said one store president. "I'm studying them," said a fashion editor. "I love them," said a retail executive, looking around surreptitiously as if he was leaving a skin flick.

The fear and trembling was unwarranted as the longer skirts represented just a small

Angel managed to make Fathers just right size

By ERMA BOMBECK

When the good Lord was creating Fathers he started with a tall frame.

And a female angel nearby said, "What kind of Father is that? If you're going to make children so close to the ground, why have you put Fathers up so high? He won't be able to shoot marbles without kneeling, tuck a child in bed without bending, or even kiss a child without a lot of stooping."

And God smiled and said, "Yes, but if I make him child-size, who would children have to look up to?"

And when God made a Father's hands, they were large and sinewy.

And the angel shook her head sadly and said, "Do you know what you're doing? Large hands are clumsy. They can't manage diaper pins, small buttons, rubber bands on pony tails or even remove splinters caused by baseball bats."

And God smiled and said, "I know, but they're large enough to hold everything a small boy empties from his pockets at the end of a day... yet small enough to cup a child's face in his hands."

And then God molded long, slim legs and broad shoulders.

And the angel nearly had a heart attack. "Boy, this is the end of the week, all right," she elucked. "Do you realize you just made a Father without a lap? How is he going to pull a child close to him without the kid falling between his legs?"

AND GOD smiled and said, "A Mother needs a lap. A Father needs strong shoulders to pull a sled, balance a boy on a bicycle, or hold a sleepy head on the way home from the circus."

God was in the middle of creating two of the largest feet anyone had ever seen when the angel could contain herself no longer. "That's not fair. Do you honestly think those large boats are going to dig out of bed early in the morning when the baby cries? Or walk through a small birthday party without crushing at least three of the guests?"

And God smiled and said, "They'll work. You'll see. They'll support a small child who wants to ride a horse to Banbury Cross, or scare off mice at the summer cabin, or display shoes that will be a challenge to fill."

God worked throughout the night, giving the Father few words, but a firm, authoritative voice: eyes that saw everything, but remained calm and tolerant.

Finally, almost as an after thought, he added — tears. Then he turned to the angel and said, "Now, are you satisfied that he can love as much as a Mother?"

The angel shuteth up.

FATHERS KNOW BEST

About things like balancing small boys, pulling sleds, scaring off mice and emptying children's pockets at the end of the day. Here, father Jack Giley exhibits some of his expertise as he plays with his children, Kelly, 7, and Jason, 4, at Bixby Park.

SOCIALLY SPEAKING

Count the celebrities

By CAROLYN McDOWELL

DID YOU KNOW that Mark Spitz was in town last week? And Jimmy Cagney? And Carol Burnett?

That got your attention, didn't it?

Phony celebrities gathered for a bona fide good time at the home of Jon and Margie Masterson.

Occasion was the annual (sometimes) spring party for Kiwanis members and their ladies.

Celebrity game was the brain child of Dave and Kay Berg. The procedure was to wear or display a trademark associated with a celebrity and try to guess the trademarks everyone else was wearing while they tried to guess who you were supposed to be.

Clear?

Hostess Margie wore a big blue hair bow and was easy to guess as Clara Bow, if you happen to be in the right age group.

The do-it-yourself menu included Wet Back Tacos (sort of Dagwood tostadas, you remember Dagwood sandwiches surely?) and build your own sundaes for dessert.

To work off the calories created by the cuisine, there was after dinner shuffleboard, ping pong and conversation.

Among conversationalists were Party Chairpeople, Tom and Sandi Shadden, Ken and Bev Wing (he is Kiwanis president) Ed and Sandi Babic, Hal and Helen Moore and Bill and Norma Harris.

Also Jess and Peggy Gilkerson, Scott and Diane Jones, Gordon and Caroline Getz, Norm and Donella Rasmussen, Leter and Lynn Davis and Fred and Kathy Walker in the throng of 140.

MIKE ARMOUR won the door prize but the Hemophilia Foundation was the big winner ($2,000 richer) at a fun and fund raising hosted by Hal and Leone Marcum.

As you may have read here in the past, Hal and Leone have been fund raisers for the Foundation for some time. Their son, John, is a sufferer and so the project is close to their hearts.

As usual, Leone and kitchen helpers cooked for days and days for the expected 250 contributors.

This year it was a Mexican mariachi party and they also mixed margaritas by the GALLON.

Charles Schott, of Long Beach Honda, donated the Big Door prize — a Honda, naturally — and as I mentioned before, Mike and Jo Armour were the delighted winners.

Other seniors and seniors were Jim and Sharon Miller, the brothers Foster, Hal and Sherrie and Don and Ellen, Dick Borgen, Jean Rindone, Jack and Jeanette Haley and Skip and Alice Lutz.

Also John and Deane Coultrup, Dick and Sherrie Hudson, Van and Dee Hickman, Jim and Lisa Tackett, Margie Walker, Russ and Barbara Uhl, Max and Linda Stone and George and Bobbie Garr.

HERE COME The Brides ...

Beverly Lancaster Stedman became Mrs. Byron Kluss when they exchanged vows in the First Lutheran Church where their romance began. Beverly is soloist and Byron is a member of the choir.

A reception followed at the Seal Beach home of her parents, the Edward Lancasters.

The newlyweds are honeymooning in Hawaii. On their return, they'll visit the bridegroom's parents, the August Klusses in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, before settling down in Our Town.

SALLIE JONES, former Kiwanis secretary, is not a bride but she just returned from attending the wedding of her granddaughter.

The former Lorna Sutherland and Alvah Pearson were married in the redwoods at Armstrong Grove in Guerneville.

A reception followed under the towering redwoods with relatives from this area offering congratulations to the new marrieds. They were Floyd and Charlotte Armstrong of Garden Grove, Charlotte Calvin of Westminster and the Ken Baustian family of Huntington Beach.

AND SOME longer weds ...

A quarter of a century longer. Philip and Margaret Cassarek were feted at a surprise silver celebration featuring cocktails and dinner.

Party was hosted by their daughter, Lorraine, (in the home of her grandparents, Harry and Adele Cossarek).

It wasn't too difficult for Lorraine to plan the catered party with the aid of good friend, Katie Stamper, and Granddad who happens to own the Prince of Whales restaurant.

Among the 40 family members and friends were George and Isabel Hodgson, Bob and Maura Cossarek and Don and Ruth Ann Cossarek.

GOLDEN CROWN banquet room was the setting for a dinner dance for 150 honoring Frank and Beverly Huber Jr. on their 25th wedding anniversary.

Long Ago wedding pictures were displayed and the maid of honor, Gerry Kill, was on hand with her husband, Richard, who was an usher.

Party was hosted by the Hubers' children and their spouses, Dan and Kathy Huber, Sue Miller and husband, Bob, and Janice Huber.

Among family members toasting the couple were Sadie Ahlgreen, Frank and Naida Huber Sr. and Bill and Lucille Birdick.

FOUR FOR SHUFFLEBOARD are left, hosts Jon and Margie Masterson and Kay and Dave Berg. See Socially Speaking for Kiwanis party details.

It's off to the races for St. Mary's Guild

They're off and running at Los Alamitos Race Track and among those cheering their favorite horse to the finish line Wednesday will be members and friends of St. Mary's Hospital Guild.

Event will be Guild's 19th annual Night at the Races to benefit the hospital's building fund. The Guild is hoping proceeds will pay off its $28,000 debt to the fund plus help it establish a $200,000 pledge to the Trauma Center.

A no-cost cocktail party begins at 6 p.m. First race is 8.

Tickets are $5 each and are available from Mrs. Walter P. Martin or Mrs. William Hanley. Mrs. O. B. Bowers is taking reservations.

Mrs. Frank Pickett is chairman, assisted by Mrs. John Franks, co-chairman.

Others helping with arrangements are Mmes. David Cohee, Jack Hamilton, William Voorhees, Arthur Hodge, Ward Dixon, Eugene Marcoux and Arthur D. Williams.

Theme for the event is "Hard Hats — Soft Hearts."

Summer is just around the corner. Now is the time to think about keeping your hair in good condition and not abusing it at the beaches, golf courses and tennis courts. If you torment it with sun, wind, salt water and chlorine and then try to repair it with magic potions, it just doesn't work. You can't help it, but it will never be the same until you have grown a new crop. Cover your head when you're out in the sun to keep it from drying out and causing split ends and breakage. Shampoo it after a dip in the ocean or a chlorine pool and then condition it. Keep your hair cut regularly as it grows faster in humid air. Above all make sure that you get a real expert to shape your hair as this is the real foundation for your hair style. This holds true for men and women.

It's a go-together fashion season for fall 1973

portion of the fashions going. The major message is divided between sweaters and sequins.

Viewers with long memories recalled the case history of the chemise. Greeted with cat-calls when it arrived in the summer of 1957, it vanished for a few seasons to return as the uniform of the 1960's.

"Forget it all and buy blue jeans," a mannequin called gaily as she ran to her next appointment.

LUXURY is edging in the door as the rags-and-tatters look of recent years merges into fashion history. Too often, this fills designers' heads with remembrance of things past. Well, Geoffrey Beene avoids the pitfall. He achieves the desired degree of elegance without loading up his clothes with all the obvious symptoms: furs, sequins and so on.

He does it in the old-fashioned way, devising new cuts that express today's look and tossing in an occasional dollop of wit and humor. The simple long dress with the print around the hips that looks at first like figures from a Greek urn and turns out to be a group of 1920's characters doing the tango is an example of the humor. The animal heads and the embroidered fan on the back of shirt dresses are other signs.

The cut Beene is concerned with is a stretched-out, skinny tube that lends itself to sweaters, jackets and two-piece evening dresses. It's interspersed with a loose, cape-like coat with funnel-shaped sleeves.

MOST WORLDLY affairs demand a leader. Fashion at the moment has Halston. He's the man who restored elemental good taste to a business beset by doubts after the mini-mid-hot pants fracas. He made the shirtdress the snappiest thing to wear by day and the catan the uniform of the night.

So what is he up to for fall? "I like things a little fuller, a little longer," he explained. There's a little more of everything because, as he says, "I'm one of those nuts who wants to dress everyone."

So, in addition to tent coats, there are fitted ones and straight ones. There's more attention to construction, but not enough to detract from the simple, throwaway, no-gimmick look he's known for.

IF JOHN Anthony has his way, you won't go anywhere next fall without a red fox something. He's enamored of red fox borders, boas, collars and cuffs.

That's not all. He also concentrates on colors that blend nicely with red fox. Apricot and cinnamon are his special favorites; occasionally he throws in a touch of brown for a sharper accent.

Anthony's favorite form of fox is a boa that he loops around the neck of almost anything or has the mannequin carry over her arm like a security blanket.

His forte is coats and suits, the coats often narrow affairs. Suits have pleated skirts or pants. There are any number of soft sweater dresses, including some floor length ones for evening. They have their red fox companions.

With all the hoopla about sweaters, and with every designer showing them on both sides of the Atlantic, you wouldn't think anyone could come up with anything new. Wrong. Oscar de la Renta, in his "something" collection (his sportswear), managed quite nicely.

Consider his shawl-collared sweater jacket, for instance, complete with cables and popcorn stitches. Or his shaker-knit pullover with kangaroo pockets in the front and a matching helmet-hood to go over the head. Each is both useful and inventive.

He mixes cashmere with glitter for his evening sweaters and then swings into sequins subtly striped in purple, red and brown. Or as subtle as striped sequin can be. A floor-length sequin dress from this collection will run about $230 in the stores next fall. As sequin styles go, it's a steal.

There were sequins in Oscar de la Renta's boutique collection and sweaters, too. The sweaters were knitted with metallic thread and sometimes they had feathers.

Start with a slinky Jersey dress. Add some silver chains plus a string of rhinestones, silver sandals with straps across the ankle, a quilted satin jacket, a crazy little hat pointed over one eye, and what have you got?

SO WHAT does a coat and suit designer show when he's presenting his very first collection for his own company? Sweaters, of course.

Ilie Wacs is the designer who started his fall presentation with the sweater gambit. Not your ordinary garden variety sweater, of course. His were lavished with fur or touched with leather and quickly established the effortless, casual mood he carried out in his more conventional coats. These were narrow or lightly flared, the latter fitting snugly over the bust so they didn't look too bulky.

The collection avoids being stodgy or extreme. It's for the woman who favors moderation but wants fashion too.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Pawson offers a fowl recipe

By MILDRED K. FLANARY

In a span of 40 years, he's covered Long Beach in the areas of furniture, music and flowers.

Today's Chef of the Week is probably best known as Richard B. (Dick) Pawson, the florist. Many a home and person he's brightened with his beautifully arranged bouquets and planters.

He had come a long way when he arrived in Long Beach in 1920. Pawson started out in Le- thridge, Alberta, Canada. Our City provided his education via Los Cerritos Elementary, Washington Junior High, Polytechnic High Schools and Long Beach City College.

Following graduation in 1933, he joined the Bogle Furniture Company, later joining McCrery's Music Co.

Pawson served the war years with the California Shipyards.

Come 1946, and he decided to go into business for himself. That was the beginning of Pawsons Flowers.

A NATURAL optimist, Pawson also has been a member of the Long Beach Downtown Optimist Club since 1947. A member of Covenant Presbyterian Church, he is active in both the Executives Association of Long Beach and the Chamber of Commerce.

Pawson's hobbies cover much territory both literally and figuratively. He enjoys all sports, but mostly indulges in skiing and golf, and he's much traveled. In fact, he combines them both. He's made two skiing trips to Europe and others to the Orient and the South Pacific. This year, he's returning to the Orient on a Floral Tour and to visit his brother who now is living in Tokyo.

RICHARD B. PAWSON

As for his cooking, our "Chef" returned to his childhood and has come up with a Roast Canadian Duck.

ROAST CANADIAN DUCK

2 ducks (wild)
2 apples
2 onions (medium)
1/3 jar black currant jelly
1 small can orange juice
Dry wine
Salt and pepper and seasonings to taste
Slice or break skin of duck breast.
Quarter apples, onions, mix with seasonings and stuff duck. Combine jelly, orange juice and wine. Pour over duck. Roast at 250 degrees for 2 1/2 hours or until tender. Baste intermittently.

FASCINATING FABRICS

Combating mildew damage

By FRANCES DIETRICH

A reader has taken me to task because a column on polyester referred to this fiber's "mildew resistance." She wrote: "I put a white 100 per cent polyester uniform in a hamper with dry clothes. The uniform mildewed so badly I have never been able to remove the spots."

Misunderstanding about mildew is shared by a great many people. Clarification may be particularly helpful at this time of the year, when thousands are vacationing at waterside resorts, where mugginess and warm temperatures encourage the growth of mildew.

Mildew is caused by mold, which is one of the simplest forms of plant life, known as fungi. Mold spores, which are plant life cells, are present in the air. When they settle, the spores flourish wherever it is damp, warm, dark, poorly ventilated. Even fabric of man-made fibers, which are resistant to mildew, will support growth when perspiration, soil or food stains are present. Cotton, linen, rayon, silk, wool, leather, paper and wood are particularly susceptible.

IT IS VERY possible that our correspondent's uniform may have contained dried stains and was placed in a clothes hamper in a bathroom or laundry room, where warm, moist air encouraged the growth of mildew. Even the hamper itself may have been the culprit, as hampers need to be cleaned and aired frequently to prevent mildew.

Mildew may be caused by damp basements, where a musty odor is a sure sign; and is known to grow in newly built homes because of moisture in the building material.

Cooking, laundering and bathing may add two or more gallons of water to a home in one day unless ventilation is adequate. Air conditioning or exhaust fans are often necessary to provide adequate ventilation.

Closets are closed spaces, which usually do not get enough circulation of air. They get particularly damp and musty during continued wet weather. To help the situation, keep closet doors open and hang clothes loosely so that air can circulate around them. Always dry out clothing that is damp from rain or perspiration before hanging in a closet.

When mildew has attached clothing or household fabric, get after it immediately. Brush off the surface growth outdoors in order to prevent scattering mildew spores in the house. Sun and air fabric thoroughly.

IF MILDEW SPOTS remain and the fabric is washable, launder with soap or detergent and hot water if the latter is permissible depending upon the fiber. Rinse well and dry in the sun. If this doesn't work, bleach with a mixture of lemon juice and salt, spread clothing in sun to dry. Rinse thoroughly.

Another treatment is to use bleach, which is a mixture of one two tablespoons of sodium perborate or a powdered bleach containing sodium perborate with one pint of water. Use hot water if safe for the fabric; otherwise, lukewarm water. Allow the solution to remain on the stain 30 minutes or longer. Rinse thoroughly, as usual.

Chlorine bleach in a proportion of two tablespoons of liquid bleach to one quart of warm water may be used except where a warning label has accompanied the article due to finishes which may be damaged by chlorine bleaches. Chlorine bleach should not be used on silk, wool or spandex.

DESIGNER PATTERN

Pantskirt—just wrap, buckle, go

Wrap into a fashion sensation — a pantskirt that's both pants and skirt all in one. Sounds impossible, but it's true—just one main pattern part plus belt does it. Cut pants and skirt all in one piece, sew one seam and waistband; wrap, buckle and go. Looks luxurious and it couldn't be easier. The designer is the inventive, imaginative Bert Geiger. He tops off the pantskirt in Printed Pattern A711 with a halter (also, one main pattern part). Whip up both in a day to wear the next day.

Printed Pattern A711 is available in misses' sizes 8, 10, 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50, 52, 54, 56, 58, 60, 62, 64, 66, 68, 70, 72, 74, 76, 78, 80, 82, 84, 86, 88, 90, 92, 94, 96, 98, 100. Size 12 (bust 34) pantskirt and halter require 5 1/2 yards 45-inch fabric.

Send ONE DOLLAR for Printed Pattern A711 to Independent, Press-Telegram Pattern Department, P.O. Box 59, Old Chelsea Station, New York, N.Y. 10011. (Add 25 cents for each pattern for air mail and special handling.) Please print plainly your name, address with zip, style number and size.

DEAR ABBY

Past teaches her to say 'no' with integrity

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY:
I am a 19-year-old girl with an ugly past. I have "made love" with so many lovers that I now wonder if it will ever be an expression of real love when I would like it to be. There is someone who probably will be asking me to share love with him, I'm sure. I desperately want to avoid going into another affair in which I will be another sexy pastime for someone to trip with. All of my past affairs have ended in my having contempt for the fellows. I don't want to make that mistake again.

I am now going with someone who seems to care for me as a person. He hasn't pressured me for sex. He knows that I have had lovers and that if he pushed the matter he probably could include himself on the list. Yet, so far, he hasn't.

What do I say if our relationship develops into a really serious love? He will think I'm playing games if I say "no" to him when he knows I've said "yes" to others.

I have learned that if a sexual involvement is held off, if the relationship survives it must be for other reasons, which will give me self-respect and a feeling of worth as a person.

What do you think, Abby?

HOLDING OFF

DEAR HOLDING:

You have the right idea. You can say "no" with integrity today even though you have said "yes" yesterday because you have learned from your mistakes. You are confusing "making love" and "having sex." You have had sex, but you haven't really made love yet.

DEAR ABBY:

I am a divorced woman and I call myself a divorcee. It's nothing to be ashamed of. Practically every other woman you meet nowadays is a divorcee.

I have this friend who was married for nine years. She and her husband fought all the time, and they finally got a divorce. About three months after the divorce was final, her ex-husband dropped dead of a heart attack. This friend now goes around passing herself off as a widow. She thinks it will get her sympathy, and maybe improve her chances of getting another husband. Personally, I don't think it will help her much. I'd like your opinion.

DIVORCED AND ADMITS IT

DEAR DIVORCED:

Statistics show that more divorcees than widows remarry. But if your friend thinks she'll get more sympathy as a widow than a divorcee, she's right. In spades!

IRA G. CORN JR.
TEAM CAPTAIN

Dear Mr. Corn:
How to bid this hand to a grand slam? West opens one heart, but what happens after that?

EAST

Highland Park, Ill.

Answer: Reaching the excellent grand slam requires the use of cue bids to pinpoint controls plus the use of the grand-slam force to determine trump quality. A reasonable sequence is:

West
1♥
3♣
5NT

2♦
3♥
7♥

Three clubs shows a good hand, and three hearts sets the suit. Four diamonds and five clubs show the aces, and five no trump is the grand slam force. In its simplest form, this bid (five no trump asks East to bid six with one top honor (A,K,Q) and seven with two.

Dear Mr. Corn:

We played four hearts and made six after West opened three hearts and East raised the game. In the reshuffle we decided that someone owes the "boo-boo" pot a quarter. Can you help please?

WEST
♠ 7

♦ J
♣ A Q 9 7 6 3

EAST
♠ A J 6
♥ J
♦ A J 10 8 7 3
♣ K J 8

Whodunit Perryville, Mo.

Answer: Since someone will owe the "boo-boo" pot a quarter, my answer will have to weigh all pertinent factors.

First is the matter of system. In most standard systems pre-emptive bids describe weak hands with long suits, usually less than nine high-card points. Obviously, West either does not play that way or else he deviated from the system by opening the bidding with three hearts. It might also be possible that East may have the same ideas as West regarding pre-emptive.

If the pair were using standard methods, then West is the culprit. East could certainly not reach for a slam after the pre-empt. Had West opened one heart, it is quite likely that the partnership would have reached at least six clubs.

Dear Mr. Corn:

My partner doubled an opening of one heart. What should I have done with this hand?

♠ 10 5 2
♥ 10 9 8 4 3
♦ J 4 3
♣ Q 2

Double-Trouble Baltimore

Answer: The first question to consider is: "Bid or pass?" The pass is bad because the trumps are too poor and declarer might well make overtricks. The only reasonable bid is one spade. A rare case of choosing to bid a three-card suit as a least of evils.

Dear Mr. Corn:
We're having Blackwood problems. Please set us straight. Is a raise from one no trump to four no trump a request for aces?

How Many San Francisco

Answer: The direct raise to four no trump is an invitational bid and not a Blackwood bid. It asks partner to pass with a minimum opener and to bid slam with a maximum. The four-no-trump bidder promises 15-16 high-card points.

Russian exhibition is art magnet

by ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

Seven days in a week aren't enough for the many viewers eager to see the current exhibit of Soviet-owned European masterworks of Impressionist and Post-Impressionist painters.

For the first time in its history, Los Angeles County Museum of Art, 5905 Wilshire Blvd., has gone on a seven-day-a-week schedule to enable as many people as possible to see 41 paintings from the Pushkin Museum in Moscow and the Hermitage Museum in Leningrad. Hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Mondays through Fridays and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays. The rare exhibit will remain only through July 8.

Museum officials were prepared for a large number of visitors on preview days Wednesday and Thursday, open only to museum members. But they didn't expect the 6,027 that came Wednesday and a larger number on Thursday. Then when the show opened to the public Friday, the scene became unreal.

At Wednesday's preview, it seemed that all known languages and accents were heard as excited viewers commented on the excellence of the choice works on loan from Russia. Paintings by Matisse, Gauguin, Picasso, Cezanne, van Gogh, Monet, Renoir, Rousseau, Derain, Pissarro, Sisley, Braque, Vlaminck and Leger were identified in signs written in English, Spanish (curiously, not in French), and in characters which can be read by both Chinese and Japanese patrons. These Oriental characters were hand-lettered by George Kuwayama, senior curator of Far Eastern art at the museum.

Previous record for museum attendance was set in 1969 when the van Gogh exhibit drew 231,000 viewers during its two-month stay. It will be difficult to make an accurate comparison with this show, since it will remain only three weeks. Admission fee is $1 for adults, 50 cents for children and senior citizens.

A reminder: no cameras are allowed to be taken inside the exhibit area. Wednesday, a cheerful checker outside the Hammer Wing of the museum was stowing not only cameras and other prohibited items—she was holding in her arms a poodle whose owner had confidently brought him—her?—to see the show. The owner was none too pleased that her pet must be left outside!

PAINTER David Negron of Long Beach is one of 11 artists whose works will be shown Friday and Saturday at the sixth annual exhibition presented by Disney Artists for Cal Arts.

More than 200 works of art by painters and sculptors associated with the Walt Disney organization will overflow the Hancock Park home and garden of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Lund for the benefit to raise scholarship funds for students at California Institute of the Arts in Valencia.

Called "Return to Muirfield Faire," the exhibit will present the paintings of Millard Sheets, Mary Blair, Claude Coats, Richard Huebner, Michael Lloyd, Sam McKim, Scott Miller, David Negron and Paul Wenzel. Sculpture by Roderick Elmore and Istvan Toth will be displayed. More than 500 guests are expected to view the works, all of which are available for purchase.

A special feature of the exhibit will be the showing of 20 paintings by students attending Cal Arts. They were chosen by Paul Brach, dean of the school of art and a nationally known artist.

Mrs. Harrison Price is chairman of the benefit. Mr. and Mrs. Lund have hosted the exhibits for the past four years. He is chairman of the board of trustees and chief administrative officer of Cal Arts. Mrs. Lund is the former Sharon Disney.

The institute, whose students benefit through two scholarships provided each year by the Disney artists show, was the longtime dream of the late Walt Disney to create a "Community of the arts." Now a reality, Cal Arts brings together the major art disciplines—art, design, film-video, music, theater and dance.

WOMANSPACE, which claims to be the first comprehensive West Coast center for the exhibition and performance of women's art, announces that its first juried show will open June 30 at 11007 Venice Blvd., Los Angeles. There will be a public reception from 7 to 10 p.m. Entries will be juried by Josine Iancostarrels, director of the art gallery at California State University, Los Angeles, and Betty J. Turnbull, acting director of Newport Harbor Art Museum, Newport Beach.

Entry is open to all women members of Womenspace whose membership fee is $6 for 6 months. Works must be submitted to the Venice Boulevard address Tuesday and Wednesday between 10 a.m. and 8 p.m. There is an entry fee of $3 and each artist may submit only one work. Forms may be requested by telephone or in person.

ART CRITIC William Wilson has juried the 21st All City Outdoor Art Festival to be held Thursday through next Sunday at Barnsdall Park, Los Angeles. Sponsored by the Los Angeles Municipal Arts Department, the event will be open from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. at 4804

Hollywood Blvd. Admission is free.

Skilled local artisans will display their works and crafts demonstrations will be conducted at 28 booths. Visitors will be encouraged to try their hands at throwing a pot, writing Oriental style with a brush dipped in ink and other crafts. Artists will demonstrate such techniques as working with metal sculpture, leather and jewelry.

Festival-goers may purchase any of the more than 2,000 paintings, drawings and pieces of sculpture entered in competition. Artists residing within a 30-mile radius of Los Angeles City Hall are competing for $10,000 in purchase awards sponsored by Home Savings and Loan.

Senior citizens and their families will be saluted Friday with special entertainment.

LONG BEACH PAINTER David Negron, right, is among 11 artists represented in the sixth annual exhibition presented by Disney Artists for Cal Arts. At left is artist Michael Lloyd, whose work also will be shown in the Friday and Saturday benefit exhibition.

Two tubas aren't too many for Tubby

Roger Bobo, Los Angeles Philharmonic's tuba player extraordinary, will be featured soloist in "Tubby the Tuba" for Hollywood Bowl's Fourth of July Fireworks Picnic Concert beginning at 7:30 p.m. Ralph Story will narrate. The program includes work by Britten, Walton, Brahms and Ravel and ends with "Stars and Stripes Forever." Only single seats are left for box seats, but others are available at $2 and $3. Phone or write the box office for information.

Deadline date nears for Mozart Festival

Young instrumentalists and vocalists are invited to compete in the second annual Mozart Festival sponsored by the Unitarian Universalist Church, 5450 Atherton St. Auditions, judging, public performance by the winners and awarding of prizes will be on Saturday, July 14.

Students living within, or studying with a teacher living within, a 20-mile radius of the church are eligible. Any W. A. Mozart composition, as originally scored, may be performed for competition.

Participants may enter one of five divisions for musicians from ages 16 to 30. Three judges will select division finalists. The grand prize winner, selected from the five finalists, will receive $100. The winner and first runner-up will perform at the Saturday evening concert of the three-day festival. Lakewood Chamber Orchestra, directed by Bruce Polay, will be the festival orchestra.

Deadline for the limited number of entries is June 30. Entry forms may be obtained from Miss R.K. Preuss, contest chairman, 11725 Downey Ave., Apt. 13, Downey, 90241. A $3 fee will be charged.

SAID Douglas Waide, founder and director of the church-sponsored event for the past two years, "The Mozart Festival is an outgrowth of the musical interests of many members and friends of our congregation. Its purpose is to encourage local musicians to perform the composer's works in our community. The competition provides an opportunity for young people in the Long Beach area to further their recital experience and, hopefully, their musical careers."

Other events during the festival include a biergarten, an Austrian dinner and a historical production on the life and music of Mozart scheduled for Friday, July 13.

The regular morning service Sunday, July 15, will be based on the works of Mozart. That afternoon, a concert of chamber music will be presented by professional musicians.

The public is invited to all events. Admission is free to everything except the biergarten and dinner.

Studio calls musicians for audition

Studio Theater of Long Beach Community Players will hold open auditions for "The Marvelous Magical Musical Comedy" to be produced July 29 through Aug. 15 under direction of Glenn Bradley. Tryouts for this show of musical comedy excerpts will be conducted Monday and Tuesday at the Studio Theater, upstairs at 5021 E. Anaheim St.

Auditions are open to singers and dancers between the ages of 16 and 25. Performers are asked to bring music in the correct key and will be required to sing and dance.

The production will provide an entertaining and educational look at changes in musical comedy over the past 50 years. Tentative plans include numbers from "Showboat" of the 1920s; "Anything Goes" of the 1930s; Rodgers and Hammerstein Medley of the 1940s; "West Side Story," "The Music Man" and "My Fair Lady" of the 1950s; "Fiddler on the Roof" and "Man of La Mancha" of the 1960s; and "Godspell" and "Pippin" of the 1970s.

Arts Council elects reports, plans, praises

At the fifth annual meeting Wednesday at Petroleum Club, representatives of 43 organizations comprising Long Beach Regional Arts Council elected Mrs. Selden C. Beebe their president for 1973-74. She succeeds Mrs. Mark Day Miner.

Active in the Arts Council since its inception in 1968, Mrs. Beebe is wife of Selden C. Beebe, M.D., and is a member of a longtime Long Beach family. She is a graduate of Polytechnic High School and Stanford University; her special interests are music and art. She also is a member of Long Beach Museum Association and Fine Arts Affiliates of Long Beach State University.

Other new officers are Mrs. Joseph Byrne, Mrs. Robert C. Benson, Mrs. William Wallace and Travis Montgomery. New members also were elected to the large board of directors. Two of these, Chuck Davis and Mrs. David Hauser, will join the five elected officers to form the executive committee.

Fifth season for Claremont

The Claremont Music Festival at Pomona College will celebrate its fifth season from Friday July 6, through Saturday, Aug. 4. Season brochures and tickets are now available. Giora Bernstein is festival director.

An innovation will be an American Music Week, July 18 through 25. It will feature world premieres of works by composers David Baker, George Heussenstamm, Karl Kohn and Lalo Schiffrin and first West Coast performances of compositions by Eric Salzman and

MRS. SELDEN C. BEEBE

IN HER annual report, Mrs. Miner reviewed accomplishments of the past year, focusing particular attention on fund-raising events which made possible the awarding of financial grants to member organizations and named the first Long Beach Arts Festival, held May 11 to 20, as a special achievement.

Reporting on the festival, chairman Marylou Dunn said the festival committee believes that the criteria set at the beginning had been met—to call attention of the community to the many cultural events in the area, to publicize Long Beach as a cultural center and to develop new audiences through the neighborhood concept.

She noted, however, that the committee recommends that the festival be compressed into a shorter period and that only local organizations be included. More extensive support from the business community should be solicited and advice from business and industry representatives should be sought in planning next year's festival.

In addition to individual achievement awards, special presentations were made to retiring members of the board of directors and members of the Arts Festival Committee.

HIGH POINT of the meeting was tribute to Mrs. Everett Siegrist, who is retiring as the Arts Council executive secretary. She has been the organization's only full-time professional staff member since its beginning. She was presented with a plaque granting her lifetime membership in the council, which she will continue to serve as a volunteer. She also received gifts from the board of directors and the executive committee.

The Arts Council office will be closed through July 16, when activities will be resumed.

Oh $ay can you $ee the U$A?

By HERB SHANNON
I.P.T. Travel Editor

Richard Joseph is a bright young man from New York who has been Travel Editor of Esquire Magazine for 27 years. Well, there isn't any question about his intelligence. He preserves the youthful facade by working hard at a job he likes, mostly on the run.

In addition to zooming around the world six months of the year, doing his thing for Esquire every month and writing a nationally syndicated weekly column, Dick has authored half a dozen travel guide books and on three occasions conducted groups on global tours.

Last week he loped through Los Angeles on a six-city western swing to spread the good word on 1973 vacation travel. The message he previously had delivered to points east isn't exactly what you might expect from a perennial commuter to Europe, Latin America and the Orient.

"This is a good year to see the U.S.A.," he explained in a hotel lobby interview between radio and television studio appearances. "There are three excellent reasons, all having to do with money."

"First, there is dollar devaluation overseas. You hear a lot about the $3 tab for a sip of orange juice in Tokyo, but a lot of people overlook the fact that inflation is also taking place in Europe. Second is our unfavorable balance of trade with Europe and Japan. U.S. tourism over there contributes to the deficit, and it compounds the problem by increasing the demand for services and forcing prices still higher."

"Thirdly, there's our country's Bicentennial celebration coming up. This year provides an opportunity for a preview of the historic locations associated with this event. At the same time, the dollar deflates more predictably here, so you know in advance what the trip is going to cost."

IN THE JUNE ISSUE of Esquire, Joseph has taken nine pages to press the point, offering as many suggested American tours. The excursions cover the U.S. from the Caribbean to Alaska and New England to the Old West.

"I'm not saying that next month Esquire will not be pointing out tourist attractions elsewhere in the world, but I think now is the time to emphasize the alternative vacation at home," the travel writer said. "You may remember how pretty Yellowstone Park used to be. It still is. The geysers are operating as regularly as ever and the waterfall is just as spectacular."

"This is the year to give it another chance. Or see something new within our borders. At least you won't be embarrassed in the future by having to admit to a taxi driver in Rome that you've never seen the Grand Canyon."

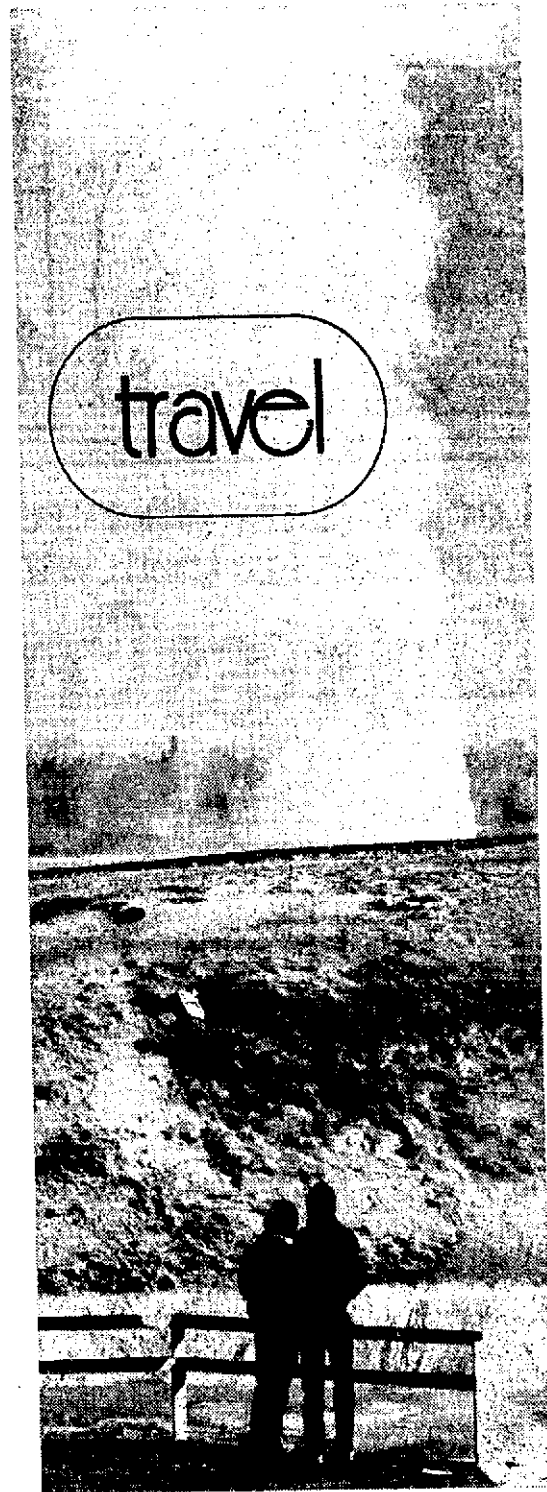

The first of the Esquire do-it-yourself tours centers on the Bicentennial theme by picking up the trail of George Washington at Philadelphia, where he presided at the Constitutional Convention and spent most of his years as the first President. The tour traces the highlights of his military career southward to Valley Forge and Annapolis, where Congress ended the Revolutionary War on a contemporary note by ratifying a Paris Peace Treaty.

The Washington Trail continues into Virginia to Alexandria, a city which the father of our country helped to bring to birth as a teen-aged self-taught surveyor. It leads through the battlegrounds of his war and the Civil War some 80 years later. A rewarding climax is a visit to Washington's final resting place, Mount Vernon.

AT THE OPPOSITE end of the continent in the dual dimensions of geography and time are the Indian Trail through Arizona and New Mexico, the Cowboy Trail in Colorado, and the Klondike Trail in Alaska. Canyon De Chelly, site of the best-preserved original American cliff-dwellings, takes us back farthest in man-made monument chronology, and is appropriately situated in the upper reaches of the Grand Canyon.

Between Alaska and the West and the Colonial country on the east, Esquire suggests exploration of the "Jazz and Jean Lafitte" country starting at New Orleans; the Upper Great Lakes from Detroit to Chicago; a turn of the phrase and the town with "Big Old New York," and on to "Boston and Beyond."

Or pick your own destination. Somewhere in America there's a place that's very different from what you're used to. As Dick Joseph says, try one

YELLOWSTONE GEYSERS STILL ERUPT

Travel by rail, bus, raft

Relatively few people have visited the depths of the Colorado River's Glen Canyon Gorge since Maj. John Wesley Powell first explored it in 1869. Sheer cliffs rise 800 to 1,500 feet along both shores of the riverbed.

During the Fourth of July weekend, a combination rail, bus and raft trip to and through the canyon will re-enact Maj. Powell's discovery for the fourth consecutive year. Pleasant ripples, but no rapids, will enhance the river route of the easy float tour.

The journey begins June 27 at Los Angeles Union station aboard the Amtrak "Super Chief" to Flagstaff, and then via motorcoach through the back country of northern Arizona. The seven-day tour includes visits to Grand Canyon, Oak Creek Canyon, a ghost town, Montezuma Castle National Monument and Glen Canyon Dam. Direct connections from downtown Long Beach and Lakewood to the Los Angeles rail terminal are provided by American Pacific Stages.

Details may be obtained through ticket offices of Amtrak, or by writing Let's Travel Tours, P.O.

Cruise prices stable

Although the U.S. dollar buys less in foreign ports since devaluation, cruise prices haven't changed, thereby offering many benefits to passengers on P&O, The British Cruise Line.

Prices for land excursions have risen as much as 20%, yet cruise passengers rest secure in the knowledge that prices at sea are far below those on shore.

Cruise fares include cabin space, all meals and all entertainment, as every traveler knows. On P&O ships such as Oronsay, Arcadia and Spirit of London, this can be as little as $40 per day. That's less than people generally spend at home for the same three elements of daily living.

Cruise passengers may choose to shop in various ports of call visited by the ships, yet if prices become too astonishing, they may always retreat to the refuge of their floating home.

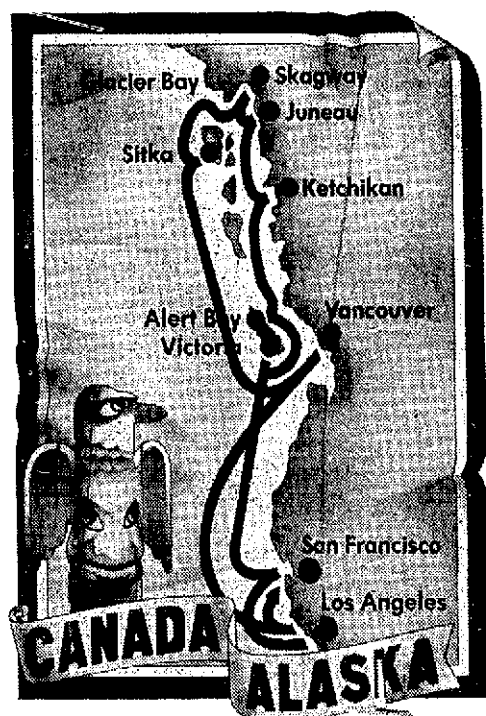

A glass of orange juice may cost as much as $3.20 in a Tokyo hotel. It's still free on board P&O ships. In addition, duty-free shops on board offer luxury items at bargain prices; items such as Pentax cameras, Seiko watches, English china and cashmere, Hong Kong brocades and Mikimoto pearls.

It's possible to spend as much as $2.50 for a single drink in London or Paris. On P&O ships, drinks are only 50 cents — for a double.

Travelers who fly to any major capital are trapped into spending their devalued dollars in hotels, restaurants, shops and nightclubs, and they must spend extra cash on tours, car rentals, taxis and tips.

The only extra cash a cruise passenger needs is for minor tipping, which is based upon the amount of service one receives.

Explore the last frontier this summer aboard The Yacht.

There's a corner of the earth where you can still find fresh air, clear water and blue skies.

British Columbia and Alaska.

Where the only skyscrapers are glaciers. And the closest thing to a neon sign is the midnight sun.

P&O's glistening Spirit of London can take you there.

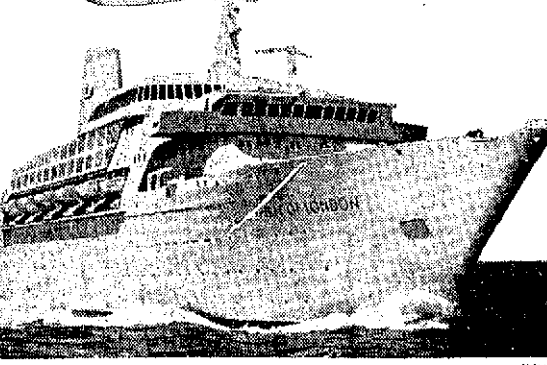

The 535 ft., British-registered Spirit of London combines all the spaciousness of a cruise ship with the luxury and style of a yacht.

She'll be making two-week cruises to Canada and Alaska through September, leaving from Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Exploring the magnificent icescape of Glacier Bay and calling at Vancouver, Victoria, Alert Bay, Ketchikan, Juneau, Skagway or Sitka.

The minimum $745 fare for an inside double, or $1,050 for an outside twin includes First Class cuisine, accommodation and entertainment.

PENNY-WISE TRAVELER

Advice for the car-cautious

By JANE MORSE

When you've had it with the $9 buffets at the Caribe Hilton, the seediness creeping over the once-beautiful El Convento, the happy hooking in the bar of the El San Juan and the real estate hustlers coming at you on the beaches, what else is there to do in sunny San Juan, Puerto Rico, the all-year vacation paradise?

Get out, maybe? Well, it was scarcely an original thought, but it was all mine. Luckily, I met some Puerto Ricans with better ideas. Get out, they said, but "out island." Leave mini-Miami and visit a working coffee plantation where you can also ooh over Indian caves. Ahh at a "moon-scape," the spectacular mounds and sinkholes that form the eerie "karst" country.

On a moonless night, watch sparks shooting from luminescent fishes leaping through Parguera Bay. Check Rincon, where international surfing competitions have been held. Take up the barefoot life in a guesthouse on an off-shore island. Sample choice bits of quiet and fiery foods served up Chinese-egg-roll style at beachside stalls.

THEY HAD ME! I'm a pushover for sights I've never tasted. For most people, getting to them is just what a typical car rental ad says: "Easy!" But what about those of us who can't or won't get behind a wheel?

I just happen to know that in Puerto Rico, Japan, Lebanon and Mexico there are unwritten, unspoken agreements to suspend certain fundamental rules of the road, but you have to be born there to know which ones.

Gutier sorts can go ahead and rent wheels, but for the benefit of yellow chickens who'd also like to explore Puerto Rico, let me announce that there are alternatives. Four, in fact: two for the rich and two for the poor. Hiring a car with driver works fine if you can pay for it. Flying costs "almost" $20 round trip — San Juan-Ponce, $22 round trip San Juan-Mayaguez but, of course, you don't see much as you go and the scheduled destinations are only six, two of them other islands in the commonwealth.

Perhaps the worst news is that although buses are cheap, they go to only six spots, too. Moreover, they appear to be well qualified for retirement and the air conditioning is whatever God chooses to provide.

So how, you might ask, do most carless Puerto Ricans tour the boonies? By publico, that's how.

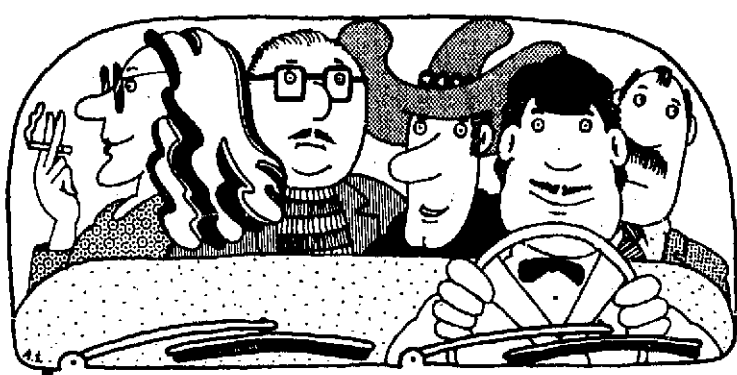

YOU WOULDN'T, said my friends. Who wouldn't? said I. Publicos are broken-down old taxis, they said, and publicos pick up people with great big market baskets and dead chickens drip blood all over your feet and there are so many little children that you don't know what to do.

The desk clerk at my hotel directed me to the plaza where I could kick up a publico. In San Juan there are different stations for different destinations and, as I discovered after the fact, a perfectly workable arrangement whereby you pick up the phone, ask for a publico going your way within the space of a few hours and, before that time is up, one will call at your home or hotel.

The numbers are listed under Lineas de Choferes. If you don't speak Spanish, get a go-between to keep the details straight and to find out about transfer points. I learned nothing about dead or live animals, but I found you are limited to one large piece of baggage or two small ones. There are generally rest stops every two hours and set tariffs that seem to work out to about $1 an hours.

AT THE PLAZA I was politely helped into an exceptionally large, clean sedan of recent vintage where I sat for about 10 minutes, until we were five. Then off we went but at a pretty poky pace. We were, it turned out, still soliciting business.

The immediate outskirts of San Juan are a typically American collection of auto rows, tin cans and short-order joints. How anyone could name a place the "Saigon Barbeque" boggles the mind, but once past this obscenity and other reminders of urban civilization, the scenery improves and softens, thanks to nature and the island's Spanish heritage. And sure enough, eventually there are all those fine sights.

What are the drawbacks? Well, on weekends there are 600,000 cars, all of them barreling down the road. The Puerto Ricans are very big on Sunday driving. Of course, this affects all travel, not just travel by publico. Having no control over the publico's radio frustrated me, although I'm sure a request to turn it off would have been honored.

What you can't do much about is the crowding. Quite a few publico drivers believe four people in a back seat is not only possible but desirable. What it really is is barely bearable. As far as I'm concerned, though, it still beats sitting in the driver's seat.

TELEVISION LOG OF THE INDEPENDENT PRESS TELEGRAM AND THE EVENING NEWS

TV celebrities— what are they really like?

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

Many newspapermen, I'm sure, have had the following experience:

After the newsmen has written an article about Joe Blow and the piece has appeared in the paper, a friend comes up to him and says: "Say, I read that story of yours about Joe Blow. Tell me, what is he really like?"

The query is not as insulting as it might seem at first. Rather, it indicates an awareness that newspapermen do not always reveal all they know about the subject of a story. Often, they leave out information that would put the person in an unfavorable light — and might lead to a libel suit.

For example, a football writer might know that a star quarterback is a homosexual, but he's not going to put it in a story. Or he may know that a 280-pound tackle occasionally slugs his 98-pound wife, but he's not going to write about it unless the wife calls police.

Washington correspondents might be aware that the wife of a cabinet member has had affairs with three Congressmen, but they won't mention names in any of their dispatches.

Anyway, you get the idea. Why, I've even been known, myself, to ask a writer what a particular athlete or politician is really like.

Therefore, I do not feel insulted when the same question is put to me. For a year now, I have been covering television and have interviewed more than 50 persons for articles in TeleVues magazine. In that time, I have been asked the question more than once.

Always, I plead lack of knowledge. After all, how much can you know about someone you've seen in person for only an hour or two? All I know is how the individual behaved during the course of the interview.

Everyone has more than one facet to his personality. As columnist Sydney Harris wrote the other day, even a Schweitzer or a Tolstoy could be ruthless in his family life.

"Are all the people you interview nice? Aren't some of them stinkers?" I have been asked.

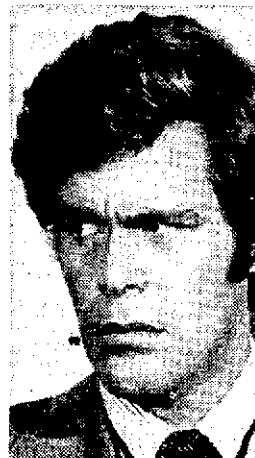

I suspect that most of us are stinkers at times and also that most of us can be reasonably charming at other times. But, to answer the question, all I can say is that all have been nice to me during the hour or two I have spent with them. Some nicer than others, to be sure, but none has displayed bad manners or made me regret doing the interview.

Doesn't it make sense that the TV performer (or producer, director, writer, newscaster, station manager or what have you) wants to make a favorable impression on the writer? If he doesn't, what reason did he have for granting the interview in the first place?

Not all stars do grant interviews, and

SANDY DUNCAN

DOUG MCCLURE

CONNIE STEVENS

LORNE GREENE

CLAUDINE LONGET

others grant them rarely and only to media with unusually large readership or viewing audience.

The stars whom I've interviewed, including all the ones whose pictures accompany this article, agreed to see me either because they personally wanted the publicity or as a favor to a network, a station, a studio or a producer who wanted them to get the publicity.

I MUST ADMIT that I have been pleasantly surprised at how cooperative 'Thicker Than Water' crosses the ocean

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer

The woman responsible for exporting "All in the Family" and "Sanford and Son" from England recently returned to these shores with a third adaptation from a British series.

Beryl Vertue's third effort is called "Thicker Than Water," and it started airing on ABC Wednesday night for the summer season.

Like its predecessors, "Thicker Than Water" is at once outrageous and ludicrous and very real. It's about an unloving brother and sister drawn together for the common cause of waiting for father to die so they can inherit his pickle factory.

It stars Julie Harris and Richard Long as the sister and brother. Malcolm Atterbury is the father, an old curmudgeon who has one funny bone in the grave but has no intention of departing.

The series was adapted from "Nearest and Dearest" as "Family" was taken from "Till Death Do Us Part" and "Sanford" from "Steptoe and Son."

IT TOOK Mrs. Vertue, a director of the Robert Stigwood Organization, six years to convince an American network to give one of her shows a try. Despite the success of "All in the Family," it didn't get any easier with the next two. "It just went quicker, but it was still difficult," she said.

Although "Family" was the first to reach the American home screen, Mrs. Vertue began by offering "Steptoe and Son." She reasoned that junkmen are found everywhere and it would give her a common starting ground.

"No one had ever done a character study in comedy here," said Mrs. Vertue, an attractive, 40ish blonde who got her start by typing scripts for the writers. "We sold the rights at auction and when we saw the pilot it was so wrong. There was no character study, no love-hate relationship between the father and son. The home was so smart and grand the son would never have felt the urge to leave."

She put it in a drawer and turned to "Till Death Do Us Part."

ON ONE OF her numerous trips to New York she met with the head of business affairs for CBS. "He started talking money," she said. "I said no, let's talk about character. He offered more money. Every time I mentioned character the money went up."

"Finally, I sat down in a room with eight CBS officials and the money kept going up. I told them it was controversial and one of them said, 'Oh, we're very used to controversy. We have the Smothers Brothers.' I laughed and said if they thought the Smothers Brothers were controversial this would give them a nervous breakdown."

Mrs. Vertue eventually said she couldn't sell a series to a building and went out looking for a creator to work on the American version. The man she found was, of course, Norman Lear, and they spent a week talking about it.

ABC financed a pilot written by Lear and, as Mrs. Vertue said, "Everyone at ABC laughed all through the screening. Then someone said, 'My word, it is controversial.' That went all around the room and we had to make a second pilot. In the end they didn't buy it."

AFTER "All in the Family" went on CBS and became a hit, Mrs. Vertue returned with "Steptoe." She said, "From the time I first offered it, six years had gone by. If nothing else, I ought to get a medal for endurance."

"Steptoe" became "Sanford and Son" on NBC, again through Norman Lear and his partner, Bud Yorkin. For "Thicker Than Water," the Stigwood Organization entered into a co-production with Bob Banner Associates.

"This is making a comedy of death," she said. "They're always talking about old Dad popping off. And Dad enters right into it. He'll ask, 'Where are you going to have the wake?' He's told the Red Sun and he says, 'I don't like the beer at the Red Sun.' Now you've removed death from it. Then the old man wants it written on his tombstone that he won a gold medal for his gherkins."

The American versions lack the sting of the English originals, but Mrs. Vertue said she feels it is important that imported shows should be adapted to local tastes and customs.

THE COMEDY TEAM of Jack Burns and Avery Schreiber, famous for their taxicab routine, will present a special at 10 p.m. Friday on ABC called "The Burns and Schreiber Comedy Hour." The special will be a preview of the comedians' summer series which will run on Saturday nights starting June 30. Oh, yes, the one with the mustache is Schreiber.

CRITICS' CORNER

Marlon Brando came out of seclusion Tuesday night to appear on ABC's "Dick Cavett Show," discuss the wrongs he feels have been inflicted on the American Indian and put up with Dick Cavett.

That the 49-year-old actor was able to have his say was an accomplishment. Cavett, normally a good interviewer, generally acted like a Hollywood reporter who specializes in such piercing queries as:

"Did you dream that 'Last Tango in Paris' would be such a bombshell, that it would explode all over the place the way it did?"

"Why do you downgrade the acting profession?"

"Were you happy with the way 'The Godfather' came out?"

THE PROBLEM was the Brando only wanted to talk about the plight of the Indian, a cause he's championed since the early 1960s. Cavett wanted to discuss other topics that clearly were of no interest to the actor.

Cavett did get off to a fair, if obvious, start by asking about Brando's refusal of an Academy Award.

That incident occurred last March when Brando refused to accept an Oscar for "The Godfather" to protest the treatment of American Indians by both Hollywood and the government.

He sent an Apache, Sacheen Littlefeather, to make his protest speech for him before a national TV audience. He told Cavett he'd probably do the same thing again, but added:

"I was embarrassed for Sacheen — she wasn't able to say what she was intending to say. And I was upset that people should boo and whistle and stomp, even though perhaps it was directed at myself."

BRANDO, unshaven, soft-spoken and clad in a denim jacket, wasn't asked why he didn't make the speech himself, nor did he tell why. In that speech, Miss Littlefeather quoted Brando as saying he would go to Wounded Knee, S.D., scene of a 71-

DICK CLARK (left, as he is today) is shown in a composite interviewing top recording stars through the years on "American Bandstand." The show's success will be celebrated with two special programs entitled "American Bandstand 20th Anniversary" on ABC (Tuesday night and Saturday). Clockwise are Clark and Bobby Rydell in 1960, Clark with Annette Funicello and Clark chatting with Johnny Mathis in 1958.

TV CELEBRITIES—WHAT ARE THEY REALLY LIKE?

and friendly they have proved to be. All, so far, have managed to hide whatever boredom they may have felt at being asked questions they undoubtedly had answered many times before.

Some of the ones who have been performing the longest have seemed the most enthusiastic. Lorne Greene was probably the most talkative of all the 50-or-so persons I've interviewed; you could get a good story out of him even without asking any questions. The veteran Buddy Ebsen, though not nearly so voluble as Greene, and a slower talker, also seemed to enjoy being interviewed.

Two of the celebrities I approached with the most uneasiness, Mike Connors and Helen Reddy, turned out to be two of the nicest to talk to. The reason for my apprehension was that I interviewed Connors on the "Mannix" sound stage between shooting takes and I saw Miss Reddy after I had been told it was difficult to set up an interview with her because she was so busy doing her new summer TV series.

All of the articles I've done for Tele-Vues have been individual interviews (no other newsmen present) and in person (no phone interviews). They have been set up through networks, stations, studios or public relations firms, and a publicist has been present on almost every occasion.

Three of the interviews have been done at the stars' homes — Sandy Duncan, Shari Lewis and Ann-Margret. Most have been conducted at lunch in various restaurants, a few in studio commissaries and a few in offices.

Perhaps it should be mentioned that I do not attempt to antagonize a person I am interviewing. If I were to adopt that technique, I soon would be without interviews. If I tried to make my subjects appear to be stinkers, the networks, studios, public relations firms and performers would cease to cooperate in setting up future interviews. I cannot get an interview simply by requesting one.

Nevertheless, I can truthfully report that none of the persons I've interviewed so far has exhibited ill temper, bad manners or even very much conceit. I have enjoyed my conversations with all of them.

But, I'll have to admit, sometimes I wonder what they're really like.

Insomniacs? Why, they never had it so good

By ASSOCIATED PRESS
Late night and perhaps eventually all night are becoming the new frontiers of television.

In the past year the networks abandoned their suicidal urge to run three talk shows head to head, making late night more competitive than ever.

In fact, the days of the traditional desk and sofa talk show may be numbered. Experimental shows and innovative concepts are changing the rules and past assumptions about late night programming.

The insomniac viewer now has a wide range of choice. And in the future it will become even greater with more programming running into the wee hours of the morning.

On NBC, the "Tonight" show with Johnny Carson is still king of the mountain. But CBS' "Late Movie" has made a considerable dent in Carson's once sizable lead and at times has overtaken him.

THE COMER is ABC's "Wide World of Entertainment," a mix of once-a-month talk shows with Dick Cavett and Jack Paar, comedy, mystery suspense, entertainment, documentaries, rock music and event specials.

Michael D. Eisner, ABC vice president for program development, said, "The success of this series boils down to the fact that on any single night ABC can win by win by scheduling a special show. That's an option we've never had before."

The key element, as Eisner sees it, is not only that "Wide World of Entertainment" is attracting new viewers to late night but that the regular viewers of other shows are not committed.

"In daytime the housewife will watch nothing but her favorite soap operas or game shows" he said. "But in late night no matter how much a viewer likes Carson he will sample the other shows first. If he sees something he likes he'll stay with that."

THE LARGELY unexplored frontier of late night programming is the time after the traditional 1 a.m. signoff. ABC extended its every other Friday "In Concert" series to 2 a.m. once and kept its viewers all the way. It will do so again in the future.

Since February NBC has been getting a good tune-in of young viewers with its "Midnight Special" from 1 a.m. to 2 a.m.

Beginning in September, NBC will offer "Tomorrow," a new one-hour talk show after "Tonight." Los Angeles newsmen Tom Snyder, noted for his wit and outspoken manner, will be the anchorman. It will run Monday through Thursday, with "The Midnight Special" continuing on Fridays.

The success of these early-hour shows has network officials rubbing their hands over the prospect of 24-hour network programming.

A YEAR AGO ABC was faced with the dismal prospect of Cavett's talk show running a perennial third. Although the astute and articulate Cavett had a loyal following, he was unable to win over new viewers. In addition, a growing number of the affiliate stations were declining to carry the show at all.

Last fall, after months of agonizing and considering every conceivable type of program, ABC decided to offer the potpourri "Wide World of Entertainment" — a title borrowed from the highly successful "Wide World of Sports."

When the series was launched in January there were some unexpected results.

Paar, host of the "Tonight" show before Carson, was expected to be the hot property. Cavett was viewed as an important factor. But the mix of other shows was an unknown quantity.

As it turned out, although Paar is drawing a larger audience than Cavett, he has not gotten the audience that ABC had hoped for. Cavett's ratings also went up.

BUT THE SURPRISE hit was mystery suspense. A few of the comedies — particularly a salute to "humble" Howard Cosell — surged past the competition. The "In Concert" shows also consistently draw large audiences, bringing in a lot of viewers 18 to 25.

In all, ABC said its audience is up 45 per cent over last fall and a number of stations that had dropped Cavett are returning.

Eisner said the "In Concert" shows and the comedies were paying off their production costs on the first run. But the videotaped mysteries, produced at a cost of about $100,000 a night, will take several years of playing to return their cost.

LIKE FATHER, LIKE SONNY — and like daughter, too, as this snap of Chastity Bono and her Dad demonstrates. And what is Chastity going to give Sonny for Father's Day today? "Same as last year," says Chastity's mother, Cher, "a rough time."

day siege involving Indian dissidents.

Brando said he didn't go because he feared if he were arrested there would be headlines that would harm the dissidents' cause. He said later that he "tried to get into Wounded Knee, but I wasn't able to. I went to Denver and I was going to meet somebody there."

"They had trouble getting out of Wounded Knee. It didn't work out."

Brando, a study in quiet passion and harsh words when discussing the plight of Indians, grew visibly annoyed when Cavett kept interjecting questions about his movies or acting philosophy.

At one point, he complained, "We have so little time to talk about Indians and there's so much to say about them that I hate to talk about movies . . . It's such a misuse of time, but then I'm your guest and I don't want to horn in on what your program is going to be about."

CAVETT, often flustered, spent the last half-hour of his show with three members of Indian tribal councils and Dr. Wallace G. Heath, director of the Lummi Indian tribe's aquaculture business in Washington state.

SOMEONE OUGHT to clue Mrs. W. G., Long Beach, that John Davidson, who hosted for Johnny Carson, is a refreshing, outgoing, appealing, artistic young man.

John Davidson was not offensive in conduct, in fact, his frank embracing of people, his remarks were centered on one thing — life as it is. This young man delighted me.

He sounds out love, he's sincere, he's there — John Davidson — purity in action — in the open.

TO RICK DU BROW: Sir, how did you do it? I just can't figure how, in your "Snapshots of TV Stars," you were right, in my opinion, on every star mentioned that I like and for the same reasons.

I am 76 and an old theatergoer as far back as Orpheum and Pantages days, so maybe I do have some reason to know the difference between right and wrong in the theatrical business from the spectators' point of view.

I don't always agree with everything the critics say, but you rang the bell this time. I do hope the TV bigwigs read your article, and don't forget a word of it.

I HAVE ENJOYED watching each and every scheduled Watergate Investigation program. Now, I am leaving on June 7 for a trip to Europe and return July 1.

Would it be possible to rerun the June (Watergate) programs in July, for the benefit of many others who will also be on vacation in June? Sure hope so.

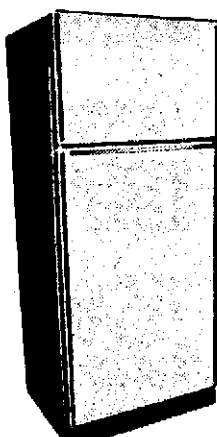

They have been very interesting and informative to watch and get the information firsthand, so hope some network can see fit to have the rerun.

SPORTS TODAY

BASEBALL (11), 11:10 A.M. — Dodgers travel to Montreal for game with Expos. Vin Scully and Jerry Doggett furnish play by play.

SPORTS SPECTACULAR (2), Noon — A galaxy of world record holders and Olympic competitors vie in the National AAU Men's Outdoor Track and Field Championships. The meet is being held at Bakersfield Memorial Stadium.

U.S. OPEN GOLF (7), 12:30 P.M. — The cream of American golfdom competes for $30,000 first place money in one of the four most sought-after golf crowns. It's played on Oakmont (Pa.) Country Club, regarded as one of the most treacherous courses in the world; it has 187 traps.

CBS TENNIS CLASSIC (2), 1:30 P.M. — Marty Riessen and Cliff Richey, two highly-seeded American players, meet in the first round of this special meet. Pat Summerall is commentator for the match, played at Sea Pines Plantation, Hilton Head, S.C.

NFL ACTION '73 (5), 2:30 P.M. — "The Perfect Season" takes you through the Miami Dolphins and their unbelievable 17 wins over a 17-game season. Larry Csonka, Jim Kiick, Mercury Morris, Bob Griese and the rest of the incredible team are featured in this action show. There's plenty of footage on the decisive thumping administered to the Washington Redskins.

SPECIAL

THE WATERGATE YEAR (2), 6 p.m. — CBS thought enough of this exhaustive, hour-long examination of the burglary of Democratic headquarters by elements of President Nixon's re-election committee to schedule it early enough for the majority of the public to see. The broadcast comes a year to the day after the arrest of the Republican burglary team. Dan Rather will anchor the program with Dan Schorr, Bruce Morton, Fred Graham and Marvin Kalb aiding in the reporting.

THE FAMILY SCENE IN AMERICA (4), 10 P.M. — Martin Landau and Barbara Bain host a study of family life-styles across the nation, viewing groups in Louisiana, Iowa, Los Angeles, Chicago, New Haven, Conn., and East Orange, N.J. Sociologists and psychologists offer commentary.

CHARM OF DYNAMITE (28), 10 P.M. — Movie historian Kevin Brownlow filmed this profile of French moviemaker Abel Gance, the man who developed the wide-angle lens and three-screen projection. You'll see excerpts from three Gance films — "J'accuse!" "La Roue" and "Napoleon."

- prove the innocence of a wealthy woman charged with murder.

SPECIAL
NBC Reports (4), 10 p.m. — "The Sins of the Fathers" focuses on a problem that might not mean much in American but constitutes a crisis in Vietnam — children born to Vietnamese mothers but fathered by U.S. servicemen. Many have already been abandoned by their mothers because of the stigma attached to their mixed blood; their lot is a lonely existence as beggars in the streets of Saigon and other cities. The program zeroes in on the apathy of the Vietnamese government — and its official American counterpart in Saigon — toward these countless victims of the war.
AMERICAN Bandstand (7), 11:30 p.m. — This special, 20th anniversary salute to the Dick Clark era includes 90 minutes of nostalgia with hits of yesteryear scheduled. Paul Anka, Frankie Avalon, Bobby Darin, Neil Diamond, Fabian, Annette Funicello, Johnny Mathis will all be caught in the act while in-person guests include Little Richard, Paul Revere and Three Dog Night (who will do their new hit, "Shambala").

JOEY BISHOP will be substitute host on the Johnny Carson show Monday through June 29 (11:30 p.m., Ch. 4).

The BIBLE Says

Question: When should people be baptized?

In the time of the apostles people were baptized as soon as they believed the Gospel, confessed their faith, and repented of their sins. There was NO DELIBERATE DELAY. They did not wait to be baptized on their birthday, at a convention, or on some other "special day," but they were baptized as soon as possible. It should be that way today.

The first converts, on the day of Pentecost, were baptized on the SAME DAY they heard, and believed the Gospel (Acts 2:36-41). The Ethiopian who listened to Philip preach Jesus, saw sufficient water to be baptized in, as they passed by in a chariot, and inquired, "See, here is water; what doth hinder me to be baptized?" (Acts 8:36). As soon as the Ethiopian confessed his faith in Christ, the Bible says, "he commanded the chariot to stand still; and they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he baptized him" (Acts 8:38). The Philippian jailer who baptized "the same hour of the night" that he and his household believed on Christ, which was about midnight (Acts 16:30-33 cf. v.25). There is no record in the Bible of any deliberate delay before baptism, once the hearer believed the Gospel, and repented of his sins.

The reason why such delay is not only unwise, but positively foolish, is because baptism is an element of conversion, and a prerequisite for forgiveness. Contrary to the creeds of most denominational churches, the Bible says baptism is "for the remission of sins" (Acts 2:38), and precedes the washing away of sins (Acts 22:16). Peter actually says, "baptism doth also now save us" (1 Pet. 3:21). People should not delay obeying either Christ's command to repent, or His command to be baptized. Both are conditions of salvation, and to delay either command is to leave the soul in sin.

Cartoonists look at the age of TV

By RICK DU BROW

United Press International

The football player, speaking to a television sportscaster as a cameraman records the scene, says:

"Yes, Pete, I would have to say that this is the first game in which our defensive line achieved something near its potential. Heretofore, we had been filled with self-doubt, anxiety, fear and trembling, and the sickness unto death."

These delightfully droll comments are the caption of a cartoon from the New Yorker magazine, which has offered some particularly incisive and charming cartoons concerning television over the years.

A number of these have been gathered into a booklet that a magazine spokesman says has been directed at "agency people and the like," and here are some of the other choice bits of humor included:

There is the cartoon that shows the front of a home, and on the lawn is a sign that says: "The Smiths and their color TV live here."

IN ANOTHER cartoon, a woman is speaking to a police sergeant who is sitting at a desk that bears the sign "Missing Persons," and she says: "I don't know when he disappeared. I just happened to notice that his chair in front of the TV was empty."

Then there is the old lady in a bathrobe standing in front of a television set that has a blank screen. With her and raised in a small wave to the set, she says: "Night-night. See you in the morning."

In one cartoon, a family — father, mother and son — visiting a museum is looking at a display of a stone age family that is sitting around a fire, and the father says: "You know, when you come to think of it, all they really lack is a television set."

In another, a couple is watching television, and the woman says: "I'll tell you one thing. When I sent my twenty-five dollars in, I didn't bargain for 'The Last of the Mohicans.'"

There is also the jazzily dressed woman standing in a jazzily furnished home, drink in hand, as the video screen shows the words "Need money?" Turned toward another part of the home, she says: "Ralph! Do we need money?"

OTHER CARTOONS in the New Yorker booklet include these:

— A father arriving home is hanging up his hat, and as he is doing this one of the children gathered in front of the television set looks over at him and says: "Yes, it's daddy — live and in color."

— A couple getting up in years is sitting in front of the video set, the woman on the man's lap. Both are holding drinks, she has a rose in her teeth, and he is on the phone, saying: "We're watching an old Pola Negri picture."

— A baseball umpire leaps well off the ground and gestures dramatically as he makes an "Out" call and a player tells him: "This game isn't being televised, O'Malley. A simple 'out' would have sufficed."

— A man sitting before his television set on New Year's Eve raises his drink in a salute as the screen shows a "Happy New Year" sign about revelers. He says: "And a happy New Year to you old tube."

JULIE CHRISTIE plays the title role of an impetuous, unpredictable young married woman in "Petulia," Thursday night movie on CBS.

SPECIAL

BURNS and Schreiber (7), 10 p.m. — This is a preview of a regular summer show which starts June 30. Subtle humor is their forte, laced with pointed comment on society. Ike and Tina Turner's Revue headlines the guest list.

IN CONCERT (7), 11:30 p.m. — You can tell a true rock fan. He (or she) will stay up to watch this show and the one that follows. Jim Croce, the Edgar Winters Group, War and the Doobie Brothers headline this one.

MIDNIGHT Special (4), 1 a.m. — With irrefutable logic, NBC starts its Midnight Special at 1 a.m. Wolfman Jack will be introducing Wilson Pickett, the Steve Miller Band, John Kay, Jimmie Speeris, Maxine Weldon and the muledeer and moondogg Medicine Show.

Watergate hearings boost public TV

By JAY SHARBUTT
NEW YORK (AP) — Public television's gavel-to-gavel broadcasts of the Watergate hearings may be a boon for local stations. But they're causing a financial pinch for the outfit actually covering the hearings — the National Public Affairs Center for Television.

"The irony of the whole thing is that the fantastic success of the Watergate hearings on television is going to hurt NPACT considerably," says James Karayn, president of the organization.

He says a search for additional money is under way and "we'll take it from anybody. We'll even take it from the Committee for the Re-election of the President."

Center officials say it costs the center about $12,000 each day to televise the hearings live and to tape them for rebroadcast at night.

THEY SAY the coverage has produced a tremendous viewer response — more than 70,000 letters, most of them approving — but it also has cut sharply into the center's budget for its own programming.

They say there's just enough money in the till to continue the coverage through June. After that, they'll have to dip into funds they otherwise would use for series or special events programs next fall.

They say that money would come from $800,000 the Corporation for Public Broadcasting has promised the center for the fiscal year starting

July 1, as well as from $1.5 million they hope to get from the Ford Foundation.

Karayn says that, without additional funds, the center will have to cancel one of four series it has planned for next fall.

His organization produces the coverage of the hearings for the Public Broadcasting Service but cannot seek public donations for itself.

ITS VIDEOTAPE of each day's hearings, complete with summaries and support-your-local-station appeals, is broadcast at night over the "interconnection" linking the 234 public television stations served by PBS.

PBS officials say the evening broadcasts are shown on an average of 90 per cent of those stations. And scores of them use the pauses in the center's hearing coverage to ask viewers for donations.

As of Monday, the response — either by phone-in pledges or contributions by mail — had netted WNET here $45,000 in cash since the May 17 start of the hearings, according to station officials.

PBS, which like the center says viewer reaction to coverage of the hearings has been excellent, says it has no figures on how much cash viewers have sent in throughout the United States, Karayn estimates it at $750,000.

CENTER OFFICIALS say despite their money problems they'll continue covering the Watergate hearings to the end. But they hope for additional funds — possibly from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting — that will let them avoid cutbacks in their own programs for the fall TV season.

THE BEE GEES, popular performers and composers, will host their second "The Midnight Special" on NBC Friday night, after the Johnny Carson show.

For the People Concerned About the Artificial Additives in Ordinary Ice Cream

Gilbert H. Brockmeyer explains some interesting things about Natural Ice Cream

What is the Importance of a Natural Ice Cream?

You may have been eating ice cream for years and never tasted real ice cream. Only artificial flavorings loaded with refined sugars that man puts in to overwhelm our sense of taste — My Natural Ice Cream lets you taste the sweet goodness of fresh milk, fresh cream, pure vanilla, natural flavorings. There are no artificially added flavorings, no synthetic colors, no chemicals. Mine is a great unhurried Natural Ice Cream that tastes more real because nature took its own sweet time to make it. You taste natural goodness because there is goodness to taste.

The Difference in Taste Between Artificial Flavors and Natural Flavorings

I grew up when nobody tried to hurry nature, when fruits and greens brimmed with nature's sweetness. My Natural Ice Cream has the same taste of the past. My Vanilla ice cream is made from real vanilla beans. There is no synthetic Vanillin added as in most ordinary ice creams. My Coconut-Pineapple is unsweetened shredded real coconut and every spoonful rich in fresh pineapple. My Raspberry ice cream has that field-fresh taste because I try to make every quart at least one-sixth raspberries. The flavors are more invitingly fresh, more delicately rich, more real than ordinary artificial ice cream flavorings.

LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA

Why I Make Carob Ice Cream Instead of Chocolate Ice Cream

Carob is nature's chocolate. The carob bean is native to countries on the Mediterranean Sea. And crushed carob is rich in potassium, calcium and phosphorous acid. It has a gentler chocolate-y flavor that many people prefer and carob can be eaten by people who for one reason or another cannot tolerate chocolate.

Why I Use Pure Honey In My Natural Ice Cream

My Natural Ice Cream is sweetened with pure honey. It is a far more healthy and nutritious food than refined sugar. In processing refined sugar, man strips away almost all of the nutritive value nature gave to raw sugar. Refined sugar calories are empty calories. I use honey as a delicate flavoring and sweetener because besides having easily assimilated natural sugars, it also gives you all the vitamins, minerals and nutrients that nature placed there. You will find there is no rich sugared-up taste in Natural Ice Cream.

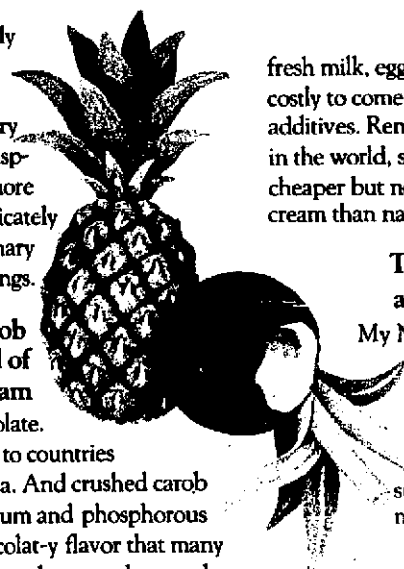

Why Natural Ice Cream is a More Expensive Ice Cream

My Natural Ice Cream costs more because all the fresh natural ingredients, the fresh cream, fresh milk, egg yolks, pure flavorings are more costly to come by than synthetic flavors and additives. Remember, no matter what is made in the world, someone can always make it cheaper but nobody can make a better ice cream than nature.

A Ham Montagu on rye

This nation owes a huge debt to one John Montagu (1718-1792), both political and cultural. I hope the people in charge of the Bicentennial celebration are planning to acknowledge it.

To begin with, Montagu, the fourth Earl of Sandwich, was head of the British Admiralty during the American Revolution. He was corrupt, stupid and incompetent. Under his guidance the British Navy lost command of the seas, and our French allies were able to send troops to America and to prevent the sea rescue of Cornwallis at Yorktown, thus insuring British defeat.

His crude tactics of securing seamen for his Navy by wholesale impressment aroused wide resentment of the war among the British public.

But that is the least of his contribution to America. Lord Sandwich invented the sandwich. It remained for us Americans only to glorify it.

The gaming clubs of St. James Street in London in the days of Lord Sandwich were a lot like Las Vegas was to be 200 years later. No clocks, not even hour glasses. Continuous action. To satiate his hunger without interrupting his gambling, Lord Sandwich devised the idea of having a servant put a slice of meat between two slices of bread which he could eat with one hand without leaving the game table.

It was crude, but it was unmistakably a sandwich. You've come a long way, baby.

The English never did do much with the sandwich except figure out ways to make it with water cress, cream cheese and other inedibles. The Scandinavians corrupted it into the open-faced sandwich which really is not a sandwich at all. Nobody else did much with it except the Americans.

The sandwich, I submit, is the national American dish. Oh, there are other specialties peculiarly American — steak and potatoes, Boston beans, Virginia ham, Louisiana gumbo, soul food, fried chicken, apple pie. But nothing enjoys such popularity and is made so uniformly from coast to coast and border to border as the sandwich in all its various manifestations — hamburger, hotdog, bacon and tomato, ham, beef, etc., etc.

The sandwich and the American way of life were truly made for one another. In a Mediterranean country, one can eat a heavy lunch and take a siesta for two hours to digest it. With only an hour, or maybe just a half-hour, one grabs a sandwich. The English and French dine late and heavily. Americans are more apt to eat a sandwich between work and the theater, or a P.T.A. meeting.

A good sandwich shop is as much to be cherished as a good French or Italian restaurant specializing in haute cuisine.

Unfortunately, there are lots of bad ones: Places that use stale bread and try to cover it by toasting every sandwich to a crisp. Places that think stale bread and dry, stringy meat can be redeemed by lots and lots of mayonnaise or soggy wedges of tomato held in place by a toothpick.

But there are hordes of good sandwich shops, too, in the Long Beach area. Anaheim Street and Belmont Shore seem particularly well blessed. There are a dozen or so places on Anaheim that make a hamburger as good as any in the world. Cirivello's offers you great sandwiches in the atmosphere of an Italian family trattoria. A Joe Jost special washed down with a fishbowl of beer can be worked off with a game of pool.

It used to be that sandwich shops were invariably brightly-lit and non-alcoholic. Perhaps they were trying to live down the rakish reputation given the sandwich by its dissolute inventor. At any rate, if you wanted a drink before a meal you went to a regular restaurant where you had to choose your food from an elaborate and expensive menu.

No more. In recent years a number of restaurants have appeared that feature atmosphere, low lights and cocktails plus a menu of modestly priced sandwiches. It is this formula that has people standing in line for tables at Hof's Marina on Second Street at lunch time. The Jolly Roger restaurants have proliferated throughout Southern California by following the same idea.

One of them on Pacific Coast Highway overlooks Newport Bay. A drink and dinner here lets one gaze out over the water to the sunset and rub elbows with the yachting crowd while running up only a modest tab.

Matter of fact, the popularity of these cocktail-and-sandwich restaurants in the various marinas leaves you with the feeling that after the yachters get through paying the upkeep on their boats they don't have much money left over for booze and board.

Q: We noticed, watching the pro-am portion of Bob Hope's latest televised Pebble Beach golf classic, that the pros, as well as the celebrities, looked like they were competing in a fashion show. Could you describe their attire? — Mr. and Mrs. T. Osborne, St. Louise.

A: Host Hope bobbed up in Glen plaid slacks with shoes to match. Sinatra wore houndstooth and Dean Martin authentic tartan slacks with high V-neck pullovers. Among the pros, Doug Sanders flashed a Madras-type pair of slacks with a cardigan sweater, while Jack Nicklaus let the desert breeze gently fan his windowpane flares. Arnie Palmer's slacks were solid, just like the game he played to win the event.

Q: How does Edgar Bergen feel about the fame of his daughter, Candy Bergen? Any professional jealousy? — S. Robertson, Pittsburgh.

A: "Candice," notes the noted ventriloquist, "used to be known as my daughter. Now I'm known as her father. But things aren't really bad. I still get billing above Charlie McCarthy."

Q: What year was Mack The Knife recorded by Louis Armstrong? And wasn't he the first to record it? — B. Corbin, Red Oak, Iowa.

A: Satchmo wasn't. It was introduced by Scott Merrill as one of the leading hits of the Kurt Weill version of Three Penny Opera at the Lys Theatre off Broadway in 1954. The big hit in 1956 was Dick Hyman's recording from MGM, Theme from the Three Penny Opera. Louis Armstrong recorded his version in a hit Columbia record in 1957. And Bobby Darin became an overnight star when he waxed Mack The Knife for Atco two years later.

Q: Isn't Doris Day fed up by now with all you columnists printing that wisecrack (always attributed to a different "wit"): "I knew Doris Day before she was a virgin"? — Mrs. L. Tyson, Philadelphia.

A: Miss Day conceded she's been bugged with such an image. She "confided" to Harry Harris, "It's true I don't play prostitutes on the screen or someone mad at the world. I just don't have that kind of personality. However, the idea that I always played pristine characters is not true... I had quarrels with James Cagney and knockdown, dragout battles with Jim Garner. And I was married more in the movies than any other movie star... I don't think you have to lower standards to be what we call 'now.'" Asked if she ever attended an X-rated film, Miss Day said, "Once I know what they're about I'm not interested. It's not only sex. I don't like the violence."

Q: I'm learning to ride a horse and would like to know why we always have to get on and off from the left side? — Melinda B., Des Moines, Iowa.

Country doctor fights the Big Farmers

Story and photos by Ehud Yonay

He could have come out of an early Capra movie — Jimmy Stewart may have been better for the part, — except that Hollywood never made movies about short, aging Jewish heroes with thinning hair, a Brooklyn accent and the argumentative enthusiasm of Talmudic scholars or Lower East Side street vendors.

Furthermore, Hollywood's Celluloid crusaders always had to consider their crusades with utmost gravity and dedication, unlike Dr. Ben Yellen, who sleeps on a cot at the back of his small clinic by the railroad tracks in Brawley and treats poor black and Chicano residents for $5 a visit. He talks about his on-going battle with the big farmers of the Imperial Valley the way other people discuss bowling scores or extramarital affairs, with an all-knowing, conspiratorial smile.

At times, it seems that the big farmers around here hate his guts less for what he may do to them if he wins his case at the U.S. Court of Appeals, than for the fact that he enjoys it hugely.

If he wins his case, they may all find themselves suddenly out of business. This is how serious his game is. And while they are fighting him on every turn, with a $600,000 legal budget and a battery of local and national politicians on their side, Dr. Yellen walks the narrow streets of this sleepy farming community these days with the assured cockiness of a gunfighter bent upon cleaning up the town. A small-framed, slightly limping Jewish Wyatt Earp, armed only with modest resources, an abundant amount of chutzpah and a law.

In this rich farming region, land and water are the name of the game. According to Dr. Yellen, the big farmers have been getting both illegally for years. He points out that according to the U.S. Reclamation Act of 1902, water from federal projects cannot be used by farmers who own more than 160 acres of land per family member or live away from their land.

Since over half of the land in Imperial Valley is owned by absentee investors and most of it is farmed by large farmers or huge conglomerates, the enforcement of these provisions could spell nothing less than a total upheaval of the farming structure here. This is exactly what Dr. Yellen wants.

He likes to quote President Theodore Roosevelt, who said that the purpose of the reclamation act was "to build up the little man of the West so that no man from the East or West can come in and get a monopoly on the land or the water."

Dr. Yellen likes to think of himself as a rural Ralph Nader, championing the cause of the small farmer. He says that over 1,600 small farmers were pushed out of the valley in recent years by large agricultural operators. The big farmers, on the other hand, like to portray him as an eccentric who has too much power and is out to destroy them out of a personal grudge that goes a long way back. They also say that his campaign against them is unfair because he has a lot less to lose than they do.

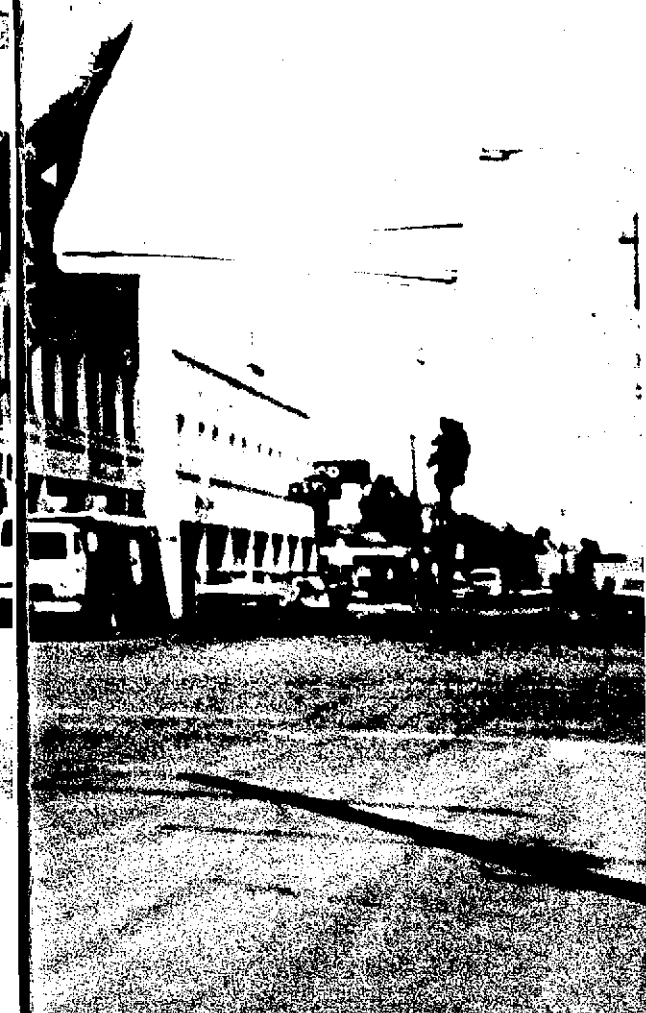

Shrouded by a permanent desert haze, broiled by shimmering heat waves and dusty winds that give man and cactus alike a leathery, sand-blasted appearance, the Imperial Valley is not the sort of place where riches come easily.

At the turn of the century, land speculators diverted the Colorado River westward and brought its water to the valley via a 100-mile long, primitive canal. They made a killing by selling land and water rights to land-starved farmers and other speculators. But they backed out of the picture when one year the river silted its own natural course and charged through the canal toward the valley, flooding everything in sight for two years and created the Salton Sea in the primordial desert sink.

In the 30s, the Bureau of Reclamation of the U.S. Interior Department stepped in, at the request of many resident land owners, and made the water supply more reliable and ample by building Hoover Dam and the All-American Canal.

Under irrigation, the seemingly inert desert responded miraculously, producing record yields in a year-round fertility cycle, uninterrupted by rains, snows or frosts. With warm, troublefree winters, the valley became a virtual greenhouse for the nation, producing lettuce, grapes, beets and hay in a season when most of the nation wallows in the mud.

With the residency and the 160-acre limitations of the reclamation act all but forgotten, and with an agricultural production of $300 million a year — which makes Imperial County the fourth county in the nation — the faded land has become a vast playing pen for the nation's corporate giants. The list of players could have been copied from Fortune's who's who — Purex, Tenneco, Southern Pacific,

Dr. Ben Yellen, the physician who is the self-declared champion of the little farmer in the Imperial Valley, has a fist full of the mimeographed sheets he uses to disseminate his ideas.

BRAWLEY

The battle in the Imperial Valley involves two things — land and water.

Kaiser Aluminum, United Fruit Co. Those who don't own land here rent or lease it, just so they can sit in on the high stakes game of agricultural production, subsidies, rising prices and growing monopolies.

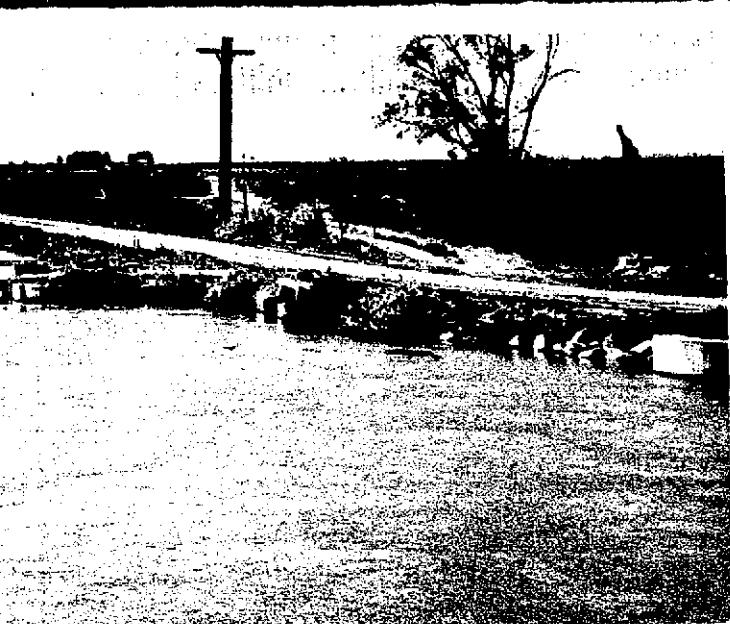

It is the sort of game where the big ones are getting bigger and the small ones leave. The valley is dotted with deserted white shacks amidst the vast fields and with small ghost towns, their stucco buildings now crumbling along the highways after most of their population moved away.

The players are the giants of their kind, superoperators for whom temporary setbacks usually mean nothing less than a hurricane or a stock market collapse. But now they have to cope with a lone, driven country doctor and they are not doing too well.

"Afraid of him? Well, I am certainly concerned enough to agree to talk to you and give you an hour of my time," says Stephen Elmore, a big farmer who now speaks for Imperial Resources Associates, an umbrella organization of large absentee and local landowners in the valley. "We don't think that the residency and land excess laws apply to Imperial Valley. We were here before the All-American Canal came in and had prior water rights. The reclamation act was never meant to apply here. Cutting our water supply will amount to a confiscation of private property because without the water the land has no value."

Back in his small, cluttered, shabby clinic, Dr. Yellen seizes upon the farmers' arguments with the zeal and delight of a rabbi tackling a difficult Talmud page. "Sure they had Colorado River water here before the government built the canal, but the river brought them water in the spring and early summer only and then stopped until the next floods. Hoover Dam is what made the water supply steady. With this water, they can now have two or three crops a year.

"Did they also tell you that a small farmer cannot make it anymore? This is their steady argument. They say that a small farmer cannot afford to buy all the expensive machinery needed today. But they don't tell you that even the big farmers don't own their machines. They just bring in contractors to do the work for them." (The big farmers stopped bringing up this argument lately. In an interview, Stephen Elmore refused to say how much land a farmer needs to support a family in this region.)

"The only reason a small farmer cannot make it here anymore is that the big farmers control cotton allotments in the valley and the small farmer cannot get any," he adds. "The big farmers get hundreds of thousands of dollars in cotton allotments and then they also get payments for not growing cotton on the rest of their land. Without allotments or subsidies, the small farmer can grow only alfalfa or beets and there is not that much money in it."

While admitting that he started his campaign as a vendetta against the big farmers, Dr. Yellen says that only after he began to fight he realized the bigger issues involved.

"Imperial Valley has a greater agricultural production than 12 states. It is the only place outside Texas that is good for winter crops and it brings in a profit of $50-60 million a year. So the question is, who is going to get this money, especially since the government paid for the water project that made it all possible," he says as he wolfs down a plateful of tacos at a small Mexican cafe at the edge of town.

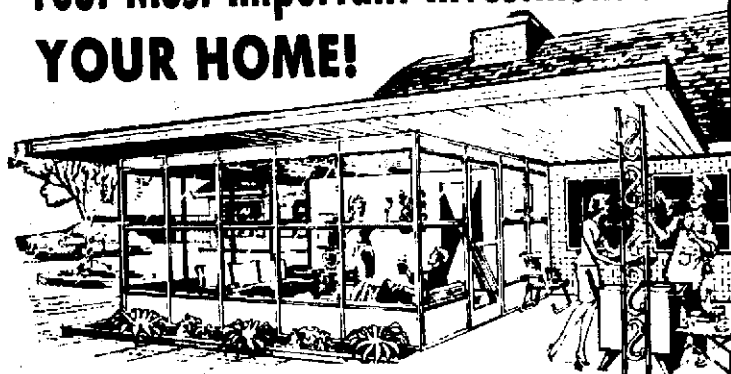

"What you have here is large absentee landowners and corporations making all that money and taking it out of the valley. I call it intracolonialism. They are ruining the life and economy of the valley just like those big companies that used to take raw materials out of undeveloped countries and left them poor and backward."

While the big farmers say that he has no right to meddle in their business since he owns no land and has no interest in farming, Dr. Yellen says that there are many small farmers and businessmen who support him but are afraid to antagonize the big farmers. Once, he said, a small farmer started to help him distribute his leaflets but, suddenly, grain buyers stopped coming to his farm for his crop. When Dr. Yellen heard about it he told him to stop helping. As soon as the farmer stopped, the buyers showed up again.

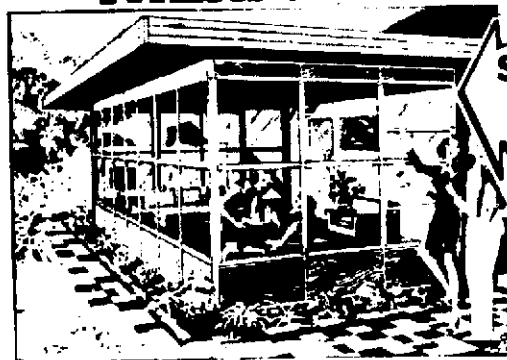

"This is farming country," says Lewis Bacon of the Brawley Chamber of Commerce. "When the farmers hurt, everybody around here hurts."

It is this very domination by the big farmers

in Imperial Valley that Dr. Yellen is challenging. He has been doing it almost since he came here from New York in 1942 after graduating from the Long Island College of Medicine. He started fighting the big farmers when they helped pass a law allowing them to bring in cheap Mexican labor from across the border. When Dr. Yellen protested that the farmers were driving resident laborers out of the area and exploiting the Mexicans, a boycott was started against him. When he kept up his charges and encouraged Mexican workers to sue their employers in local courts for law violations, his business suddenly dropped more than 50 per cent and on several occasions he was beaten up by local people.

Since local newspapers ignored his plight, he bought a mimeograph machine and began printing his story on yellow sheets of crude stock, which he then distributed himself throughout the town. One room in his clinic is full of stacks of these yellow pamphlets. A writer once compared him to Thomas Paine, the battling pep-writer of the American Revolution.

In 1961, while searching for a way to get back at the farmers for ruining his practice, he heard of the reclamation act. From then on everything was simple. He became acquainted with Prof. Paul S. Taylor of Berkeley, a world authority on land and water who for many years has been trying to have the reclamation law enforced. Armed with ample data and background information, he took the farmers to court.

Actually, the battle over the water in Imperial Valley dates back to 1933 when Congress was about to approve the construction of the All-American Canal. During the last days of the Hoover Administration, the outgoing Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur issued an opinion that the 160-acre limitation did not apply to Imperial Valley. This opinion is the main argument cited today by the farmers in their opposition to the enforcement of that rule, although in 1945 the Interior Department ruled that the Coachella Valley, which is served by the same canal, is not exempt from the excess-land provision.

In 1964 the Department of the Interior changed its position on Imperial Valley and attempted to enforce the land excess rule through the courts. In 1971 a U.S. District Court judge ruled against the government. This was where Dr. Yellen came in. He urged the Interior Department and then the Justice Department to press their case in a higher court. When they failed to do so, he appealed the case himself.

He was undoubtedly encouraged by the fact that, only a few months earlier, in December 1971, he won his own case against the Interior Department when another district judge ruled that the residency rule did apply to Imperial Valley. Both cases are now before the Ninth Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals in San Francisco, with no date set for either. Dr. Yellen is trying to combine them into one case, in the hope that the residency issue will carry his case. The farmers oppose such a consolidation on the same grounds.

Dr. Yellen's courtroom victory gained him valuable allies. For the first time in his long legal campaign, which he financed himself, he received help, in the form of $4,000 from the National Farmers Union, Environmental Defense League, AFL-CIO, National Audubon Society and the Sierra Club. His growing prominence has resulted in other tangible benefits. He is no longer afraid of physical violence. "They wouldn't dare touch me now," he says with a broad smile, as he inserts a leaflet under the windshield wiper of a car parked in front of his clinic.

After more than 30 years here, Dr. Yellen is still an outsider in this farming county. He never bothered to buy a home here and lives in the back of his clinic. His Brooklyn accent is as pronounced as it was when he left New York and he has never forsaken his baggy trousers and open neck white shirt for the plaid shirts and string ties so common here.

Small farms are being deserted in the Imperial Valley as the land has come more and more under control of giant conglomerates.

Why didn't he leave town when it was clear that everyone was against him? "I'll tell you. The climate here is just right for me. The air is so dry that even with an air conditioner I can breathe easy," he says, smiling cynically at his own inconsequential reply. "No, it is simply because I wouldn't let anyone drive me out if I didn't feel like leaving on my own."

Does he still harbor ill feelings against the big farmers for what they did to him in the past? "Not really. You can hate and seek vengeance only if you are fighting and losing. If you are winning, you don't hate anybody. You just enjoy it."

"You know, I have no family to bother with and everybody says that at my age I should have some avocation. Well, this is my avocation. I guess I am motivated by a combination of selfishness, idealism and concern for the small farmers. But to tell you the truth, I also enjoy seeing the big ones jump everytime I open my mouth."

New Scientific Computer Plan! A GREAT NEW FIGURE CAN BE YOURS, Thanks to Our Computer!

AT LAST! A DIET PLAN PROGRAMMED
JUST FOR YOU!

GET RID OF THAT UGLY FAT, BUT DO IT
THE EASY WAY!

LEARN HOW YOU CAN EAT THE FOODS
YOU LOVE, AND STILL LOSE 10, 20, 50,
EVEN 100 POUNDS OR MORE, AND LOSE THEM FOR GOOD!

"I've tried all the popular diets -- they just don't work for me."

If this is your lament, read on! The reason these diets don't work for you is because they weren't designed for you, but rather for the "average" person.

But no two people are alike, so why should you try to lose weight on a diet that may not be what you need at all? Now, through advanced computer technology, you can have a SPECIALIZED weight control plan designed to fit your needs, and no one else's!

Weight loss is a complex phenomena, but we have the total solution. Our team of professionals, headed by the noted Dr. M.A. Kilpatrick, biochemist, includes a physicist, dietitian, M.D., plus other computer scientists. They are standing by to give your diet plan the individual attention you need and deserve.

BUT HOW DO I KNOW WHAT I NEED?

There are many factors that must be considered when you lose weight. Exercise, age, food preference, metabolism, heredity, bone structure, and sex all play a part in your dieting needs.

For instance, a young mother with several children and a household to manage has different needs than a 60-year-old retiree who spends most of his time reading and writing. With this computerized plan you will find out just what YOU need to eat to be compatible with your other factors.

NO DIET BLAHS!

"I just can't stand diet foods. I think if I see another can of liquid diet food, I'll be sick!"

Do you have a hard time sticking with a diet, either through lack of will power, or just plain lack of interest in blah diet foods?

There's no need to give up those foods you love! Let our computer and trained specialists tackle your problem. Our dietitian will include delicious food ideas especially for you, letting you enjoy all those things you love and still get the nutrition you need while you lose weight.

YOU NEED GOOD FOOD

"Every time I go on a diet, I end up feeling tired and all dragged out!"

It could be that while you were starving yourself of calories, you were also starving yourself of nutrition, which is a dangerous game to play with your body. There's no need to sacrifice good health while losing weight -- in fact, our physicians are aware of the need for vital health-giving elements in the foods you eat. That's why our programmed menus give you the foods that you NEED the most, to make you LOSE the most. You can actually have a GREAT NEW

ORDER TODAY!

Just clip this no-risk coupon and rush it to us today! When we receive your order, we will send you by return mail our computer questionnaire, with over 150 questions which will help us determine your needs. Fill this out in the privacy of your own home, return it to us, and we will program your diet plan immediately. You can start on your new diet plan in less than two weeks later! (Your personal information will be maintained in strictest confidence.)

You know there's a great shape awaiting you ... so why wait any longer? Get started on the road to a better figure and good health today!

INEXPENSIVE!

"But I end up spending so much money when I try a new diet. Special foods, books to read, gadgets to buy ..."

To get the same type of information that our computer will program for you would cost you many dollars in a doctor's office ... and you run the risk of being prescribed amphetamines or other diet drugs which you may not even need! The entire computer program, with no hidden costs, gives you PERSONALIZED diet recommendations based upon your specific needs, and detailed information about your body chemistry, calorie intake requirements, and exercise regulations for only $6.00!

Can you believe it?

NO-RISK GUARANTEE!

"But what if I'm not satisfied?"

We feel sure you will be completely satisfied with the results of your specialized computer diet each time you look in the mirror. But if you feel the information contained in your detailed program has not helped you to your proper weight balance, we offer an UNCONDITIONAL
GUARANTEE. With this no-risk guarantee, the only thing you have to lose is that ugly fat!

HAVE YOU MADE THESE DIET MISTAKES???

1. Have you tried "fad" diets guaranteed to melt away fat, but none has melted?
2. Have you tried sticking to a straight "calorie" diet and become frustrated?
3. Have you tried diets that promised you a "new life" but you are still waiting for the action to start?
4. Have you tried eating just health foods, and starved for a juicy cheeseburger, to no avail?
5. Do you lose weight the first week of a diet, then find it impossible to take off any more?

The reasons these other methods don't work is because they are GENERALIZED diet formulas, and do not take each individual and his special needs into account. Before, only a doctor (and his high cost bills and prescriptions) could give you a personalized diet program. But now you can get personal attention and a diet plan worked out specifically for your needs, at a price anyone can afford! A completely scientific and accurate computer program can give you what you've been waiting for -- a way to lose weight that WORKS, without having to sacrifice good food, health, or money!

Beware! Work-at-home fraud

By STEVEN L. SORENSON

Mrs. K.'s husband died recently leaving her with two small children to provide for. The insurance was pitifully small and Mrs. K. was understandably worried about the future security of her little family.

Then the answer came to her in the form of an ad in her favorite ladies' magazine: "LADIES — $150 monthly for doing assembly work at home."

This was exactly what she had been looking for. Something that she could do at home while watching the children, a part-time job where she could bring in the extra cash they so desperately needed. She immediately sent a card expressing her desire to start earning. A few days later the information arrived and she anxiously tore open the letter. The offer was very exciting. The promoter advertised that with a very small investment of $200 Mrs. K. would receive a knitting machine and everything else she needed to get going.

The brochure promised that Mrs. K. would most likely earn back her investment the first month, and promised to buy every garment she knitted for $25. Mrs. K. knew she could knit five or six a month and started dreaming about the things she could do with all that money. She managed to borrow the money from a friend for the investment and sent it away to the company.

After three weeks she received her equipment, a small manual knitting machine and several spools of yarn and thread. Mrs. K. immediately got to work and knitted three sweaters the first week. She was very proud of her work and sent it to the company for them to buy as promised. Three weeks later her sweaters were returned with a form letter which read: Dear Mrs. K.: We are sorry to inform you that your work is not up to our standards. The letter encouraged her to purchase more materials and make more garments. Her spirits were somewhat dampened but she would try again. She borrowed another $20 from her friend and ordered the materials she needed. When she received them, she set to work again, being very careful this time. Although she only finished two sweaters in the next two weeks, they were very good in her estimation, and she sent them off with renewed faith.

But the same form letter was returned with her sweaters the next week, telling her that they were "not up to our standards," and urging her to try again. After much embarrassment and hardship, Mrs. K. finally learned that she had been the victim of a scheme.

The company in this instance had promised to purchase a finished product for resale. The trick being that the agreement to buy the finished product was dependent upon the work being acceptable. However, none is ever "up to standard." That is an inherent part of the scheme, to reject everything. For practical purposes, therefore, those who respond to such offers like Mrs. K. must find their own sales market. In similar schemes the demand for work is greatly exaggerated and in some it is necessary to purchase equipment and materials at greatly inflated prices with no guaranteed market.

Mrs. K. was only one of thousands of ambitious housewives who are anxious to supplement the family income, but find it impossible to hold even a part-time job because of family obligations. They are often attracted by mail, radio, newspapers, magazines and other advertisements — even in match books — offering them an opportunity to earn money by doing part-time work at home.

Better Business Bureaus receive inquiries and complaints daily from housewives, shut-ins, elderly persons and widows who have responded to what appeared to be offers of lucrative home employment in help wanted columns when the real purpose of the advertiser was to sell something. Those people who can least afford to lose their money have been shamefully exploited by such schemers.

Mrs. S., the wife of a Navy enlisted man living in Wilmington, was attracted by an advertisement in a monthly sewing magazine: WOMEN — Earn $35 per dozen sewing aprons at home. Experience unnecessary. Instructions furnished.

She was required to send $1 for information. The scheme in this offer of employment was to sell instructions and materials for items to be made at home to be sold by Mrs. S. The promoter did not disclose that it is up to the purchaser to sell these items. In the case of Mrs. S., the costs were far greater than any sales.

The one common denominator in all these spurious homework promotions is the requirement that the prospect buy something from the advertiser. That is the gimmick. The would-be employer's primary interest is the sale of goods, literature, instructions or services to the prospective home worker at a substantial profit.

Mrs. A. of Long Beach was attracted to an advertisement in a local newspaper: WOMEN wanted to address our catalogs, 3 cents each. Everything supplied. She responded to the ad and was asked to remit $5 for information and instructions which would enable her to get started. Only after making this payment did

THE SPANISH LOOK, or Mediterranean, calls up an image of richly detailed, handcarved furniture set against white walls, against a background of polished red tile floors. Where do carpets come into this picture?

Well, in such a tile-floored setting brightly colored and boldly designed area and accent rugs are part of the great tradition. The hot colors of the Mediterranean—oranges and reds and yellows, accented by cooler greens and blues—make the scene come alive. But what if you like the Mediterranean look, but you have wall-to-wall carpeting already installed? Authentic tile floors are costly and rare in this country, and it hardly pays to tear out good carpeting to install less expensive vinyl tile with an authentic Spanish look.

The answer is still the area or accent rug. Use them over existing carpets and you'll be surprised how effectively you can create the look you want. Area rugs come in the boldest possible colors, in designs straight from an artist's palette. Use them to center a furniture grouping, in front of a fireplace, in an entry, wherever your imagination suggests. They come small and large, to go over existing carpets or on bare floors. There's a choice to fit your budget!

she learn that the advertiser had no real employment to offer. The promoter merely sent Mrs. A. a list of mail order companies with the advice to write these companies offering to furnish names and addresses from telephone directories.

Miss R., an elderly woman living in Torrance, responded to an offer which stated, $80 a week — home, sparetime — easy. The advertisement was very attractive; the work sounded easy and profitable. For her $5 Miss R. received a course of instruction on renovating neckties which merely told her to cut out the soiled part of the necktie and sew the two pieces together.

In not one of hundreds of similar schemes investigated did the promoter offer work at home. He merely sold ideas. In one scheme, a directory listing work-at-home opportunities was sold for $7.50 and another, a publication on plans to make money, was sold for $1. Many of the companies recommended in this publication were frauds. One company selling a plan to set up a mail order business, sent only a list of products that it claimed could be sold by mail. Mr. and Mrs. B. of North Long Beach answered an attractive offer in a local trade journal: YOU CAN MAKE $2,200 per year raising rabbits in your yard or garage. In this and similar cases, the promoter sells breeding animals on a promise to buy back the offspring. Sometimes the promoters promise to purchase the furs or meat rather than the live animals. The breeding animals are sold at prices greatly in excess of intrinsic worth and the prices at which the promoter promises to buy back the offspring are often twice the market value. The agreement to buy back the offspring contains a phrase in a healthy and marketable condition. Practically all animals are rejected by the promoter who decides they are not in a healthy and marketable condition. Mr. and Mrs. B. invested $350 in this scheme and were sadly disappointed when the results of their efforts were rejected by the promoter.

Similar schemes extend to growing vegetables or herbs. A common example is mushrooms. Exorbitant prices are charged for the various outfits which include equipment and fertilizers. The vegetable cannot be easily grown, and its cultivation is not a simple and highly remunerative industry, as represented. A person is not ordinarily successful in the business without previous experience or technical skill. And here again, vegetables produced will be rejected as not satisfactory or not up to our standards. Mr. R. of Compton made a $100 investment in response to an ad to MAKE $4,500 in a few weeks by growing mushrooms, and was sadly disappointed when he discovered that the advertisement had been deceptive, misleading and that he had lost his investment.

music at UCLB, who reasoned he might be able to finance his education by writing songs. He sent a few of his best compositions in to the company and soon received a flattering letter, praising his songs and urging him to promptly sign and return the enclosed contract. He was asked to send along a money order for $50.

The so-called publisher easily fulfilled his obligation under this trick contract for a few dollars. He simply printed a small supply of professional copies and mailed them to a number of phonograph record companies, dealers in music, radio stations and singers — where they went directly into the wastebasket. The service for which the hopeful Larry had paid $50 in advance proved to be absolutely worthless. This scheme extends to manuscripts, poems, songs, stories and scenarios. Competent sources, according to the Better Business Bureau, state that over a long period of years, they know of no single instance of an even moderately successful song produced through the medium of an advance payment publisher or service. Of the 200,000 musical compositions which are annually copyrighted in Washington, it is reported that less than 200 achieve success and almost all of these are composed by well-known musicians. A similar situation exists in connection with scenarios. For example, the Screen Writer's Guild reports that out of more than 42,000 stories submitted to the studios in one year, only four were purchased. When you pay anyone in the hope that he will sell your scenario, you take a 10,000 to 1 chance.

There are hundreds of these earn-money-at-home schemes. They extend to addressing envelopes, operating research businesses, conducting a news clipping service and operating a mail order business. It is estimated that they take over a half-billion dollars annually from several million people who are swindled out of amounts ranging from $1 to $1,000. Victims end by losing money instead of earning it.

Many publications, newspapers and trade journals feel an obligation to their readers and refuse to carry advertisements submitted by homework promoters. However, it is often difficult to identify the nature of the scheme until it has run for some time because of false implications in help-wanted advertising that employment is offered. Often there is no indication that any cost is involved.

The executive of a Los Angeles newspaper said it is impossible to investigate the validity of each of the thousands of ads listed each month. However, an effort is made to weed out the obvious listings in help-wanted column which offer no real employment.

Therefore, any person who invests money in any advertised promotion should determine whether the specific proposition in which he is interested offers genuine employment or is a scheme to sell something. Will you be a salaried employee of the firm? If so, what is the salary? If no salary is offered, what will be the source of claimed earnings stated in the offer?

If you invest, and if you encounter fraud, report all facts to your postmaster. Also advise your Better Business Bureau. Help put these schemers out of business. □

Is Death Valley dying?

By MARION MAUK

In the late afternoon sun the great stark shapes of Death Valley buttes stand silhouetted against the ridges of the Panamints. The slanting light sharpens the accordion pleats of the eroded badlands below Zabriskie Point, accents the undulations of the sand dunes and intensifies the rare earth colors of the mounding alluvial fans at Artists' Palette.

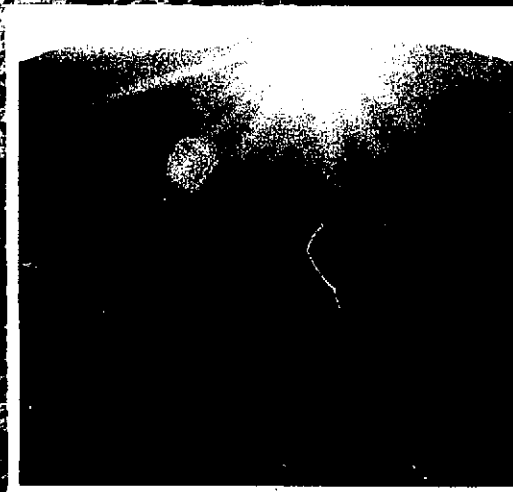

Few visitors are there to see the drama now that the summer heat has begun to bare its claws. Over half a million people visit Death Valley National Monument during the year and even in July, when the valley basin is a cauldron, some 23,000 will pass through — most of them Easterners and Midwesterners on their way from the Sierras to Las Vegas, curious about the heat of what is probably the hottest place on earth. Only a few stay overnight to catch the low sun shaping and dramatizing its singular desert beauty.

But on a Washington's Birthday weekend — or Thanksgiving or Easter — when the air at Furnace Creek is pleasantly balmy, the campgrounds are full. And the amateur photographers are out early to catch the strange, haunting beauty of the panorama at Zabriskie Point or Dante's View with its glimpse of Badwater and the snow on Telescope Peak beyond the dramatic folds of earth below.

A three-day weekend is too short to more than begin to explore the steep canyons and winding backroads to old mining towns of the 3,000-square-miles monument, and the Jeep drivers and motorcyclists start early, bouncing over steep trails too rugged for a passenger car. And some, when they come to the end of a road, just keep on going.

DEATH VALLEY

Driving off the road is illegal in the monument, and there is a pained look on the face of the monument's park naturalist Frank Ackerman as he talks of the ruts in the sparsely vegetated desert floor that will last for generations.

Off-road vehicles are but one of a number of ecological problems bothering Death Valley staff these days and, comparatively speaking, a minor one. The national monument is plagued by threats to the unique desert ecosystem it was established in 1933 to preserve.

There are land developers in Nevada with visions of irrigating up to 100,000 acres of Nevada desert with Death Valley water. Or, to be exact, water that eventually gets to Death Valley springs in the natural scheme of things. It is a proposal that conservationists and concerned scientists say not only would decimate the fish and wildlife of the eastern side of the monument but would bring an end to some of the valley's unusual geological phenomena — the salt pinnacles of the Devil's Golf Course, Badwater and the salt pools. The question of irrigating such massive amounts of acreage may never get into a final bout with monument defenders (although a study to look into the practicalities of the idea was authorized by Congress in 1969). But the battle to protect water level in the monument springs from more encroachment has ranged from the halls of Congress to a courtroom in Las Vegas.

On the western side of the monument herds of wild burros are a major ecological problem. For the past 10 years park rangers have been quietly documenting evidence of extensive burro damage to native plants that are a vital part of the "pyramid of life" in the monument's interdependent ecology. Damage already done to large sections of the 250,000 acres of the monument used by 1,500 burros would take upwards of 100 years to restore naturally, according to National Park Service estimates.

Underlying the quixotic situation in which an animal is an ecological threat in a wild area is the fact that the burro is not a native of the region. It lacks the conservationist habits of native species, of the bighorn sheep, for instance, which graze lightly in an area and then move on, giving the vegetation a chance to recoup. The bighorn can go three days without water, an ability that allows it to travel considerable distances between springs.

Death Valley is the hottest, driest spot in North America, its rainfall scant even for a desert. Despite the harsh climate, over 1,300 species of plants and animals are native inhabitants of the monument. Some of them exist nowhere else in the world. But the bal-more and more terrain — terrain available only at the expense of range used by domestic cattle and sheep for our food supply. Perhaps that's the cardinal weakness of the burro protection statute," he throws in. "No provision was made for subdividing the habitat between species. If we're to preserve free-ranging herds of burros it will be necessary to mark off areas of habitat or range and probably fence off the area. Then unless their numbers are controlled they will destroy their habitat and then they would destroy themselves by starvation. Starvation is the only control that works with an animal that is out of balance with its environment."

Death Valley's ecological problems began, of course, with the arrival of the white man. The Shoshone Indians had lived in harmony with nature in what is now the national monument for a thousand years, subsisting on mesquite beans and small game in the valley basin during the winter, retreating to the pinon nuts and game of higher altitudes during the heat of summer, leaving petroglyphs ance of life is precarious and the burro is "out of balance with his environment," as the National Park Service puts it.

Park personnel are concerned not only about plant loss and the effects on small animals dependent on those plants. They are disturbed by the trampling of mounds of burrowing animals that foster increased vegetation and retard soil erosion. And like a growing number of wildlife conservationists elsewhere, they feel the increasing burro population is reducing the numbers of scarce bighorn, whose habitat is being taken over.

Maintaining Death Valley National Monument as a natural area and a burro sanctuary simultaneously is impossible, the National Park Service staff says flatly today. "The two concepts are ecologically incompatible."

"The burros must go from Death Valley. Their presence is inappropriate to a national park," says the national monument's park naturalist Frank Ackerman. "And where they are preserved elsewhere their numbers must be continually controlled. Man must play the role of predator."

Ackerman is a tall, quiet-spoken young man with a master's degree in his field, an ecologist's view of conservation problems and a mild impatience for the views of people who "talk about reverence for life" and then want to "stop with the rabbit."

"What people fail to realize," he says, referring to animal protectionists who object to the destruction of any animal, "is that you must give the animals a home — food, water and the kind of habitat they need. Or, if you have no other alternative, you must kill some of them off. For the individual animal that sounds tragic and cruel, but for the species as a whole it would be far more tragic not to do it."

In the long run he sees no other alternative, no matter how difficult total protectionists may make the decision in the near future.

The burro "has never had a predator-prey relationship in North America," he points out. "If its population is uncontrolled it will need on canyon walls whose meanings are still a mystery.

"A THIRD GENERATION CONSTRUCTION FAMILY"

There had been three earlier Indian cultures in the valley, the first some 7,000 years ago before the lakes of the region had dried up.

The first white people to see Death Valley — a group of goldseekers — came over the mountains from Nevada on Christmas Day 1849 and gave it its name. Food running low, fearful of starvation, they faced the desolate valley basin laced with miles of salt pan, the seemingly barren Panamint Mountains beyond, and panicked, splitting up into several groups. As the last weary group, after weeks of hardships, made its way up the Panamints, one woman, turning for a last look, said bitterly, "Goodby, Death Valley," and the name stuck.

Many of the other names in the valley go back to this first group as did the region's early reputation as the place to mine a fortune. A chunk of silver ore picked up by one of the first goldseekers sparked the earliest of Death Valley's fabulous legends, and in 1850 the first wave of mining prospectors poured into the basin.

A sizeable strike of silver chloride in 1873 in the mountains west of the monument at what became Panamint City began the 50 years of what is called the region's boom-and-bust period when it is said more money was poured into the ground than was taken out of it. At the turn of the century a gold strike near the north end of the valley, on the Nevada side, started the city of Rhyolite, which grew to a population of 7,000 and within five years died.

While it lived, a stock exchange, a three-story hotel, a bank, two churches and two railway depots, plus the usual mining town bars and dance halls, lined its central streets. A restored bottle house sells desert glass and curios. Only the concrete and stone ruins of its more imposing buildings, their skeletons but sketches of the original structures, hint at the boomtown dreams of the past. Smaller mining towns nearby have long since passed away. As has Greenwater, "the greatest copper camp on earth," eventually tagged "the monumental mining stock swindle of the century." And Harrisburg, Chloride City and Skidoo.

Borax - white gold of the desert

It was an unlikely substance — borax, "the white gold of the desert" — that brought Death Valley mining its greatest success. Discovered in 1880, it was mined profitably for many years, despite the superhuman efforts needed in early years to get the stuff out of the valley to the nearest railroad at Mojave. One hundred and 65 miles over a hot valley floor, up the steep trails of the Panamints and across more hot desert, 20-mule teams (or 18 mules with two horses in the lead) pulled giant wagons of borax and water, loads totalling more than 36 tons, taking 10 to 12 days for a one-way trip.

The early miners brought with them the burros, hardy little pack animals with an ability to nose out desert springs and withstand the desert heat.

And sometime in the 1920s someone brought the first tamarisk, a Mediterranean desert tree, which thrives in a great stand around Furnace Creek Ranch today, spreads its seeds widely on the strong desert winds and, wherever it grows, eventually consumes all the surface water, drying up open pools formerly available to valley mammals and migratory waterfowl. A large tree uses 200 gallons or more a day.

In 1971, in an effort to restore to wildlife some of the water sources previously available, the monument staff began removing tamarisk trees from around springs.

It was not until the late 60s that irrigation of the Nevada desert became an ecological threat to the national monument.

It began when a large-scale agricultural corporation started constructing irrigation facilities in the Ash Meadows area. Springs were destroyed or drastically altered. Pumps were installed, and as pumping began for new alfalfa fields, the underground water table began to lower. So did the water level in Devil's Hole Spring, the central point of interest of a 40-acre section of the national monument.

The primary concern of scientists and conservationists, who were upset by these developments, was for the survival of unique species of desert fishes, whose secrets of existence and evolutionary science have yet to unravel. Tiny, colorful pupfish that dart about in hot springs, flip-flop from puddle to puddle in shallow, salty marshes, frolic in water up to 111 degrees, some hibernating in mud in freezing weather.

Besides possessing some remarkable talents, which include an ability to tolerate great variations of temperature and water considerably saltier than sea water, the pupfish are said to represent one of the most striking examples of evolutionary change now to be found on the planet. Had Darwin not been led to his theory of evolution by the finches of the Galapagos, the theory might well have been spawned by the pupfish of Death Valley.

An understanding of some of the fishes' unique abilities could be valuable to space and medical research, conservationists say. The genetic secrets underlying their exceptional adaptability to rapidly changing environments may be important to man's survival in the changing conditions of an increasingly polluted earth, others add.

The pupfish are descendants of fish that swam in lakes and streams that once filled the now dry basins of the Death Valley region. When the glacial waters that had fed the lakes slowly began to dry about 20,000 years ago, the large mammals — the mastodons, camels, giant sloths and sabre-toothed tigers of the area — died out, and fish became isolated in smaller and increasingly more separate waterways. By 4,000 years ago practically the only waters remaining for fish were volcanic hot springs and their outflows. Most fish failed to adapt to the hot water or the extreme alkalinity, but the pupfish did. As the drying process went on and they became increasingly isolated in separate populations, they developed at least nine different species and subspecies, some within a remarkably short period of time — as evolutionary time goes.

By early 1969 the habitat of many of the unusual fish had been altered by irrigation operations to such a degree that alarmed scientists called what was essentially a council of war at the national monument. Biologists representing state agencies of both California and Nevada, several federal agencies and two universities were present along with a handful of private conservationists. The gist of the discussion was that the unique fishes of the area, which they termed "a rare biological resource" for scientific study, were doomed unless action were to be taken.

In July of last year the U.S. Department of Justice sought an injunction in federal court in Las Vegas to prohibit the pumping that is inexorably lowering the water in Devil's Hole, where the survival of the cyprinodon diabolis, said to be unique and the most highly evolved pupfish of all, is threatened.

Although Devil's Hole, a cleft in the rock is so deep its exact depth is not known, the fish spawn and eat on a limestone shelf that once was covered with about three feet of water. Today most of the shelf is exposed, and each spring the water level, which varies during the year, is a little lower. Biologists have installed a bank of lights to increase formation of algae for fish food and a Fiberglas shelf as a substi-for water, is dying out. There is a suspicion that the smog is to blame.

The burro problems cannot be resolved unless some comprehensive regional agreement for burro control is worked out with other state and federal agencies supervising neighboring public lands. ("The boundaries of any national park are pretty artificial. Animals come and go," says Ackerman.) And what — if anything — should be done about burros has been a hotly controversial subject in conservationist circles in the Southwest in recent months.

There is one bright spot in the ecological clouds hanging over the monument's future, however.

It seems unlikely to some of the concerned scientists that the extensive greening of the Nevada desert contemplated under the Amargosa Project will ever take place. The water is inclined to be salty.

"It is the opinion of various scientists that much of the upper Amargosa River basin will not support sustained agriculture," said fisheries biologist Edwin P. (Phil) Pister of the California Department of Fish and Game and first chairman of the Desert Fishes Council — a situation he saw as lending a touch of irony to the conflict.

But test drilling continues. "Some people are hard to convince," he says. □

COPENHAGEN, Denmark - A modest two-story red brick house in the suburb of Bronshøj here and a California ranch-style tract home in the Long Beach suburb of Lakewood have something in common with Buckingham Palace in London.

The art of sculptor Niels Dam Ravn, direct descendant of a Sixth century Viking king, provides the link to the royal family of Britain as well as to a close family tie in the Southland. The Danish connection in both cases is the result of the artist's prolific 40 years of work in bronze and silver. Ask him why some 3,000 individual designs of obvious artistic merit, a good many of them in multiple reproduction, are little known outside of Scandinavia, and he replies:

"Most of my work has been in Nordic themes. Possibly it is a personal expression, since my family name is one of the oldest in Denmark. I have always been interested in popular art, meaning things that would appeal to the ordinary person at a price he can afford. But I never wanted to produce any object in such numbers that it would become commonplace."

An exception to the Scandinavian motifs which run through series after series of delicately sculptured bronze bowls, jewel cases, matchbox covers and other useful as well as ornamental items is one based on the celebrated medieval Bayeux tapestries in France which illustrate the Norman conquest of England.

This self-commissioned bronze series commemorating the Battle of Hastings and the dawn of modern British history is the collection Niels Dam Ravn presented to Queen Elizabeth II on her accession to the throne in 1953. Rampant horsemen, spear-slinging soldiers, battle banners and the fallen foe are all displayed on every piece, adding a new bas-relief dimension to the tapestry story, known to every English schoolboy as "1066 and all that."

Accompanying the coronation gift was an unsigned message: "From grateful Danes because of what England did for Denmark during World War II."

As a second appropriate observance, the artist in 1966 presented a large bronze replica of one tapestry scene to the Lord Mayor of Hastings, the Sussex seaside city where it all began for Britain 900 years before.

As in England, more than one Southland household contains the work of the Danish sculptor. I claim first recognition rights for San Pedro through an introduction to Denmark a little more than two years ago.

In search of an authentic and unusual souvenir of Copenhagen on the day before departure, I wandered some distance from the Vesterbrogade's beaten tourist track to a local shopping district. In the window of what appeared to be a hardware store, I found what I was looking for.

Next to a row of colorful high-intensity reading lamps pecking across the window display like a flock of gaudy sandpipers on parade were several small bronze bowls. One in particular, with a stylized relief map of Denmark on its inner surface, caught my eye. And then another, embossed with an enigmatic horsecart petroglyph. I knew either would make an attractive centerpiece for my wall collection at home, but these looked much too expensive for that purpose.

Having just returned from a side excursion to Hamlet's castle at Elsinore, I recalled the gist of Shakespeare's second-hand advice to Laertes, a notorious tightwad. Don't be a cheapskate, said Polonius, in the bard's words. Costly thy habit as thy purse can bear, for the purchase oft proclaims the man. Or something like that.

Painfully, I calculated what the wallet could sustain. Into the cranial computer I cranked some comparative values. I had paid $6 in Lima for an enameled dish of unidentified metal with an inset of pewter in the shape of a Peruvian llama, forked over the same amount in Cairo for two pressed copper plates depicting Queen Nefertiti's resplendent Egyptian headdress, and parted with a little more than that for a leather and horse brass harness chain from England.

I settled on the absolute maximum I would pay for the smaller bowl with the Danish chart. Goodbye good buy if it was more than $14.

Inside the shop, with the bowls in bifocal range, my computer blew a fuse. No pressed metal, these. Substantial bronze castings, with a sound like a bell to the flick of a fingernail. Genuine works of art, documented like museum pieces by the artist.

The chart bowl needed no explanation, but the card accompanying the petroglyph version identified the horsecart symbol as a replica of the Solvognen, a Bronze Age idol of the Sun God, which had been unearthed by archaeologists near Copenhagen and hustled off to a place of honor in the national treasury of antiquities.

A postscript to the card stated Niels Dam Ravn's modest motivation for the reproduction: "I have taken the liberty to use this 3,000-year-old sind as a reminder of our past to all."

Resigned to scratching these items off my shopping list, I turned over the map bowl, now shining with a pure golden glow. Incredibly, the price tag underneath read 52 kroner, just about half way up on my computer's self-destruct scale. The larger Sun God bowl was only a little higher. I snapped up both of them on the spot.

My joy was compounded next morning when I learned that the Danish Tourist Board, which diligently tracks prize souvenir items for visitors, was unaware of Niels Dam Ravn and his works.

But elation turned to deflation a few weeks later, after I had shared my exclusive discovery with readers of the I, P-T Travel Section. It was no news to Mrs. Ruth Ralston, 3638 Arbor Rd., Lakewood, a pastry decorator who had brought her own popular Danish art to the Southland some years before.

Sculptor's in-law is in Lakewood

She chided me for overlooking her favorite Dam Ravn art objects, a series of sculptured silver candy dishes illustrating episodes from Denmark's best-known literary product, the fairytales of Hans Christian Andersen. She clinched her expertise in the matter by pointing out that her sister is Mrs. Niels Dam Ravn.

So much for the small and shrinking world department. The bonus of this encounter is that Mrs. Ralston provided the personal contact which led to two subsequent visits to the artist's design workshop at his suburban home and the small but efficient loft plant in Copenhagen where the final product is manufactured. Extra dividends were two memorable smorrebrod luncheons created by the sculptor's wife, Dikke, a culinary artist of the first magnitude. Each of the typical mid-day Danish delights alone was worth the 12-hour polar flight from Los Angeles.

On this second visit, the sculptor talked of ancestry, art and ancient kings as he demonstrated the techniques of creating a master mold in his basement workshop rooms.

In shirt sleeves at a sturdy bench, he etched almost microscopic detail into the plaster form for a new bowl design, then chiseled with exquisite precision on the polished surface of the preliminary bronze casting of another to remove a flaw invisible to the untrained eye.

"Now it is finished," he said with satisfaction. "This will be the form for the final casting. Everything must be absolutely perfect."

A large painting I had seen in the sunny parlor on the floor above helped the artist to explain his claim to royal descent. A capsulized family history, the oil depicts Queen Tila of Denmark and her prime minister, Tue Ravn, planning further improvements to a line of fortifications designed to keep German invaders out of the country about the turn of the 10th century.

Painted by Niels Dam Ravn in a period of relative inactivity in sculpture during the Nazi occupation, the work obviously was influenced by the times. The fortress wall shown in part through an open doorway in the painting repelled the Teutonic hordes until the end of the Viking era some 500 years later.

"Tue Ravn was my great, great, great grandfather of 25 generations ago," the present-day artist pointed out with pride in a somewhat tattered book of Danish genealogy. "And he in turn was the great, great, great grandson almost as many times removed from Regner Lodbroge, the king of all the Viking kings."

According to the historical record, Regner Lodbroge embarked on foreign ventures after taking over all the minor kingdoms in his own land. "He fired all the local kings," said Niels Dam Ravn, turning the page. About the year 500, King Regner sailed up the Seine to pillage Paris, and then went on to England to meet defeat and death in the dungeon of an Anglo-Saxon tribal chief.

*'He fired all

Regner's sons took their family name from their father's battle flag, emblazoned with two ravens, partly as a psychological warfare ploy in carrying the flag back to England to wreak some Viking vengeance in the area now known as Kent. But the current generation harbors no lingering grudge against the British, as evidenced by the coronation gift to Queen Elizabeth.

In spite of an illustrious precedent in his lineage, Niels Dam Ravn's choice of profession was not an easy one. The prior example was Tue Ravn, who sculpted Queen Tila's memorial, still in existence on former family lands. But Niels' father, a merchant king as chairman of a large textile manufacturing firm, believed art was acceptable only as a sideline, not a vocation.

When Niels refused to follow his father into business and struck out on his own to study sculpture in Munich, he was banished from the once tax-free family estates, chauffeur-driven limousines and other privileges and benefits of his heritage.

"So I'm not a rich man today," he said at the luncheon table. "But I never regretted the decision. I have had a very happy life, for which I can thank my wife a great deal."

Now, in his 65th year, Niels Dam Ravn is carving out a whole new career in another medium of popular art. His new cement garden sculptures are whimsical, light-hearted, amusing, graceful and not too expensive, reflecting the Danish spirit and his philosophy of a lifetime.

Preparation for the debut of his latest art form in a Copenhagen exhibition last month required five years of experimentation. With his usual painstaking attention to detail, the artist tested a dozen sample animal sculptures against the hazards of outdoor exposure.

"Copenhagen winters are a real test of weatherproofing," he observed, glancing with twinkling eyes at his own garden. "Now it's spring and the birds are back again. I don't know how to keep them off the statuary. They all seem to be art critics." □

You Can Lose Weight— You Can't Lose Money!

Now, if you can lick a stamp, you can lick your weight problem! That's a guarantee—and Northwestern Pharmaceuticals takes all the risk.

Because Northwestern will not deposit your check or money order for four weeks after your order is mailed. That'll give you plenty of time to receive it, try it—and see for yourself that it really works for you.

If—for any reason—you're not thrilled with the results, all you have to do is return the unused portion within the four weeks. Your uncashed check or money order will be sent to you by return mail!

Here's why Northwestern dares to make this unusual guarantee:

In the first place, it's a proven product. Northwestern's Weight-Loss Plan has been on the market for over 11 years. Hundreds of thousands have tried it—and less than 2% have asked for their money back! And if you have any questions about its safety or potency, Northwestern urges you to check with your doctor.

It's a different product. Northwestern's Weight-Loss Plan is different—and effective—in all these ways:

First—It's your plan... your age, your height, your weight, and how much you want to lose... these things are all taken into account when you select your Plan! The truth is that if you need to lose 50 pounds, you need a different kind of diet than someone who needs to lose 10. And you get it.

Second—You choose the foods you like best. Most diets fail because they're so limited or tasteless that you start cheating. Then you get discouraged and give up—or go on a real food binge. Northwestern expects you to cheat. Their plan encourages you to treat yourself to satisfying amounts of such foods as pie with cream topping, pastries, ice cream sundaes, cheesecake, waffles with maple syrup, nutty brownies, mashed potatoes and gravy, creamy salad dressings, milkshakes, creamed vegetables, chili con carne, chow mein, beef stroganoff, and fried chicken!

Northwestern's Plan not only "allows" these diet-breaks—they actually include the special, delicious recipes!

Third—Your diet is automatically "adjusted"... as your weight goes down. You don't follow a 500-calorie diet or a 1000-calorie diet. In fact, you don't count calories at all! But as you reach your weight goals, you "automatically" eat less—and keep on losing weight.

Fourth—You'll lose... without starving! Follow the Plan and you don't ever have to leave the table feeling hungry! You can even eat out or go on a picnic—and no one will guess that you're dieting!

Fifth—It's inexpensive! You get everything you need to know and everything you need to take for 60 days. Tablets that supplement food and safeguard your health, but play no role in weight loss, are included at no extra cost. And the full price is just $5.50—less than a dime a day!

How much weight you lose and how fast you lose it obviously depends on you, but here are some excerpts from unsolicited, unusual letters. They were mailed to Northwestern with reorders:

Teenager lost 14 pounds

"I am sixteen years old and have been on the diet for two weeks, and have lost fourteen pounds."

Lost 18 pounds

"Without the fear of getting off my diet or nervous tension, I have lost 18 pounds. Thanks to you, I look human again."

Lost 13 pounds in 3 weeks

"Your diet plan is wonderful. Have lost 13 pounds in 3 weeks."

'Wonderful list of foods'

"I have enjoyed being on your diet, and the results have been more than I expected on a diet of this nature, that includes such a wonderful list of foods. I was getting desperate, for I found I could not leave food alone. Now I'm back in my size 9 again."

'You don't get hungry!'

"I started 30 days ago. At that time I weighed 197 pounds. Today I weigh 186 pounds. I feel much better and everyone tells me how much better I look."

"P.S.: Your formula gives you so much to eat that you don't get hungry."

Mother lost 37 pounds

"My mother took them for 6 months and is down to 138 pounds. She weighed 175. I would like to order."

'Down to size 12'

"It has done wonders for me. I was a size 18 last year and am down to size 12 now."

'Painless way to diet'

"The first week I lost weight and didn't realize it until I weighed myself and took my measurements. Thank you for a wonderful and painless way to diet."

Lost 30 pounds in 2 months

"I lost 30 pounds and 2 dress sizes with a 2-month supply. It was out of sheer desperation that I answered your ad in the Chicago Sun-Times. Believe me, I will be eternally grateful."

'Easiest way to lose'

"It is the easiest way I ever lost weight. I have lost 37 pounds."

'Shots and pills couldn't help'

"I am extremely overweight, and found that shots and pills could not help me because of my nervousness. I tried your plan, starting September 25th and to this date, October 13th, I have lost 12 pounds. The best thing is I am much happier and more active, with no 'nerves'."

'No ill-feelings, nervousness'

"It has been approximately 2 years since I last took your product. At that time I took it for three months and lost 40 pounds. Never for one minute did I experience any ill-feelings, nervousness or weakness. Having had another addition to the family, I once again need your assistance."

'Weight stayed down'

"I lost 30 pounds in only 12 weeks of following the plan and after four more months I have not gained any of it back. I had tried every other diet in the past 20 years and this is the first time my weight stayed down after losing."

And Northwestern is so sure their Plan will work for you that they won't cash your check 'til you're sure. You can lose weight—can't lose money. Why not fill out and mail the Agreement right now?

Then if you do exactly as he says, step by step... if you don't get reckless or greedy... you'll be on your way to the kind of life you want.

Is that worth a 2-hour investment? Because that's all you're risking. Just time. Not money.

Here's why: your check or money order will not be deposited for 4 weeks after your copy of the book is mailed. That'll give you plenty of time to receive your book, read it thoroughly, and put the principles into action.

If you're not thrilled with what you've gained, just send the book back within 31 days. Your uncashed check or money order will be in the return mail!

Ever heard of an offer like that? No. But there's never been a book like this either.

As to the price—if you decide to keep the book. Frankly, we didn't know what to charge. It isn't just paper and ink. It's information. Facts that dozens of people have paid $200 to gain—and were satisfied to pay.

But there aren't many people who can afford that kind of money. Even for a sure thing.

So what do you think about 10 dollars? That's all—10 dollars. And you have something better than a money back guarantee. Because your check or money order won't even be cashed unless—and until—you decided to keep the book because it's worth a lot more.

Winning at the horse races, traveling first class and living in the best hotels may not be your idea of fun. As for me, I think it sure beats working for a living. See you at the track.

Here I sit, trying to write about Larry Voegele. And all the while I'm working and sweating, the guy I'm writing about is out at the racetrack. Not a worry in the world—and probably making more money in a day than I make in a week.

What's his secret? He knows how to beat the races. Really knows. Knows so much that he runs a school for handicappers. (It's the only one of its kind in the world. Which is why he was asked to appear on "What's My Line.")

He charges his "students" two hundred bucks apiece. He tells them that if they're not completely satisfied he'll return every cent they've paid, and nobody has ever asked for his money back.

What's more, he went on a live radio show (The Pete Smith Show on KMPC, February 20, 1971) and did something that had never been done before. Mr. Smith really threw it to him: asked him to pick the winners in the 7 races that were being run at Santa Anita, while the program was on the air. Two out of seven would have been good enough to show a profit. Three would have been phenomenal. Larry Voegele picked five!

If he'd been at the track betting, say $20 on each race, he would have picked up a cool $404... net profit! Not bad for an afternoon's work.

And all the knowledge that Larry publicly proved that day... every fact that he teaches in his $200 course... is in his book.

If you've never bet on a horse in your life, you'll read and enjoy every word. And end up understanding more than most guys who have been following the ponies all their lives.

If you're an oldtimer, you'll skip the background and get right down to the nitty gritty. If you can forget what you think you know, if you have the nerve—and the discipline—to follow his methods to the letter, you could make more money than you ever dreamed possible.

Why? Because you'll know more than 95% of the people who go to the track—and you're betting against them! The money they lose, you'll win! The track and the state take their cut, but there's plenty to go around.

At Santa Anita, for example, over two million dollars is bet every day. And it's a statistical fact that only one out of 20 walks out a big winner. You can be one of them!

Larry Voegele doesn't look like a race-track tout. He's not.

He's a college graduate. He was the editor of a newspaper. He was a legislative assistant to a congressman.

He was a stockbroker, working for a major

Wall Street firm. Was because he found out that investing in horse races was safer—and more profitable—than trying to beat the Bulls and the Bears at their own game.

And that's the secret of his book. He approaches handicapping as a professional. It's scientific. No "hunches." No "tips." No so-called "systems."

It isn't even "inside information." Just simple, hard facts. Facts that anyone could see if they knew what to look for. In short, if they knew what Larry Voegele knows—and tells in his book.

It'll take you about an hour to read it. Another hour to practice what he preaches.

Both restaurants have cakes and rich cream pies baked by Hubert's own bakers. A beautiful slice of coconut cream, banana, chocolate or lemon meringue pie is 40 cents.

GUIDE

QUITE A FEW of the better dinner houses in the Long Beach area have "early bird" dinners on week nights. But not on Sundays.

An exception is Rochelle's Restaurant, 3333 Lakewood Blvd., which serves its "early-bird" every Sunday from 1 to 9 p.m. and Monday through Saturday evenings from 4:30 to 7 p.m. The price is a moderate $2.95.

That dinner will be an ideal choice today for father on his day, because it's like a holiday affair, including champagne sherbet for dessert as well as soup of the day or salad with choice of dressings, entree, potato, vegetable du jour, hot rolls with butter and beverage. It offers six delectable entree choices — the English cut of juicy prime rib of beef, veal cutlet with country gravy, roast sirloin of beef au jus, broiled northern halibut steak, deep-fried shrimp with snappy red sauce and filet of sole with tartar sauce.

Owned by Ben Rochelle, formerly a professional dancer who entertained throughout the world, the fashionable restaurant is part of a multi-million dollar Rochelle's complex near Long Beach Municipal Airport. Included are over 200 motel units and a red-accented, Mediterranean-style Convention Center available for breakfast, luncheon and dinner meetings, banquets, luaus, receptions and similar affairs. The center can accommodate 1,000 persons for trade shows.

Reservations for the Convention Center and other banquet rooms at Rochelle's can be made through general manager Lorraine McDuffie and her staff. Lorraine also directs the activities of the restaurant and adjoining entertainment lounge, which has dancing nightly to youthful, versatile groups. Each Sunday, starting at 3 p.m., Rochelle's has romantic dinner music featuring the voice and guitar of Rick Smith.

The restaurant's regular menu emphasizes steaks, lobster, prime rib and steak sandwiches. The steak choices include the "special," petite filet mignon and the large filet mignon.

Medicine & You

Medical Science Editor

A new test has been developed to detect hearing defects in infants. Baby usually sleeps through the test.

The test was developed at the famed Menninger Foundation to test high-risk babies under the age of 18 months.

The technique is known as respiration audiometry.

Specialists can tell how well a patient hears by the way he breathes. In other words, when a tone is sounded, if a person hears it, a change in breathing pattern occurs.

Pure tones are delivered through earphones. The patient's respiration movements are picked up by a specially designed strain gauge and recorded on a polygraph unit.

The strain gauge resembles a leather belt with air bellows inserted in the center. It is wrapped around the patient's chest. It is not necessary to attach wires to the head or body.

One of the developers, Dr. Larry Bradford, says one of the most positive aspects of the test is that there is no discomfort.

"In fact, babies usually sleep right through it," he says.

The procedure is used to test high-risk infants — babies with a family history of hearing loss, those whose mothers had German measles during pregnancy and those with birth defects that may make them prone to hearing loss.

The test requires 20 to 30 minutes after the child is quiet. Researchers say it's best to test the babies after they have eaten, just as they are going to sleep. Reason: A wide-awake infant has a rapid and erratic respiration rate, but it slows down as the youngster goes into a light sleep. Thus alterations are easier to see.

A nitroglycerin ointment rubbed on the back appears to have a longer acting effect than oral drugs in coping with the problem of angina pectoris, the severe chest pain of heart disease.

The ointment's action lasts up to three hours, researchers report.

A test of the ointment and drugs taken by mouth was set up as follows:

Each of 12 angina patients was exercised repeatedly on a stationary bicycle after being given one of the preparations. Aim of the experiment: To measure the time required for a subject to experience the onset of chest pain.

Dr. Nathaniel Reichek, assistant professor of medicine at the University of Pennsylvania, and one of the researchers, reports:

"In every patient, exercise duration was longer with the nitroglycerin ointment than with the placebo (dummy medication)."

In addition, the ointment consistently enhanced exercise performance in contrast with oral drugs and those dissolved beneath the tongue.

Research with rub-on nitro and the other drugs is continuing, according to Medical World News, a magazine for physicians.

A diabetic woman is more than twice as likely to suffer early death from a heart attack than is her nondiabetic sister.

This is disclosed by a study conducted by Health Insurance Plan (HIP) of Greater New York.

On the other hand, the study states, diabetes is an unimportant prognostic factor for early death among men.

Details of the study were reported to the American Public Health Association by Eve Weinblatt, assistant director of HIP's department of research and statistics. A summary of the report appears in Clinical Trends in Cardiology, a newspaper for doctors.

A new antidepressive drug, Vivalan, looks promising in preliminary trials.

Dr. F. J. Beren of Queen's University of Belfast reports that nine patients 18 to 58 with a diagnosis of neurotic depression were given the drug in tablet form. Patients were treated for three weeks.

Four patients showed rapid improvement during the first week. Another patient showed good improvement within a week. Two patients developed side effects, and the drug was withdrawn. The other two required electroconvulsive therapy for relief on the seventh and 16th day of the trial.

The report is in the journal Lancet.

Cytosine arabinoside, a drug which has been used for the treatment of serious virus infections, may find usefulness in preventing organ transplant rejections.

Researchers at the University of Rochester (N. Y.) School of Medicine and Dentistry say the mechanism of the phenomenon is unknown. But the drug is thought to have an effect on the thymus gland, according to Dr. Mark Eastland, who reported the study to the American College of Surgeons.

Doctors continue to disagree on the advisability of giving routine smallpox vaccinations.

The American Medical Association is supporting the use of smallpox vaccine in cases where physicians deem it advisable.

The U. S. Public Health Service, however, recommends against routine immunizations against smallpox.

WALTER SCOTT'S Personality Parade

Want the facts? Want to learn the truth about prominent personalities? Want informed opinion? Write Walter Scott, Parade, 733 3rd Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017. Your full name will be used unless otherwise requested. Volume of mail received makes personal replies impossible.

Q. Ex-Cabinet members and his closest associates have been involved in such crimes as burglary, illegal wire-tapping, perjury, and the obstruction of justice. Yet President Nixon has the temerity to go on TV and describe the Watergate scandal as a "deplorable incident." Is he kidding or what?—M. Klein, New York, N.Y.

A. From time to time Nixon practices self-deception, understandably seeks to underplay what is most damaging to him and his Administration.

Q. How good or bad are the chances that President Richard Nixon will be impeached? Do the Democrats really want his scalp?—N.M.L., Philadelphia, Pa.

A. At this writing the Congress seems to prefer that Nixon run out his remaining 1300-odd days in office in a weakened and ineffective manner rather than involve Congress in lengthy impeachment proceedings, which, if successful, would result in the ascendancy to the Presidency of Spiro Agnew.

Q. I would like to know who financed the trip of Shirley MacLaine and 11 other Women's Libbers to the People's Republic of China. Wasn't it the Communist Party?—Mrs. C.R., Boston, Mass.

A. Shirley MacLaine financed most of it.

RAQUEL WELCH

Q. Has Raquel Welch had her fanny re-shaped?—Virginia Johnson, Chicago, Ill.

A. Her nose and her bust but not her fanny.

Q. Is it not a fact that the major sin of H.R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, former members of the White House palace guard, was that they isolated President Nixon from Congress, the American public, and the Republican Party?—W.M., Tucson, Ariz.

A. Haldeman and Ehrlichman are combative men. They were corrupted by power into arrogance and reportedly isolated Nixon from others who disagreed with them.

TOGETHER AGAIN: FRED ASTAIRE AND GINGER ROGERS WHEN HE WAS HONORED RECENTLY IN NEW YORK.

Q. How old is Fred Astaire? Does he wear a hairpiece? What is his real name? Will he make a comeback?—Henrietta Kerby, St. Louis, Mo.

A. Fred Astaire, at least 73, was born Fred Austerlitz, wears a hairpiece, has no intention of making a film comeback.

Q. Is Martha Mitchell writing a book in which she will tell all?—E.L. Ramsey, Rutland, Vt.

A. Mrs. Mitchell is collaborating on a book with writer Winzola McLendon, but she is not about to tell all, surely not about the former U.S. Attorney General John Mitchell, her second husband.

Q. I heard Gov. Ronald Reagan say on TV that the people involved in the Watergate jazz were "stupid and foolish but not criminal?" Is Reagan naive or deceptive?—E.T. Thomas, Berkeley, Calif.

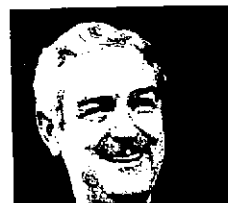

A. Governor Reagan of California is an actor not a lawyer. He is also a Nixonian apologist who plans to succeed Nixon as President of the U.S.A. Under the circumstances he is not about to denounce as criminals several fellow members of the Republican Party.

GOV. RONALD REAGAN AND WIFE NANCY

Q. Is it true that to enter the U.S. Armed Forces a female has to be a high school graduate while a male need not?—Anne Whitaker, Raleigh, N.C.

A. Women have to be high school graduates or the equivalent. Men do not. But it is not a question of law, merely preference by the services.

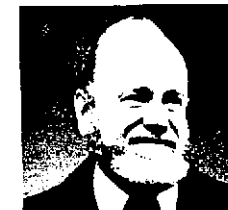

JOHN CONNALLY

LYNDON JOHNSON

Q. Is there any difference in character traits between John Connally of Texas and the late Lyndon Johnson? Don't the oil interests in this country own Connally as they once owned Johnson?—F.R., Houston, Texas.

A. Connally, a protégé of the late President, has many of Johnson's strengths and weaknesses. Connally is closely allied to and supported by the major oil corporations, which was also true of Johnson.

BERNIE CORNFELD

VALLI DAVIS

Q. Bernie Cornfeld, the Brooklyn social worker who made millions selling mutual funds overseas—how did he come out on that rape charge filed against him in London?—Ed James, Los Angeles, Calif.

A. Cornfeld pleaded guilty to indecently assaulting Valli Davis, 19, in his London town house. He claimed that a friend had introduced Miss Valli to him, and he understood that she was to become his mistress. He therefore walked naked into her bedroom one night in an effort to make love to her whereupon the girl fled half clothed and barefooted into the street and hailed a cab driver who drove her to the police. Cornfeld was fined approximately $1125 on two counts of unlawfully assaulting and beating the girl. To add to his troubles, the Swiss charged him on May 14th with fraud and mismanagement.

What's Going On in China?

by Lloyd Shearer

PLACE TO BE

PEKING

Peking has become the "in" capital of the world this year. Spotted in the People's Republic of China a few weeks ago were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Paley—he's head of the Columbia Broadcasting System; Mr. and Mrs. Marquis Childs—he's the syndicated columnist for United Feature; Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin Spock—he's the famous political pediatrician; Shirley MacLaine—she's the Hollywood screen star who was touring with 11 Women-Libbers, two of whom came down with pneumonia.

Also in Peking were Mrs. Juan Peron, who had come to arrange an appointment for her husband with Mao Tse-tung; Le Duc Tho, the North Vietnamese chief peace negotiator, and, of course, Mr. and Mrs. David Bruce—he the distinguished veteran diplomat in charge of the U.S. liaison mission.

If Americans plan to visit the People's Republic of China these days, they usually have to be a member of some American cultural, scientific, sports, or trade group. The Chinese are incomparably polite and hospitable, but they are not equipped to handle the thousands of tourists who are clamoring for visas. They have neither enough hotels nor interpreters and are simply not yet prepared for the tourist onslaught. Not in Peking anyway where the number of diplomats in one year has leaped from 100 to 12 times that amount.

Mr. and Mrs. William Paley meet with Chou En-lai. The chairman of CBS is among many notables visiting China.

The teachings of Mao have inculcated Chinese children with a spirit of cooperation rather than competitiveness.

STANDARD OF LIVING

The most important practical achievement of Communist China has been the feeding, clothing, and housing of some 800 million people. At a cost of personal freedom, a right they never knew in any previous regime, they now enjoy what they never had before—security from cradle to grave, but security with dignity.

They are friendly, healthy, industrious, and motivated by the widely fostered principle, "Serve the People," which they constantly put into execution.

Mao seems to have bred selfishness and competitiveness out of them. Nowhere is that more evident than in the nursery schools where it is obvious to any visitor that the Chinese children are more cooperative than competitive, more altruistic than selfish. They share the same toys, are taught to love and help each other, and, of course, venerate Mao Tse-tung who has become the living god-figure of the People's Republic.

The Chinese candidly admit, "We are not a superpower as is the United States of America. We are merely, as Premier Chou En-lai says, 'a developing nation.' But we have come a long way since the liberation (1949) and with hard work we will progress further. Our standard of living is not the highest in the world in material things, but no one goes hungry or without adequate health care here."

The Chinese unit of money is the yuan. Two yuan comprise one U.S. dollar.

My interpreter in Canton, Mr. Kuo Chien-hua, 29, a brilliant, university-educated guide, explained that he earns 60 yuan per month, pays 3 yuan for rent and utilities, 15 yuan for food, sends 10 yuan per month to his mother in Shanghai. His wife earns 50 yuan per month working in a pharmaceutical plant. They pay no income tax.

"We have a good life," he remarked. "At least from our point of view, which is not materialistic. There are some products which are relatively expensive. Bicycles cost 152 yuan. Sewing machines cost 131 yuan. But a pound of steak sells for 75 cents American, fish 42 cents a pound, shrimp 75 cents a pound. My shirt cost 8 yuan, my shoes 3 yuan, my trousers 7 yuan. My wife and I get along nicely. But we are more interested in others than in ourselves."

Mao Tse-tung is convinced that human nature is essentially good, and the Chinese people are determined to prove that he is right.

To them it is just a question of education.

FAIR PRICES—UP

There was a time when foreign buyers would take the train from Hong Kong to Canton, and there, twice a year at the Fall and Spring Fairs, buy up at bargain prices, a variety of Chinese products.

No more.

Last month at the Canton Trade Fair, prices for Chinese antiques and artifacts of all sorts zoomed a staggering 1100 percent.

A buyer who had attended previous fairs, said the Chinese, mindful of having sold too low in the past, especially their Ch'ing, Sung, and Ming antiquities, were testing the market to see what the traffic would bear.

While U.S., Canadian, German, and Australian buyers were amazed at some of the prices the Chinese were asking for handicrafts, the Japanese scarcely batted an eyelash. They bought, bought, bought—everything from jade to ivory to rugs.

Wherever they go these days, the French women trying on traditional coolie hats at Canton Trade Fair. Prices at Chinese fairs have soared as buyers from all over the world vie for their products.

Japanese are more than welcome when it comes to spending. On the global front they have replaced Uncle Sam as "Mr. Moneybags."

Heinz Becker, a German from Macao who has attended the last 28 Chinese fairs, says, "I have never seen anything like this past one. The Chinese just kept adding zeros to their price tags. The Japanese were buying everything in such large quantities that the Chinese were sure they had underpriced their jade and porcelains and especially their antiques, of which they really have little left to sell. They are saving all the good stuff for themselves, realizing that they will never again produce such exquisite masterpieces as they turned out centuries ago. The New China has no time for such painstaking workmanship."

Chinese pose happily in front of a clothing store that leads to air raid shelter tunneled 75 feet underground. Fear of Soviet bombing rarely leaves Chinese minds.

UNDERGROUND CITIES

The people of China are convinced that one day the Soviet Union will bomb them. As a result they have been constructing since 1969 an extensive system of underground tunnels and air raid shelters.

In Peking the entrances to these tunnels consist of sliding floors in downtown shops. A button is pressed, the floor slides away revealing a staircase which leads to a tunnel 75 feet underground.

To avoid traffic jams, two sets of tunnels have been erected under each district of Peking. They are equipped with lavatories, telephones, supplies of water and food, various storehouses and headquarters.

In five minutes 80,000 people can descend into their underground district air raid shelters. The tunnels lead to the suburbs of Peking. "They were built," according to Wu Wei-Kuo, air raid warden for the Hsuan-Wu district, "to protect us against the designs of socialist imperialism (read Soviet for socialist) and to provide us with some protection in case of bombing attacks.

"We realize," he explains, "that these tunnels are not the answer to nuclear bombs, but they do provide some protection against conventional bombs.

"The people of each district in Peking chip in and provide the labor for the construction of these shelters. We made tools ourselves, and when we ran out of bricks, we built our own kiln. We lacked experience to begin with and at the start we made our entrances and exits too narrow, but we have learned in time. There are 45 shops in this district, each with its own entrance and exit.

"It is regrettable that we have to use our labor on these projects, but the Soviets have massed more than one million of their troops on our border, and we must prepare ourselves for all possible situations. So long as we are prepared we will be able to hold down our losses."

SHIRLEY'S TOUR

The China Travel Service which handles arrangements for Americans visiting China, invited actress Shirley MacLaine and 11 other American women of her choice to tour the People's Republic of China and see how its women work, behave and thrive on sexual equality.

Shirley was invited because she is a liberal intellectual with an insatiable curiosity about places and people and an oft-expressed love for China. From time to time she has expressed this love in Hong Kong where China Travel Service has its headquarters.

Over the years Shirley has lived among the Masai in Africa, the Bhutans in the Himalayas, among the Japanese and the Indians. She is an adventurous, un-Hollywood type of actress and the author of an intriguing autobiography, Don't Fall Off the Mountain.

Shirley arrived in China on April 19th with the 11 other women, among them ace TV camerawoman Claudia Weill of New York; Joan Weidman, a backup camerawoman from Los Angeles; Nancy Schreiber, a script girl from New York, and photographer Cabell Glickler.

In addition, she had with her Rosa Marin, head of social work studies at the University of Puerto Rico; Pat Branson of Port Arthur, Tex.; Margaret Whitman of Manchester, Mass.; Phyllis Kronhausen, a sexologist who runs the Museum of Erotic Art in San Francisco; Ninibah Crawford, a Navajo Indian from Ft. Defiance, Ariz.; Unita Blackwell, a black civil rights champion from Marysville, Miss. and Karen Boutillier, a bold little 12-year-old from Concord, Calif., who had campaigned for Sen. George McGovern in 1972.

Said Shirley: "These girls represent a

Actress Shirley MacLaine being interviewed before boarding bus. She headed party of 12 American women invited to tour country, plans a book on her experiences.

cross-section of American womanhood, one was a delegate at the convention for George Wallace, one is a New England Republican conservative, one is a Ph.D.—at least they're my idea of a cross-section."

After visits in Canton and Shanghai, Shirley and her troupe were booked into the Minzu Hotel in Peking. Each day for the next three weeks they saw China as few Americans have seen it. Accompanied by interpreters and camera crew they would visit hospitals, schools, communes, take part in revolutionary committee meetings, ask the most intimate sexual, medical, and sociological questions.

During the course of their three-week visit most of the MacLaine party came down with a variety of illnesses, largely through over-fatigue. Two were hospitalized with pneumonia in Canton and Peking, and Shirley existed "mostly on a diet of antibiotics."

"Our Chinese hosts," she said, "could not have been kinder or more cooperative. I think we're going to have one of the most spectacular TV spectacles ever shot in China. We photographed a Chinese woman who was delivered of a child via Caesarean section. Her anesthesia was a couple of acupuncture needles, and she was eating an apple through the whole delivery. We also interviewed Chinese women on everything from child rearing to health care, and what we've got is not a travelogue but China through the eyes of women, both American and Chinese. It really should be something."

In addition to her TV spectacular, Shirley hopes to write a book on her Chinese experiences. "But first," she avers, "I've got to finish the second volume of my autobiography. I've already got 6000 pages of typescript completed."

Activist-actress MacLaine, who also has a 17-year-old daughter to look after—the father is Shirley's husband Steve Parker who lives in Japan most of the time—is a true nonpareil. Neither China nor Hollywood has seen many of her kind. She is a delightful, alert, intelligent pixie who lives each day as if it were her last.

Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev (r) shares a joke with Premier Alexei Kosygin. When Brezhnev visits the United States, President Nixon will have a full dossier on all aspects of his life, courtesy of the CIA.

A SPECIAL JACK ANDERSON REPORT

How We Get Inside Information on World Leaders

The file on Fidel Castro says he has been urged to "regain control" over the Latin American revolutionary movements.

Friendly leaders like Costa Rica's Jose Figueres are not immune; an agency report detailed his financial troubles.

WASHINGTON, D.C.
President Nixon will know enough about Leonid Brezhnev to write a biography when the two leaders finally sit down together at the summit. Brezhnev's health? The President will have a complete medical report. Brezhnev's temperament? A detailed psychological profile will be available. Brezhnev's beliefs? The President will have transcripts of private Kremlin conversations.

Intimate information

Nixon even has the name of Brezhnev's favorite masseuse. In the privacy of the Kremlin, Brezhnev confided to Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny that he was looking forward to a rubdown from a masseuse named Olga. American spies were listening when Podgorny answered, with a knowing chuckle: "Oh, ho! Olga!"

In the rarefied atmosphere of international power politics, such intimate information can be a powerful bargaining chip. Thick dossiers on world leaders are compiled by the Central Intelligence Agency, which gathers its information by every method, from electronic eavesdropping to routine research.

The secret profile of Leonid Brezhnev, according to those who have seen it, portrays him as an amiable, robust, hard-drinking outdoorsman. He likes to gossip about his colleagues in the Kremlin, and he engages in the constant bickering and backbiting that goes on behind those Byzantine walls. His private conversations are heavily laced with locker-room language. He likes to relax at a place Soviet leaders call the "Clinic" near the Kremlin. This is the Soviet equivalent of a private health club.

The profile also contains incidents and insights from CIA intelligence reports. During the 1968 Czechoslovakian crisis, for example, the man Brezhnev ousted as Premier, Nikita Khrushchev, suddenly showed up at the Kremlin and demanded to see his successor. Khrushchev loudly warned that the Czech invasion could turn into a disaster unless Soviet troops were pulled out at once. Brezhnev gruffly refused to see Khrushchev and ignored his advice.

A profile of Castro

The profile on Fidel Castro contains a CIA report that the Kremlin has asked the Cuban dictator "to try to regain control over Latin American revolutionary movements" and has promised to "pay all the costs involved."

The CIA also reported Castro's private opinion of the Marxist regime in Chile and its leader, President Salvador Allende. Castro correctly predicted a year in advance "a breakdown in public order." This, he said, could come about at any time because the opposition, especially the middle class, had lost its fear of government. Castro opined that a government must have fear if it is to control the country.

"Another factor listed by Castro," continued the secret CIA report, "was the possible deterioration of Allende's health. Castro said he is worried about Allende because the latter is physically 'spent.' Castro also observed that [Chilean] leaders live too well and are not under sufficient tension to take the offensive."

The CIA not only keeps Communist leaders under scrutiny; it also checks on friendly leaders. The financial difficulties of Costa Rica's respected President Jose Figueres, for example, were quietly relayed to Washington. The CIA quoted a family member as complaining that "all the members of the President's family are deeply concerned with family financial matters."

The French confrontation

The CIA also gleefully reported an awkward confrontation between France's President Georges Pompidou and West Germany's Chancellor Willy Brandt a few months ago. "A heated exchange took place after the Brandt-Pompidou dinner," said the CIA. A secret account of the encounter claimed Johann Baptist Schoellhorn, a German economics official, "told Pompidou that France was profiting from and encouraging the inflation afflicting other European countries. . . . According to members of Brandt's party, Brandt stood by and visibly enjoyed Pompidou's discomfiture. Schoellhorn

Menthol or Regular

months ago. But in private, says a secret CIA paper, they got into an awkward confrontation over economics.

into every dark corner of the subject's life, academics back at the CIA compile anthropological and sociological data on the area in which the subject grew up. This is done in the CIA's "Geographic Office." The structure of the society, its mores and customs, are depicted. Even the type of diet adds to the portrait of the person.

The "Geographic Office" report on Mao Tse-tung, for instance, noted that he traveled as a beggar through the country in his youth, seeing firsthand the poverty and corruption. This profoundly affected the young Mao and helped ignite the revolutionary fire that caused him to help found the Chinese Communist Party in the early 1920's. Today, intelligence reports confirm that Mao is still the purest of revolutionaries.

Medical diagnosis

The CIA also directs its agents to dredge up all possible medical information for the medical researchers to diagnose. Once, agents tapped into wash-room pipes in one of Monte Carlo's most glamorous casinos to get a urine sample from the oil-rich King of Saudi Arabia, who was rumored to be ailing. Inside the washroom, crouched behind a commode door, an agent waited with an electronic signaling device. The King, a heavy drinker and addicted gambler, finally entered in a swirl of white robe. The agent alerted his colleague in the plumbing closet, and the nozzle was turned on the pipe tapped into the washroom plumbing.

But the greatest coup in the annals of the CIA's medical espionage oc-supported his accusations with details which Pompidou was unable to refute."

The world's two most celebrated women leaders, Israel's Golda Meir and India's Indira Gandhi, are reported by the CIA to have a long-distance feud brewing. According to the CIA account, Mrs. Meir regards Mrs. Gandhi as "neutral... on the side of Egypt," while Mrs. Gandhi sees Israel as a "warmonger."

The dossiers on Arab leaders are loaded with CIA tidbits. Egypt's President Anwar Sadat, "when threatening Israel with an all-out war, was bluffing," reported the CIA. Jordan's King Hussein threatened "to go on a ghazou" unless he received more American aid. A ghazou, it was explained, "is a Bedouin raid against neighbors for the purpose of looting." Syria's President Hafez-al-Assad was portrayed by the CIA as an outspoken militant who doesn't "expect too much from Egyptians." Assad uses the Arabic word "lamma" when he speaks of war with Israel. "Lamma" means "when" not "if," explained a CIA report.

Spying on foreign leaders is a routine operation, involving CIA agents in the field and researchers at headquarters. Reports from diplomats and military attaches also go into the dossiers. If Washington suddenly wants more information about a certain dignitary, say in advance of a summit meeting, he becomes "targeted." Then the full resources of the clandestine agency are trained upon laying his life bare.

The first step in the daily spying process is known as the "library search." Researchers routinely clip newspaper and magazine articles about foreign notables and send them into the CIA's "Biographic Registry" computer.

As part of the "library search," field agents are asked to fill out forms on foreign leaders, which resemble job applications. To the extent possible, relatives, friends and acquaintances are casually contacted. Information is gathered helter-skelter, with rumor and fact carefully noted. It is left to the experts in Washington to assemble the jigsaw pieces and make the final distinctions.

Nothing taken for granted

Even the most rudimentary facts, however, are not taken for granted. "In many foreign societies, the leaders mask their backgrounds as much as possible," a CIA man told us. "It's not like in the United States where you have everything from FBI files to job applications to track down a personal history."

An astonishing amount of information can be picked up quite legitimately by America's observers overseas. For example, a military attaché in Moscow became great friends with the Soviet Defense Minister during the Khrushchev years. While the stuffy Soviet bigwigs would shuffle about at official receptions, the attaché and minister would toss down vodka and swap stories about their superiors.

Of course, electronic eavesdropping is often used. In Belgium a CIA operative learned that the Chinese Communist embassy was planning to move. He quickly located the new site and rented the house next door. Bugs were placed in the new embassy before the Chinese moved in. The CIA picked up an earful before the bugs were eventually discovered.

While the field operatives are poking

Agency reports say India's Indira Gandhi (left) and Israel's Golda Meir are feuding. Golda thinks Indira is soft on Egypt; Mrs. Gandhi sees Israel as a "warmonger."

curred during Nikita Khrushchev's state visit to the United States in 1959. CIA men managed to isolate and bore triumphantly to the labs the Soviet leader's solid waste for medical analysis.

'Targets of opportunity'

Sophisticated photographic techniques are also used to observe leaders at long distance. Called "targets of opportunity" in CIA jargon, the photos are compared with old ones for signs of stress, aging and disease. A blotchy skin, for example, can indicate a liver problem.

Through long-range observation, the CIA learned of the late Egyptian President Nasser's heart condition and of the late Indonesian President Sukarno's visits to a Viennese specialist. (Surveillance of Sukarno, incidentally, revealed he liked his hosts to have a woman for him on state visits.)

Long-range photography settled a rumor, back before the Chinese-American detente, whether Mao Tse-tung was sick and using a double for public appearances. A photograph was taken of Mao in public. By measuring the length of the earlobe and by determining that his facial wart was in exactly the right place, the agency certified him as genuine. Then by closely examining the picture, CIA analysts learned that the aging leader was not critically ill as had been rumored.

For all the sophisticated methods the CIA uses to gather intelligence on world leaders, however, nothing is quite as revealing as a face-to-face meeting. More can be learned from one tough negotiating session than from a 10,000-page report prepared by the CIA. For it's not the juicy tidbits so much as the basic attitudes that matter in the world of power politics.

Photographs of rarely seen leaders like China's Mao Tse-tung can give trained analysts valuable clues to their health.

ARE YOU EATING TOO MUCH SALT?

The fast pace of modern living has changed our eating habits dramatically, and this has brought with it an increase in consumption of sodium chloride, ordinary table salt. Snack foods, convenience foods, and foods served in restaurants tend to be heavily seasoned with salt. And too much salt may be harmful.

What are the possible pitfalls of salt?

The relationship between salt and hypertension or high blood pressure, one of the major causes of strokes and coronaries, is well established. Excess salt may also contribute to problems related to overweight. And many doctors prescribe low sodium diets in the treatment of arthritis and severe menstrual discomfort and depression. Of course, no drastic changes in diet should be undertaken without consultation with your doctor.

If you want to reduce your intake of salt or if your physician prescribes a low sodium diet, you should know about Adolph's, America's leading salt substitute. Adolph's looks, sprinkles and tastes like salt and has no bitter aftertaste. That's why many doctors have been recommending it for over 15 years.

You can find Adolph's Salt Substitute and Adolph's Seasoned Salt Substitute in the dietetic section of your food store.

Sea Bass—Oriental Style

by Beth Merriman

PARADE FOOD EDITOR

When he's not hosting What's My Line? on television, Larry Blyden finds relaxation in cooking up one of his gourmet specialties in his well-appointed kitchen.

Steamed sea bass—with spices lending a subtle, delicate flavor—is a favorite, and his recipe has the beauty of simplicity. "Steaming is a quick and easy way to fix fish," he says, "and I just bought a Chinese wok to do the job and for other oriental dishes." Lacking a wok, you can use an ordinary steamer—or simply put a colander in a pot with a bit of water.

Steamed Fish

Sea bass (1½ to 2 lbs.)

1 tablespoon chopped leek

1 teaspoon shredded ginger or powdered ginger

½ teaspoon salt

Dill weed

Soy sauce

1 garlic clove

1 tablespoon peanut oil (or 1 tablespoon vegetable oil)

2 teaspoons sesame oil (or 1 tablespoon vegetable oil)

Score and fillet the bass, or have this done at the fish market.

Combine leek, ginger and salt; rub into fish. Sprinkle lightly with dill; add a few drops soy sauce. Steam in a wok or steamer for about 15 minutes. Turn over and steam for another five minutes. Crush garlic clove into peanut oil and sesame oil, cook over high heat until garlic is slightly browned. Strain oils to remove garlic. Brush oils over fish, just prior to removing from heat. Makes four to five servings.

Keeping Up...With Youth

by Pamela Swift

New Expression

American youths, who are quick to integrate new expressions into their lexicons, are now using "watergate" as a synonym for "ripoff," which means to steal.

"Don't watergate me, Jack," means don't compromise me; don't make me a heavy; don't involve me in any conspiracy to burglarize, lie, or pull a fast one.

"Don't watergate my cigarettes or lighter," means don't steal them.

"Are you trying to pull a watergate on me?" means are you trying to involve me in something illegal?

Watergate is rapidly developing into one of the most active verbs in the youth idiom.

House Page

Carl Albert, Speaker of the House and a hawk on the U.S. involvement in Vietnam, has made a peace offering to the female sex. He has appointed Felda Looper, 18, of Heavener, Okla., his home state, the first female page in the House of Representatives.

Three years ago, Albert reports, Felda wrote him a letter stating that there were no girl pages in the House of Representatives and urged him to do something about it. Now he has. The House thereupon joins the Senate and the Supreme Court in employing girl pages.

Police & Campus Unrest

Three years after the killing of students at Kent State University and Jackson State College, a special committee of the American Association of University Professors, appointed to study the causes and implications of the 1970 campus tragedies, recently reported that colleges and universities are endangered by the growing tendency to call in police and to rely on court injunctions when trouble develops.

The committee recommends that no one be appointed head of a college who does not have an adequate understanding of security and police procedures.

"At Kent and Jackson," the committee reports, "rapid expansion of campus security forces had become almost a reflex response to student unrest. If one seeks to restore harmony and confidence to a divided and troubled campus, the doubling of the number of blue uniforms and black cars seen by students may increase rather than reduce tensions."

The report suggests the development of better communications between colleges and government. In retrospect, the problems at Kent and Jackson inspired a wave of reactionary legislation at the state level.

DAVID CASSIDY: WILL HIS FANS APPROVE THE NEW ADULT IMAGE HE SEEKS?

Cassidy Fights his Image

David Cassidy wants to change his image. The 23-year-old singer, irritated that relatively few of his fans are beyond the age of 14, wants to record more mature songs and to work in more adult entertainment.

A TV bit-actor before he became a regular on "The Partridge Family," Cassidy has sold more than 10 million recordings in the past year. Overnight, an industry devoted to separating little girls from their allowances developed around him.

Anxious to earn a fortune, Cassidy agreed to let his voice be electronically altered so that it would sound higher and therefore younger.

But now Cassidy is changing. He's fired his public relations man, discarded his record producer; in short, is breaking out of his profitable cocoon. A few months ago, on tour in Europe, he hit the nightclub circuit, smoked cigars, drank wine, lived it up as befitting his age.

"It's been difficult," he says, "projecting an image which doesn't coincide with my age, outlook, taste, and interests."

But it's also been tremendously profitable. Cassidy is deeply invested in Hawaiian real estate, recently bought three racehorses is financially secure for at least the next 20 years.

How to collect from Social Security at any age!

by Jack Haslinger

Would you like to know how much money you have invested in Social Security right to the penny? Then would you like to know how to get the most from that investment including all the brand new Social Security benefits? Now you can do both by using the short easy coupon at the bottom of this page. Here is the way it works. The left half of the coupon will be sent to the proper government office. They will run a check on your account and then send you a report in a confidential sealed envelope. This report will tell you how much of your earnings have been recorded in your Social Security account year by year. There is no charge for this service, not even postage.

The right half of the coupon will be used as a shipping label to send you a copy of a new book entitled, "How to collect from Social Security at any age." If you think that you have to wait until retirement age to start collecting your Social Security benefits, this book will really open your eyes. Here are some of the little-known facts about Social Security you will find out about in this book:

- How to increase the amount of your payment if you are already on Social Security.
- How to collect your share of the brand new Social Security benefits just passed by Congress.
- How to qualify for Social Security disability pensions at any age.
- How to increase your Social Security benefits.
- How to get Social Security benefits when you are pregnant.
- How to make your whole family eligible for Social Security benefits, even your youngest children.

- How to replace a lost Social Security card.
- How to replace a lost Social Security check.
- How to get a refund if you have overpaid your Social Security taxes. (Studies show that two out of three people overpay.)
- How to figure out what your Social Security retirement payments should be.
- Should you tattoo your Social Security number on your body?
- What papers do you need in order to file a Social Security claim?
- How ten million people who are only 30 years old, on the average, collect Social Security.

•Should you get a divorce in order to get more Social Security? (a lot of people already have.)

•Should you have two Social Security cards?

•How to get a huge lump sum Social Security payoff.

•How to make sure your employer is not cheating you on your Social Security.

•How you may be cheating yourself out of your Social Security benefits.

•When are the five times you should get in touch with your Social Security office?

•How to work and still get Social Security benefits.

•How to cash in on Social Security even if you've never paid a penny into it.

•How to get hospital and medical insurance for the aged.

•How students between the ages of 18 and 22 can get Social Security cash benefits.

•How to get the special Social Security benefits that are only for veterans.

Although this book can mean hundreds and perhaps thousands of dollars to you, it is priced at only $3.00. Remember, it is not enough to qualify for your Social Security benefits. To get your benefits you must know how to apply for them. The book tells you how to qualify, who to contact—including all necessary addresses, and what to say. This is a 100% no risk offer. If you do not like the book, return it and your $3.00 will be immediately refunded. You will still get the confidential report on your Social Security account.

If you do not take advantage of your new Social Security benefits, you are only cheating yourself, after all, you have already paid for them. It is easy to start getting your new Social Security benefits. Just fill out both parts of the coupon below. Mail the coupon and $3.00 in cash, check or money order to The Good News Publishing Co., 1818 Whipple Ave. N.W., Canton, Ohio, 44708. The book will be sent to you immediately by return mail. Your confidential Social Security report will be mailed to you separately as soon as the government has finished checking on your account. Checks and money orders should be made payable to The Good News Publishing Company.

TAKE A LOOK AT THESE NEW IDEAS FOR YOUR HOME AND FAMILY ■ BY PETER DRYDEN

NEW KITCHEN TOOL SET: Carved out of solid hardwood, these new tools (above) are resistant to stains and odors, and are designed to facilitate lifting, pouring, mixing, whipping, and turning. The set includes one large and one small mixing tool; a 2-holed tool for general blending, whipping and creaming; a single-holed tool for blending sauces and draining; and a lifter with flat edge to slip under pancakes and eggs. $6.95 postpaid. Hendry, Dept. PP, Box 783, Upper Montclair, N. J. 07043.

LESS MOWING: One spraying of a new "lawnmower in a can," claims the maker, can slow grass growth up to 90 percent without harming the grass—and can reduce your mowing from an average of about 17 times a season to once or twice. The preparation also is said to eliminate most broadleaf weeds. $8.95 a gal. (good for 1000 sq. ft.). Pittsburgh Chemical, Dept. PP, 6515 Hamilton, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15206.

PONTOON BOAT—PLUS: This new pontoon boat (right) also functions on land as camper or hunting trailer. As a boat, with suggested minimum 65 and maximum 85 HP, it can easily pull water skiers or be used for fishing and cruising. It has 25' aluminum pontoons, 22' x 8' marine plywood deck, 7' of headroom inside, sleeps 5, and is equipped with propane stove, fresh water system, sink and wet bar, icebox, helmstand, lights, horns and compass. With enclosure, it becomes a tent trailer on land. Details: Kayot, Dept. PP, Box 789, Mankato, Minn. 56001.

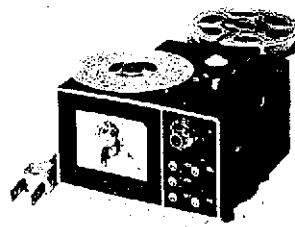

NEW FOR CANDLEMAKING: You should find it easy to make a garden of candle flowers with a new flower-making set (left) that contains the first flexible wax for home use. The special wax, which never completely hardens, makes it easy to cut out petal patterns with ordinary scissors and shape them three-dimensionally. You craft the center core of a flower candle with regular wax for even burning. About $8 in stores. Skil-Craft Corp., Dept. PP, 325 West Huron St. Chicago, Ill. 60610.

TO MODERNIZE YOUR BATHROOM: Here's a new 4-piece bath and shower cove (above) designed for relatively simple do-it-yourself installation in an existing bathroom. The 4 pieces—bathing unit and 3 walls—can be moved through existing doorways, installed one after the other in logical order in a matter of hours, and, once installed, appear and function as a one-piece unit. Included: shampoo shelf at eye level, built-in safety grab bar, self-draining soap rest at bathing level. About $200. Details: Borg-Warner Plumbing Products, Dept. PP, 201 E. Fifth St., Mansfield, Ohio 44902.

MINI MOVIE PROJECTOR: A built-in, transistorized radio is one unusual feature of this new super 8 mm movie projector (left). It provides back-screen projection for daylight viewing, has forward and fast film rewind, single frame freeze control, view and edit "still" frame, and operates on three small batteries or household current. $27.50. Global Communications Systems, Dept. PP, 2 Penn Plaza, Suite 1500, New York, N. Y. 10001.

Join the Revival

■ Needlepoint, which got its start way back in the 16th century, is enjoying a revival today. Happily, a new book, The Easy Art of Needlepoint, is now being made available to PARADE's readers for only $1. A valuable aid for both the expert and beginner, this book goes into the fundamentals of stitch and canvas in an easy-to-understand way. Bargello, basketweave, continental, Hungarian—these and other terms are explained fully.

What kind of yarn is best and how much do you need? Which needle is appropriate and what accessory equipment should you have? How do you start a needlepoint design? The book answers all these questions.

Experienced needlepointers will also find practical tips in this book. And all will enjoy the 10 easy-to-complete designs including a Leo the Jungle Lion wall hanging; a personalized, flowered book cover; an intricately decorated eyeglass case; even a novel daffodil-patterned brick doorstep cover. The instructions are set forth in detail. And for those who want to try originals, the book tells how to design them yourself. Included is a special section on ways to needlepoint the 26 letters of the alphabet. So don't wait; get into the swing and send for the book today.

TO ORDER:

Send $1 for each copy of Easy Art of Needlepoint in cash, check or money order to: PARADE, P.O. Box 144, Old Chelsea station, New York, N.Y. 10011. Please allow four weeks for delivery.

DIET IMPERIAL DETHRONED!

The world's most popular diet margarine was trampled in a taste test. New Diet Imperial won!

"I was one of 398 women across the country asked to compare the tastes of two diet margarines. We didn't know what brands they were. We were just asked to taste them and make our choice.

"Know what?

"65% of the women with a preference chose new Diet Imperial.

"And we didn't choose it over just any margarine either. The other brand in the test was old Diet Imperial, the best selling diet margarine in the country! That had been my regular brand!

"I think new Diet Imperial tastes even more like butter. Maybe you will too. Try it!"

Employing a plastic model, sixth-graders at the Lines School learn the location of the heart, while their head-sets play a recorded lecture. The classes are designed to help them avoid heart trouble in their later years.

Deep in the Heart of the Sixth Grade

by Larry Jackson

MARK WENZEL, ILL. BARRINGTON, ILL. Mark Wenzel isn't exactly a prime candidate for a coronary. He's lithe, athletic and eats sensibly. And besides, he's only 12 years old. But he's concerned about his heart anyway.

Along with 293 other sixth-graders at the Arnett C. Lines School here Mark is getting a head start toward understanding his heart. And what he's learning may save his life someday.

The Lines program is one of dozens of new classes being offered in schoolrooms across the nation, all with the same purpose—to cut the mounting rate of heart attacks by teaching children to avoid them years in advance.

At Northwest Community Hospital, students and principal John Snow watch Jim Sturm run in place, while nurse Mary Oppenheimer uses a cardiac monitor to check pulse.

"Last year more than 750,000 Americans died from heart attacks," Mrs. Virginia Newman, program developer, tells her classes. "Most could have been prevented with good eating habits and proper exercises."

The classes, which are limited to the last four months of the sixth-grade year, begin appropriately enough about Valentine's Day. First, students prepare a list of 50 questions they hope to answer during the course.

"Somebody always asks if the heart really is valentine-shaped," chuckles Mrs. Newman, "or whether you can die of a broken heart."

Films and field trips

The 40 hours of classroom work are sprinkled with colorful films, lectures by visiting doctors and field trips to coronary care units at nearby hospitals.

After learning the textbook basics, the students are given a chance to dissect animal hearts, a task they face with a cool if not unblinkingly clinical eye. To learn about human heart disease they usually examine photographs of hearts damaged by fatty cholesterol deposits and arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteries). But during this year's class a doctor brought in a diseased human heart from an autopsy for their inspection.

"You mean that thing was part of a real person?" exclaimed one youngster. "Yecch!"

The doctor pointed at globs of fat blocking an artery leading into the heart. "See this," he warned. "This stuff will kill you." The students nodded in approval.

By the time the classes are finished in June students know more about the heart than most laymen—and then some. They play a dizzying game called "Coronary Quest," which they invented to test their knowledge.

"I am collateral circulation; what am I?" chirps one questioner. "I am a blood platelet; what's my job?" asks another.

Collateral circulation, a student patiently tells a baffled adult, is the network of vessels the heart sets up to bypass sections damaged by a coronary. And a blood platelet helps form a clot at the site of a wound.

Sometimes even the experts are stopped by the sixth-graders' questions. One student asked a heart specialist why a particular valve closed a certain way with each heartbeat.

"The specialist was stumped," recalls Mrs. Newman. "He said he'd have to look it up."

Some people may feel sixth-graders are a little bit too young to benefit from the heart training, but Mrs. Newman disagrees. She's been teaching the heart unit ever since attending two Heart Association teacher workshops in California in 1965 and is convinced the 11- and 12-year-olds "are just the right age."

Beating the bad habits

"They haven't had time to develop damaging habits yet," she says. "They really get the message, then make sure their parents get it, too."

School Principal John Snow was one of the first adults the kids bugged. "After listening to those kids I can't look an egg in the face," he laments. "They kept telling me about the cholesterol count."

Snow estimates that at least 50 percent of the sixth-graders have prompted a change for the better in the way their parents live. In student Diane Bergstrom's home, for example, Mrs. Bergstrom has put the family on a diet, her husband Don has lost 25 pounds and the entire family exercises strenuously on bicycles.

Norman Hugo eats less saturated fats and exercises more since his son Bill warned him of the risks of heart attack.

"Bill didn't tell me anything I didn't already know," says the elder Hugo, who is a doctor. "I learned all that in medical school. But Bill made me put it to good use."

Sometimes the nagging pays off dramatically. One student's father had complained of chest pains but had put off seeing a doctor until his daughter got tough.

"I knew it wasn't right," says the sixth-grader. "Finally mom and I convinced him to go to the doctor. He had a minor heart disease. The doctor said daddy would have had a bad heart attack if he hadn't gotten a checkup."

At home, student Bill Hugo gives his family a thorough rundown on heart information, even though his dad is a doctor. The family took Bill's advice on diet and exercise.

My Favorite Jokes

by Hilda Vincent

EDITOR'S NOTE: Hilda Vincent has broadened the horizons of her comic character, the hard luck gal, by entertaining on cruises as well as in clubs. And, even her performances on land have sometimes taken place in a slightly less conventional context than her usual club dates. Last year she was part of a show at the Civic Theater in Chicago called A Night at the Palace. "Except for me," she says, "all the other acts were old-time vaudeville—but it was such an opportunity—how many performers get a chance to work in vaudeville? Just think, another 10 years and I'll be big in radio..."

This year alone Miss Vincent has worked in Canada, Miami Beach, Puerto Rico and the Catskill resort area. And here are some comic moments that she'd like to share with us:

For the last year I've been working out of town. Well, being on the road can get very lonely, and I became aware of just how lonely, after I had a rather weird experience. One night, I was in Manhattan, and I got mugged. The next day I left for Boston and my first day there my purse was snatched—by the same guy who mugged me in Manhattan. I recognized him, but you know, it was nice—just to see a familiar face.

I believe in Women's Lib, and I wish I could be liberated overnight, but I can't because of the way I was brought up. You see, when I was a kid, I was told over and over again that my brother was far superior to me—you know who told me that? My brother! Yes, then my mother would tell me, "Hilda, most men like dumb girls." I said: "Now look, Ma, I'm not going to act dumb." She said, "Don't act, just be yourself."

And I agree that most men do think of us as objects, not people. One fellow said to me, "Hilda, I want something soft and pink that I can call my own." Soft and pink—I went out and got him an eraser.

I'm not anti-men or marriage, I've been married and divorced. After my marriage I was very upset; you see, I was brought up to believe "marriage is forever, for always." Well, so far the divorce is more successful than the marriage was—my divorce is lasting longer.

When I was married, my husband and I had a big problem with communication. I just couldn't get through to him. Finally I said, "Willy, dear, I'll do anything to save the marriage. What are you looking for in this marriage?" He said, "Another woman."

Even when we were getting divorced, communication was a problem. He said he wanted custody of the children. I said, "Willy, what are you talking about, we don't have any children." He had me confused with someone else.

Now I'm more philosophical. Now I know some marriages are golden, some are silver—my marriage was Teflon, didn't stick. Now I know I had the wrong attitude. I expected marriage to bring me instant happiness, I believed the romantic myth which I got from silly, romantic songs. As teen-agers, my boyfriend Ernie and I lived by those songs. Ernie said our song was "Dragnet." I remember that was tough to dance to. Ernie was only a kid, but he knew what he wanted. His dream was to become a cop so he could arrest his father.

One night we had a tremendous storm; the ship was tossing and turning, side to side, and I ran up to the main deck, and I saw the captain running around carrying trash, "What are you doing at a time like this with trash?" I asked him. He said, "My mother always told me, 'If you're going down, take the garbage!'"

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES.

THE PRICE OF WATERGATE

The continued growth of the FBI and the CIA depends largely upon the infusion of new blood; on young men of character and intellect, of creativeness and imagination, who are anxious to join those two agencies.

Watergate has so damaged the reputations of those two investigative and intelligence-gathering organizations that much time will have to elapse before the nation's most qualified college graduates will again seek to join the Federal Bureau of Investigation or the Central Intelligence Agency.

To employ the CIA in shabby, sordid domestic political espionage, to compromise the long and hard-earned esteem of the FBI, to disillusion the youth of America by involving the CIA and the FBI in conspiracies and actions to obstruct rather than further justice is possibly the single most awful aspect of the entire Watergate imbroglio.

How many young people will want to join those agencies after Watergate?

FEWER BLACK DEMOCRATS

Since 1932 when Franklin D. Roosevelt put together the New Deal voting coalition, U.S. blacks have consistently voted Democratic.

A survey by the University of Michigan, however, reveals that the Democratic Party can no longer take the black vote for granted. Since 1968, the survey reports, 16 percent fewer American blacks identify with the Democratic Party. An increasing number have become independents, declining to identify with either party.

During the Kennedy and Johnson Administrations, after eight years of civil rights legislation under two Democratic Presidents, 85 percent of the blacks declared themselves Democrats.

Last year, however, when Arthur H. Miller directed the survey for the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research, the 85 percent had dropped to 69 percent.

Miller says the blacks suffer from disappointment and unfulfilled expectations. Martin Kilson of Harvard, a specialist in black politics, attributes the change to an increase in black prosperity. As more blacks move into the middle class, he explains, they become more conservative, seeking to preserve the economic status they've achieved. Thus, their upward mobility inclines them toward more conservative politicians.

EXPANDING THE ARTS

In a year of budget-cutting, the surprise victor in President Nixon's 1974 budget is the arts. A remarkable $80 million has been allocated to the arts—more than twice the figure budgeted for the current year.

Most of it—$72.5 million—will be funneled through the National Endowment for the Arts, and the remainder will go directly to state art councils.

Museums and other cultural centers will find themselves favored by federal spending resulting from interest in the 1976 American Bicentennial.

New York's Metropolitan Museum, for example, has received official recognition from Washington's American Revolution Bicentennial Commission.

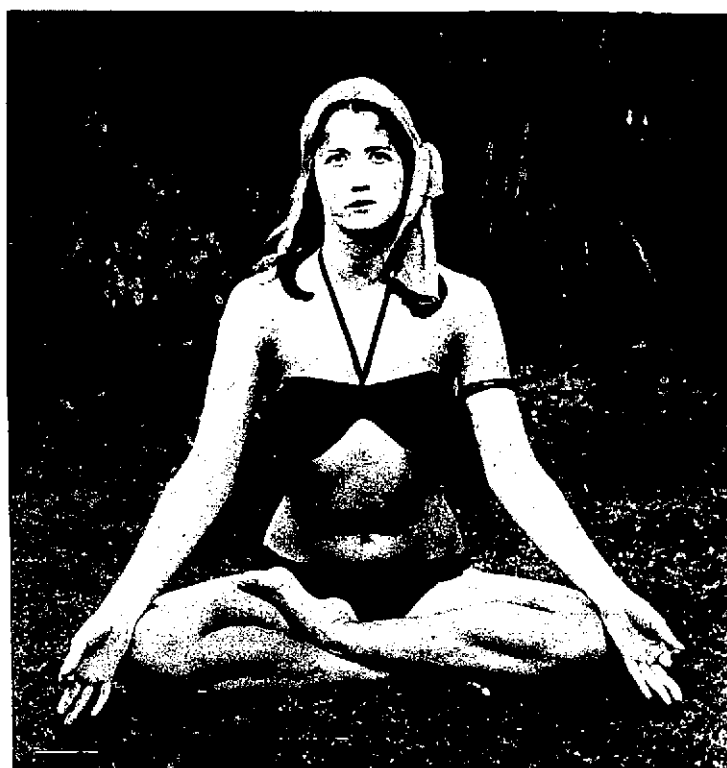

This may clear the way for partial federal funding of the museum's controversial American Bicentennial Wing to be built in Central Park. Park environmentalists have opposed the project, but the museum hopes to get $3 million for the wing from the federal government.

IT PAYS TO TALK SOFTLY

For years public officials in Rome have pleaded—unsuccessfully—with fellow citizens to reduce noise.

Last month the Rome daily newspaper "Il Tempo" fired a warning salvo that may finally get some attention: Noise, the newspaper reported, appears to reduce virility. The effect, says the paper "also includes impotency." It is still too early to tell whether this affront to sexuality has curbed the Roman decibel.

But once you own it, you'll wonder how you lived a day without this "English Fog" fine mist sprayer.

My wife, Mrs. Wallace Brown, started using it on the house plants—they got greener, healthier. She uses one in the laundry, because it does a better job than a spray iron. She even uses it when cleaning windows. She told me the other night that the "English Fog" mist-er kept cut flowers alive longer.

Just fill container with liquid, press plunger lightly with thumb—out comes fine "English Fog" mist. 3½" in diameter—5½" high—Solid brass. Lacquered. Makes a great gift for a house plant nut.

I told Mrs. Wallace Brown that "stuff" wasn't a very nice description of what this held.

"Tell 'em stuff" she said, "and any woman will know right off that you mean a place to put letters, bills, messages for the family, keys, such stuff." Has a slot for each, 3 golden metal hooks for keys. Is made of handsome, maple finished wood. Authentic colonial design—even has the colonial bird up their on top. Attaches easily to the wall. I couldn't believe my eyes when I came across this the other day. Thought you couldn't get them anymore. I remember one of the beautiful little Blue Delft lamps on my mother's bed table. Just as I remember them, too. And the shade is just as it always was—fine silk, hand-screened in the Delft blue. Whole thing stands nine and three-quarter inches tall. Ideal for a bed table or night light or hall.

MINI-NUKES The Pentagon is developing an arsenal of miniature nuclear weapons which U.S. officials hope will overcome the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's military manpower inferiority to Soviet forces in Central Europe.

The mini-nukes will combine low explosive power with regulated blast and radiation characteristics. They will be attached either to artillery or to laser-guided "smart" bombs recently introduced over North Vietnam.

Officials claim the new weapon will be able to explode with as little force as 50 tons of TNT within 2 or 3 feet of a target. Previously, nuclear weapons have rarely come any smaller than 1000 tons of TNT.

Details concerning the new generation of miniature nuclear weapons were revealed last month in France at the end of a European-American conference on allied strategy.

One feature of the new weapon, scheduled to become operational in 3 to 5 years, is that blast, radiation and fallout could be varied. Conceivably a bomb could be dropped, with no blast, to disperse radiation, which could kill all human life in the area without affecting other surroundings.

Mini-nukes have been considered for many years, but only recently have American weapons laboratories developed the technology to make the little explosives practical.

Development was forbidden during the 1960's by former Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and his adviser Dr. Alain Enthoven. They disliked the concept of a real battlefield nuclear weapon, sensing that our allies might feel such weapons would enable them to reduce their armed forces manpower.

Contrary to McNamara's decree, the work continued secretly.

United States and European officials expect some Congressional opposition to any system which appears to bring about the immediate use of nuclear weapons. Moreover, many Congressmen question the credibility of military plans based on the use of tactical nuclear weapons.

Meanwhile, Congressional opposition to another sort of tactical nuclear weapons has emerged. Former Defense Secretary Elliot Richardson had been bypassed when the military recently ordered several thousand nuclear shells for two kinds of artillery.

Sen. Stuart Symington (D., Mo.) questioned the need for the shells which would, a Pentagon spokesman said, "provide increased simplicity, greater capability and better reliability" for the stockpile of about 7000 tactical nuclear weapons already deployed in Europe.

Apparently Richardson did not know of the order because the Atomic Energy Commission buys nuclear weapons for the military, and the costs are included in the AEC budget rather than the Pentagon's.

'LOVE ADDICTS' Sexual promiscuity is a sign of alienation, says a Roslyn, N.Y. psychiatrist who interviewed 88 men and women, most of them "swingers," about their sex lives. Writing in the "Southern Medical Journal," Dr. I. Emery Breitner says he found most of his admittedly promiscuous subjects, both men and women, by reading their advertisements in "swingers" magazines for group sex activities, wife-swapping, extramarital sex, etc.

Most of these people "clearly stated they were lonely and were looking for acceptance, approval, companionship or love," Dr. Breitner reports. "The central problem seemed to be a need to be loved. They wished to receive love, but were unable to give it."

His conclusion: "Promiscuous people are 'love addicts,' who want to be loved all the time and be reassured that they are loved. For them the only way to achieve this is sex."

PARADE • JUNE 17, 1971

"This newspaper isn't written for everyone... but it might be just what you are looking for!"

Frank Blair, NBC-TV's Today Show

"Are you the kind of person who rejects quick, superficial explanations... who likes to dig a little deeper and learn the real reasons behind important events? The kind of person who's apt to ask a few more questions at a business or PTA meeting... demand more facts from a salesman before buying... really think something through before making up your mind?"

Then there's a publication you should know about: The National Observer, the national weekly newspaper for the venture of living. The Observer is published by Dow Jones & Company, the same people who publish The Wall Street Journal.

When you read The National Observer, you not only learn what's happening, but also how events and issues affect the way you live. You don't just get a few quick flashes—you get all the facts. And you learn how they fit together.

Of course, this kind of intensive reporting takes more than a paragraph or two. That's why National Observer stories are sometimes longer than those in other publications. It's written for readers who are willing to give the world a little more of their time.

And because these people are usually the kind who have the most interests, every issue of The National Observer covers a broad range of topics: government, labor, business, consumer affairs, science, the arts, books, entertainment, travel, fashions, cooking, education, and much more.

Today more than 1,800,000 readers across the United States—thoughtful, intelligent people who want and need to make sense of what's happening—read and rely on The National Observer.

In fact, a national independent TIME Louis Harris poll has shown The Observer to be one of the three most trusted newspapers in the United States. The others are The Wall Street Journal, also published by Dow Jones & Company, and The New York Times.

In this hurry-up world, a lot of people accept news as something to get on the run—or in between their favorite TV shows. The Observer is not for them. But does it sound like the kind of newspaper that was meant for someone like you?

If so, you're invited to try The National Observer under a special trial subscription offer: 17 weeks for $2.97.

You needn't send any money now. Just mail the coupon. The Observer will bill you later.

LIFE STYLE U.S.A. Despite inflation, Watergate, taxes and half a dozen ecological problems, Americans never lose their enthusiasm for a good time.

A study by the Conference Board, a non-profit research organization largely supported by business interests, offers the following evidence that America is riding the crest of a leisure boom:

(1) More than 8 million Americans will travel abroad in 1973 compared to 7.4 million last year.

(2) Skiing has grown from 50,000 participants in the 1940's to 4.5 million now.

(3) Almost 10 million bicycles were sold in 1972, a 13 percent increase over 1971.

(4) Eighty million Americans currently participate in picnicking; more than 70 million in swimming, 60 million in a variety of other sports. Walking and fishing comprise 50 million participants, while 40 million Americans claim to be boaters, and 35 million say they go camping and bicycling.

(6) The vacation of the average American has increased from 1.8 weeks to 2.2 weeks.

SUN, SURF AND SAND ATTRACT MILLIONS OF AMERICANS.

HUMAN ERROR Most automobile accidents are caused by errors in human judgment--not vehicle-related deficiencies.

A current study by the Indiana University Institute for Research in Public Safety has disclosed that only 6 percent of the accidents studied involved mechanical malfunction. Fifteen percent resulted from environmental factors, and a whopping 73 stemmed from human error.

Nearly half--43 percent--of the mechanical malfunction accidents resulted from brake failures. Tire and wheel trouble caused 29 percent, and defects in steering mechanisms and communications lights and signals resulted in another 11 percent, the study showed.

To reduce accidents caused by the human factor, many safety experts are concentrating on driver drowsiness and inattention.

Researchers at Duke University in Durham, N.C., recently quizzed 1500 license-renewal applicants on the subject. Sixty-four percent admitted having suffered drowsiness while driving, and 10 percent of these said they had had near-accidents because of their drowsiness. Lack of sleep and a recent meal were major causes of sleepiness.

ANEMIA & THE PILL

Women who are taking the "pill" should increase their vitamin intake or run the risk of becoming anemic, reports Dr. Rosalind Alfin-Slater, professor of nutrition and biochemistry at the University of California at Los Angeles.

"Particularly needed by these women are Vitamin B2, a B vitamin known as folic acid, Vitamin E and certain other substances, such as zinc and chromium," suggested Dr. Alfin-Slater at an American Oil Chemists' Society meeting in New Orleans last month.

Furthermore, she explained, when women on the pill don't get enough vitamins or minerals, they not only may become anemic, but they may also develop certain skin ailments.

HIGH-RISE FIRETRAPS

Those new high-rise apartment buildings that look so safe and solid can quickly turn into dangerous firetraps, according to Gerald L. Maatman, president of the National Loss Control Service Corp., a fire protection engineering company.

Even the "fire-resistant" tag placed on such buildings doesn't mean much, says Maatman, who recently completed a fire study for the city of Chicago. The biggest danger to life, he notes, doesn't come from the blaze itself but from smoke. "A fire doesn't have to sweep through a whole building to kill you," Maatman explains. "It can burn only one apartment unit, and yet still produce a fatal amount of smoke." Recent examples of such fatalities include nine dead in an Atlanta blaze in an 11-story apartment structure, and four lives lost in a New Orleans fire in a 15-story office building.

Preventing fires, of course, is the key to saving lives, Maatman says. However, he urges a set of built-in safety devices to minimize deaths or damages when fire does break out, including sprinklers in areas like boiler rooms, automatic alarm systems and smoke-proof stairwells.

For individuals, he offers some common-sense tips for fire emergencies:

- Call the fire department immediately. Tell them the floor and building number, as well as the street address. Never assume someone else turned in an alarm.
- Leave the building immediately, but before exiting a room place your hand on the door, palm down. Do not attempt to open the door if it feels warm within five seconds. If it's cool, open the door slightly and check for smoke.

• Stay in the room if there is fire or a substantial amount of smoke in the hallway. Use wet towels to seal cracks around the door.

• If you feel the corridor can be used, alert the other occupants on your floor and go to the closest exit stairway. Be sure to close the room and stairway doors behind you, making sure they remain unlocked.

• Do not use elevators, as they may be already out of service or malfunctioning.

• In the event you are trapped in your apartment and smoke enters the room, open one window slightly. In buildings where windows do not open stay close to the floor.

You may accept or reject selections as follows: every four weeks you will receive a new copy of the Club's music magazine, which describes the regular selection for each musical interest... plus hundreds of alternate selections from every field of music. (Since you'll receive 13 informative magazines a year, you'll always be up-to-date on the most current hits.)

If you do not want any selection offered, just mail the response card by the date specified (you'll have at least ten days in which to make your decision).

If you want only the regular selection for your musical interest, you need do nothing — it will be shipped automatically (naturally, you may return the regular selection at our expense and for full credit if you did not have at least ten days in which to decide).

If you want any of the other selections offered, just order them on the response card and mail it by the date specified.

and about four times a year, we will also offer some special selections (usually at a discount off regular Club prices), which you may reject by mailing the special dated form provided... or accept by simply doing nothing.

You'll be eligible for our bonus plan upon completing your enrollment agreement — a plan which enables you to save at least 33% on all your future purchases. Act now!

Now! MOTALOY gives your car's rings and valves a replating job while you drive!

SEE HOW ONLY $8 WORTH OF MOTALOY RECONDITIONS YOUR ENGINE - HELPS PREVENT THE NEED FOR A $100 RING AND VALVE JOB!

HERE'S HOW MOTALOY WORKS!

Here's all you do and you do it only once! Just drop 4 Motaloxy Tabs into your gas tank and this single treatment does all this...

HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS IN USE!

RESTORES LOST POWER AND COMPRESSION HERE

REMOVES PLATING ACTION HERE

STOPS OIL LEAKAGE FROM RINGS HERE

SAVES PULS HERE

PULLS SCORCHED CYLINDER HERE

STOPS PISTON HERE

WINNER OF THE GOLD MEDAL OF THE INTERNATIONAL INVENTORS FAIR

TESTS BY TRINITY TESTING LABS PROVE MOTALOY RESULTS!

Radioactive Isotope Tracer Tests Confirm Motaloxy's Plating-Action!

The activation of the Motaloxy and the subsequent tracing operations of the Motaloxy was conducted by an independent research laboratory especially licensed by the Atomic Energy Commission to supervise the industrial application of radioactive isotopes.

Approximate Amounts of Activated Motaloxy Deposited on the Surfaces (after approx. 60 hours of operation)

Piston Rings	Light
Piston	Light
Cylinder Walls	Light
Intake Valve Face	Very Heavy
Exhaust Valve Face	Heavy
Intake Valve Seat	Heavy
Exhaust Valve Seat	Medium

The above tracing of the radioactive Motaloxy is positive proof of the actual transfer of the Motaloxy particles from the gasoline tank on to the surfaces of the above surveyed parts of the engine.

Just pour 4 Motaloxy tabs into your gas tank... and you've started your engine rebuilding job! Each tab is a scientifically compounded alloy of 9 metals and elements. As you drive, tiny Motaloxy particles are released into the fuel. These Motaloxy molecules are carried through the fuel line into the combustion chamber... where the intense heat of ignition activates them to soften, then remove carbon deposits. Then, Motaloxy starts metal-plating pitted and worn surfaces of cylinder walls, piston rings, valve seats, and stems.

A SINGLE MOTALOXY TREATMENT DOES ALL THIS FOR YOUR ENGINE!

The more you drive, the more protection Motaloxy deposits in the form of a fine, anti-friction metal plating that rebuilds, smooths, and protects vital surfaces! As Motaloxy continues to plate and re-plate, engine compression is increased without a ring and valve job! Gas mileage improves, your engine eats less oil! And over fifteen years of use by over a million motorists - some of them with cars that have clocked over 100,000 miles after a single Motaloxy treatment - prove that Motaloxy can keep your engine running younger and peppier... for years longer!

PROTECTS NEW ENGINES...REJUVENATES OLD ONES!

Getting a new car? Start it off with a Motaloxy treatment - 6 dollars of protection that can mean invaluable extra engine life for your car. Motaloxy can actually help maintain full factory compression for the life of your car... so you'll get better performance for years longer... and a better trade-in or resale price whenever you decide to sell! And Motaloxy's track record on cars that have rolled up 50,000... 70,000... even 90,000 miles shows fantastic results in improved compression, lower gas and oil consumption, better pickup, smoother running - just as if the engine were years younger! Give your car's engine a new... and longer... lease on life with amazing Motaloxy! Remember - a single Motaloxy treatment lasts for the life of your car! And Motaloxy cannot harm even the finest engine in any way!

TRY MOTALOXY AT OUR RISK!

A complete Motaloxy package (4 tabs) is only $6.00. Try Motaloxy in your car for 30 days, to give its plating action a fair chance. If at the end of that time your car's engine isn't running smoother, your gas mileage isn't going up... if you gas mileage hasn't started to improve (as it will continue to do until you've reached full factory compression)... if you don't agree that Motaloxy has given your engine a new lease on life - just return the empty Motaloxy package, and we'll send you back every penny of your purchase price! If you do find Motaloxy does all the wonderful things we say it will, tell your friends about it. They'll thank you for spreading the good word!

*Gold Medal, Naples, Bronze Medal, Brussels, 1964.

USED AND ENDORSED BY OVER 1 MILLION MOTORISTS!

USERS REPORT OVER 100,000 MILES OF BETTER ENGINE PERFORMANCE!

"About 1960 I put some Motaloxy tabs in my gas tank, and I have driven this Mercedes-Benz 135,000 miles since!"

L.A.M., Sioux City, Iowa

"About 5 years ago I put Motaloxy-tablets in my Cadillac. I drove this car 125,000 miles and it never used any oil between changes - 1,500-2,000 miles!"

V.V.G., Cincinnati, Ohio

"My Chevrolet had 49,000 miles on it. It had noisy valves and other troubles. Motaloxy corrected all this. It is running better than new!"

L.F.M., Wallingboro, S.C.

"After using Motaloxy in my Chevrolet my compression increased an average of 31/2 pounds per cylinder, which to me is conclusive proof that Motaloxy will do everything that is claimed for it."

W.P.C., Elkhart, Ind.

"My Dodge used one quart of oil every 235 miles. After using Motaloxy I drove 1,145 miles and did not have to add any oil!"

D.W., Cincinnati, Ohio

"Since adding Motaloxy I have driven more than 1,500 miles and I must say that I am amazed about the wonderful results. My gas consumption improved 40%, and my oil consumption is practically nil."

W.G.K., Fort Atkinson, Wis.

"Motaloxy raised the compression in my Chevrolet from 63 to 100 pounds, plus giving me five more miles per gallon!"

W.A.C., Granite City, Ill.

"My tractor was in poor condition and ready for a complete overhaul job. Now after 5 months of use with Motaloxy added the tractor has more compression and oil consumption has decreased!"

E.N., New Plymouth, Idaho

"As instructor of the Automotive Shop I have been running a series of tests on your product 'Motaloxy' and I wish to take this opportunity to report to you our findings. I put Motaloxy in some 15 vehicles and have obtained marvelous results. In a majority of cases (all except 2 cars with burned valves beyond repair and/or broken oil and heat deceleration rings) the compression was brought up to factory specifications, oil consumption greatly reduced and gas mileage increased."

B.L.N., Instructor Automotive Shop, San Antonio, Texas

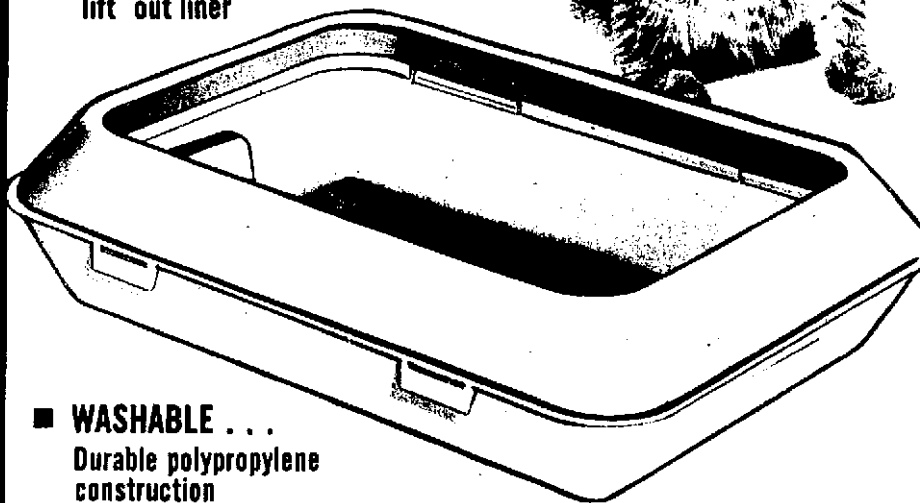

"We have sold Motaloxy for nearly 8 years and have yet to have a dissatisfied customer. A good number of those who purchase buy again when they change cars. Many refer their friends to us when they see the results Motaloxy gets in their own cars... a good job in increasing the efficiency and operation of their engine."

E.W., Service Owner, Texas

A FORMULA FOR LOVE

A Happy Home Recipe

Full Color Linen WALL HANGING Makes Charming Decoration

A Happy Home Recipe

- 4 cups of love
- 2 cups of loyalty
- 3 cups of forgiveness
- 1 cup of friendship
- 5 spoons of hope
- 2 spoons of tenderness
- 4 quarts of faith
- 1 barrel of laughter

Take love and loyalty, mix it thoroughly with faith.
Blend it with tenderness, kindness and understanding.
Add friendship and hope, sprinkle abundantly with laughter.
Bake it with sunshine. Serve daily with generous helpings.

Mix 4 cups of love, 2 cups of loyalty, 3 cups of forgiveness . . . Here's a recipe for everyone in the family . . . a recipe that anyone can try and is guaranteed to come out beautifully as long as you follow the instructions! It's a recipe for happiness . . . it's a recipe that will make your life deeper and more profound. Yet it's told so simply and directly, no one can fail to appreciate its message. In fact it's all the wisdom you'll ever need to keep your home full of joy . . . help you over the rough spots . . . and remind you of the contributions you must make to keep love alive and make it grow.

But this piece is more than a message, it's a beautiful decorator piece printed in full color on fine linen and finished with hardwood rods top and bottom. Just to look at it will lift your spirits. An ideal gift . . . a homey reminder that all life expects is for you to put in as much as you'd like to take out. A full 14" x 17" it's yours for only $1.99, and since it has such universal appeal, why not order another as a thoughtful gift, two for just $3.50 (please add 50c postage and handling with each order).

FAR BACK IN HUMAN HISTORY ASIATIC AND EUROPEAN RACES, AS WELL AS THE AMERICAN INDIAN, FOUND THE WILLOW TREE USEFUL FOR MANY PURPOSES

WEAPONS, FARM TOOLS, FISHING GEAR, DWELLING FRAMEWORK, BASKETS, FENCES, FUEL, FURNITURE, AND MANY OTHER THINGS WERE MADE WITH THE LIGHT, STRONG WOOD

AN ANCIENT GREEK NAMED HIPPOCRATES MADE A "BREW" FROM THE BARK TO RELIEVE PAIN AND FEVER...

AND IN THE MID-1840'S CHEMISTS DERIVED SALICYLIC ACID FROM WILLOW AND OTHER SHRUBS

FINALLY, FROM THIS "BARK EXTRACT" CAME THE PAIN KILLER MOST PEOPLE ARE FAMILIAR WITH—ASPIRIN!

THE JACKSON TWINS

WE'VE GOT THE RESERVATIONS AT THE RED MILL, MOM!

AND TODAY'S THEIR SPECIAL ON ROAST BEEF!

IT SOUNDS OUT OF THIS WORLD!!

WHAT'S OUT OF THIS WORLD IS THAT THE TWINS ARE PAYIN' FOR IT!

SOUNDS LIKE YOU TWO HAVE PLANNED A REAL FABULOUS FATHER'S DAY!

WE'VE BEEN PLANNING IT FOR WEEKS, POSIE! DADDY'S PERFECT DAY!

OKAY, LET'S GO... SEE YOU, POSIE!

HEY, HAVEN'T YOU FORGOTTEN SOMETHING?

LIKE THE GUEST OF HONOR?

DADDY? OH, HE'S NOT GOING!

SOME NEAT FATHER'S DAY! YOU LEAVE THE POOR GUY HOME??

BUT THAT'S HIS PRESENT!! SIX HOURS OF TOTAL SILENCE!

WITH US OUT OF HIS HAIR!

AND NOT SPENDING HIS MONEY!

THE PHONE OFF THE HOOK AND ALL OUR MUSIC LOCKED UP!

AN' NOBODY MESSIN' WITH THE TV DURING HIS FAVORITE GOLF SHOW!

NEGATIVE GIVING, BUT ADMIRABLE.

BROOD!

ALBERT EINSTEIN WAS YOUR HERO WASN'T HE, GAYLORD?

YES INDEED, IRWIN!

I WONDER HOW HIS BRAIN WOULD HAVE COMPARED IN SIZE TO MINE?

LET ME EXPLAIN IT THIS WAY... IMAGINE THAT ALL THE KNOWLEDGE IN YOUR BRAIN COULD BE PUT IN A THIMBLE...

YES...

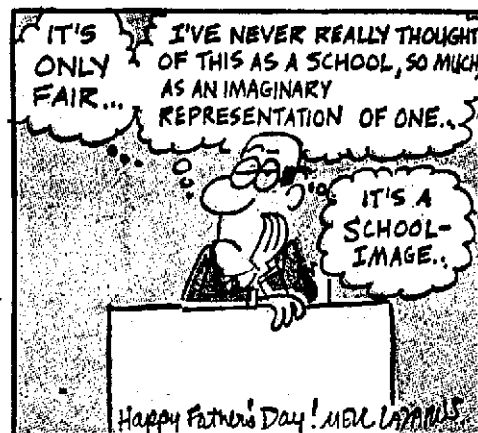

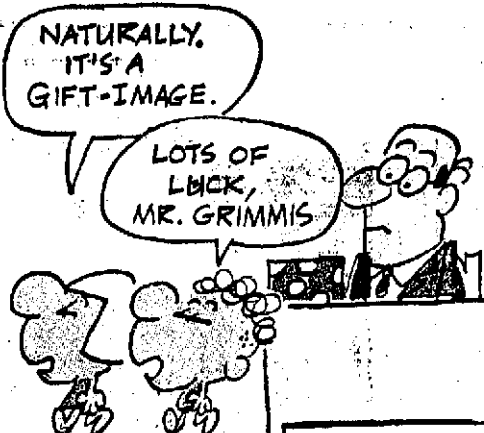

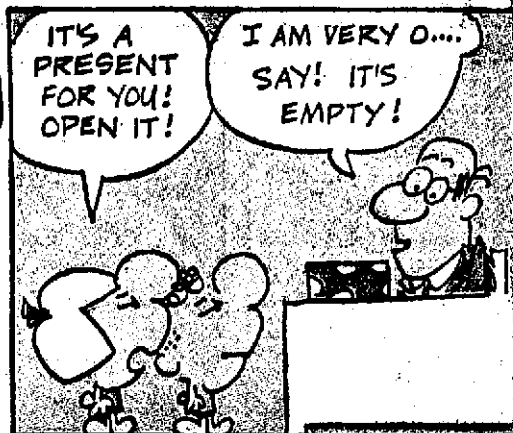

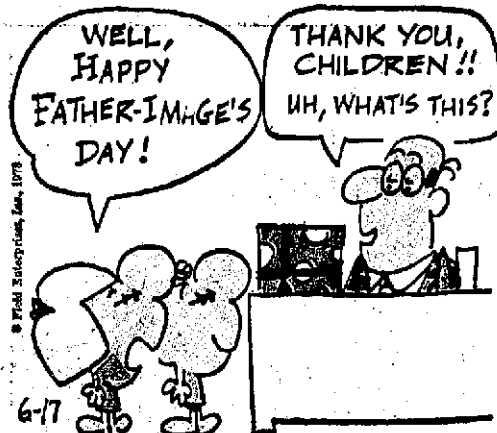

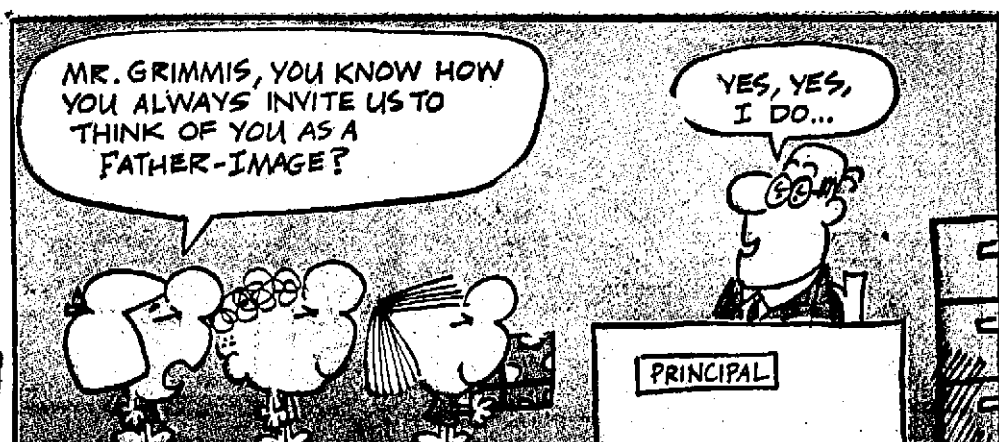

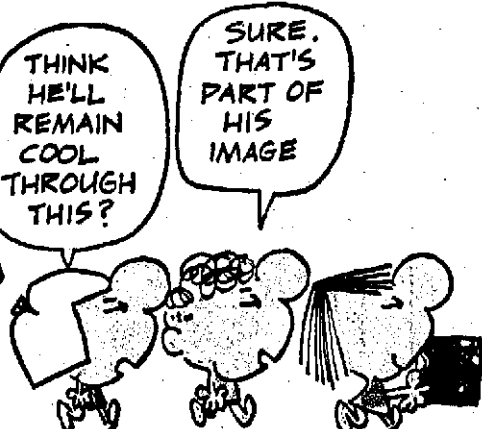

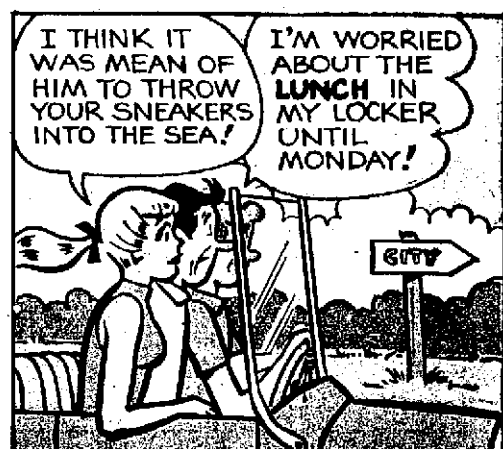

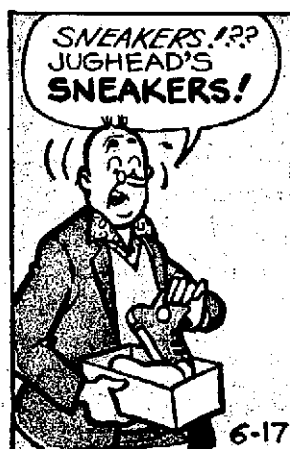

THEN BY COMPARISON IT WOULD HAVE TAKEN AN AREA THE SIZE OF THE STATE OF MISSOURI TO HOLD HIS!

I'D LOVE TO HAVE SEEN HIS HAT!
